WILLARD MACK IN

ISLAND DRAMA

Actor-Author of "Kick In" Fame at the Crystal Theatre Monday.

Willard Mack, who is well and favorably known for his acting and authorship of "Kick In" and "So Much For So Much," will gain new laurels when he appears in "Aloha Oe," the new Triangle play at the Crystal theatre next Monday. It is a spectacular Ince supervised drama of love and adventure, the main acting being in the south sea islands.

Though a comedian by training and experience on the stage, Mack is essentially a virile dramatic actor, and for that reason in their collaboration J. G. Hawks and Thomas H. Ince made the role assigned to him one of intensity. It is the part of a young attorney who through the use of intoxicants finds courage and forcefulness enough to win an important criminal case. The story of his subsequent physical decline and ultimate redemption at the hand of a pretty tropical princess affords Mack unusual opportunities.

Aside from the eminence of its star and the rich dramatic qualities of the story, the production finds great strength in its spectacular shipwreck and volcano scenes. Fortunately for the producer, Sulphur canyon, adjacent to Inceville, was emitting smoke at the time the picture was produced. Sulphur canyon is characterized as "Nature's Enigma." Due to some subterranean disturbances, it becomes active from time to time and pours forth great volumes of smoke and vapor. Frequently the phenomena last for several weeks consecutively.

Enid Markley, who scored so heavily in the support of Dustin Farnum in the Ince-Triangle feature, "The Iron Strain," is happily cast opposite Mack. With this, the comedy attraction will be the "Village Scandal" with Raymond Hitchcock and Roscoe Arbuckle. Please bear in mind this program will be shown at the Crystal. 10 and 15c.
