COMING

The magnitude of David W. Griffith's feat in staging "The Birth of a Nation," is almost appalling—at least to the devotees of the older forms of theatrical entertainment. Where now are the little groups of actors the pinchbeck scenery and the petty properties of the so-called "legitimate" drama? By comparison with the new art the "legitimate" measures to the mountain like a molehill. Instead of scenery for his background Griffith has used Nature. For subject he has covered 150 years of American life and history. Eighteen thousand people have done his bidding and in the hair-raising of the Ku Klux Klan three thousand riders and horses sweep over the dusty roads.

No wonder that this magnificent historical spectacle is the talk of the country. It has established an entire ly new art in the realm of the theatre—the art of pantomimic screen spectacles with an orchestral score perfectly synchronized to the action. It has also created a tremendous sensation because of its vaster and more forceful treatment of the theme of Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," which both as book and play created the greatest furor of the last decade.

The great deeds of the civil war and the horrors of re-construction are made to live again and the nation reborn is apotheosized. Mr. Griffith, pioneer among directors, managed this stupendous achievement without the aid of dialogue or speech, for motion pictures with music and effects tell vividly this thrilling tale of fifty years ago. This wonderplay will appear at the Keith theatre October 27, 28 and 30.

BUY LIFE INSURANCE.

Out of the prosperity of the present that is reaching people in every walk of life, that is reaching the farmer and producer in the most pronounced way, there ought to be a wide-spread feeling as there is wide-spread prosperity, to lay aside something out of the abundance of the present that will be saved for the future.

There is nothing in the way of a permanent investment that possesses more satisfaction to the investor than the buying of life insurance protection. It not only protects those dependent upon one, but it protects the buyer himself and it protects his estate and business against those inroads which might come through long sickness and incapacitation. Life insurance today, is an investment; the larger part of life insurance that is sold carried with its investment, savings and a protection that not only looks after those dependent but that may be a protection to the insured himself in his old age. Life insurance at one's death, goes direct to the beneficiary; it cannot be taken for debts; it cannot be separated from the one for whom it was intended. It is a saving in this way that is unassailable; the man who in his best producing years starts out with a reasonable amount of life insurance, can make that a savings bank for himself as well as carrying the protection that it offers. He can pay for his insurance in his producing years and have it laid by for the future. In no way can one get more satisfaction than by feeling that he has ample insurance protection. His credit is enlarged; his freedom of action increased, his worries over what might happen dissipated, and the man so fortified is equipped to meet whatever changes may come.

Today, no man thinks of going without fire insurance protection for his property. How much more ought men to think of the protection of life insurance? Property may be destroyed and the man may rebuild and recover from his losses, but the man who faces death without life insurance, has no highway open for recovery. Life insurance is as much more important to every man as life is more important than property. Therefore, out of the abundance of today, lay aside real savings and protection for tomorrow by investing some of the prosperity of the present in life insurance.
