THE DANSVILLE SANITARIUM—(P. O. Address, Dansville, Livingston County, New-York.)

TO HEALTH SEEKERS.—Our Home Hygienic Institute is the largest establishment in the world where invalid men and women—no matter what their diseases, if curable—are restored to health without the use of medicines. Its physicians, of whom there are five—three gentlemen and two ladies—are thoroughly educated, and by their great success have given to their Institute a national reputation. At this date (August 1) there are in the Sanitarium between 200 and 300 gentlemen, ladies and children under treatment for diseases which medicinal remedies had failed to reach restoratively. These persons have come from twenty-six States and Canada. The location is very salubrious; air dry and bracing; water of the highest purity; drainage perfect; no mosquitoes; fine region for fruit; scenery unsurpassable, and climate so mild in Winter that the Institute is kept open the year round, and the Autumn and Winter visitants gain wonderfully. There is no quackery in the treatment. The philosophy is, that human beings are subjects of Law, obedience to which insures health; disobedience to which produces sickness. To obey the laws of Life and Health is to keep well, or if sick, to get well. To disobey them is to get sick, keep sick, suffer and die untimely. If, then, the readers of THE TRIBUNE would like, if well, to keep their health, or if sick, would like to get good health, let them come to our Home, and we will aid them to keep health or to become healthy as they may need. What is the use of being sick when one might, just as well as not, be in good health, through simple obedience to Law? If information in any direction is wanted, it will be fully and cheerfully rendered, and the best of references given, by addressing as above. JAMES C. JACKSON.
