Trial of Samuel Drury on a Charge of Attempting to Murder Mr. Thomas Warner.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER—Before Judge Edmonds and All Freeholders and Cooks.

G. W. Warner, resumed.—I know where my father was going after dinner, when he told me to open the box after he was gone; he was going to Mr. Ruggles's office, 20 Nassau-st. to attend a reference as to his own claim with Mr. Drury.

Cross-examined.—The explosion was over at or before 2 o'clock; the reference was to be at 3 o'clock; believe Mr. W. rode home; it was his usual practice on returning from traveling; do not know of my own knowledge that he had been traveling; think I saw a carpet bag in the hall when I went in; my father seemed to be in a great hurry when he came home and somewhat excited; he said he was in a great hurry, and my mother went in the kitchen to assist in serving up the dinner; my mother, at the table, communicated, as already said, to my father, the leaving of the box and the manner; he continued eating his dinner as usual; I know of no engagement to attend the reference; he said, George, when you have done your dinner and I am gone, go and get the box and open it; do not know if it had previously been called a box or a package; when my mother told me, as mentioned, I went directly up and got the box; when the paper was taken off it appeared to be a new box; it is made of mahogany; my mother sat at the end of the table farthest from the door; there was a work box on the side I sat, behind my chair; had my mother came that side, she must have been destroyed; my father retained his seat as he was drawing the lid out of the box; he did not draw the lid as if with caution, but as if it drew hard, and I took hold of the box to facilitate; the lid could be drawn safely for about two inches, before the sand paper took the matches; after I came to think about it, it was a matter of doubt in my mind whether the falling was hard or pretense. [Mr. Sparks, partner of Mr. W. being present, Mr. Clark stated that he would want the daybook brought to Court, containing the entries from Jan 1849, to Aug. when Mrs. Warner and her son (the witness) left the house. Mr. Warner stated that he was perfectly willing to produce them, but there were entries connected with objects which would not be proper to make public. Mr. C. said he only wanted the accounts relative to Mr. D.] Mr. Warner, in opening the box, took hold of the bottom of the front with his left hand and drew with his right. When I took hold there was no labor required. The witness was asked several questions as to the relative distances of Mr. and Mrs. W. and the witness from the door at the time of opening the box, and the comparative danger. The witness, in answers, stated that the windows of the basement were barred of evenings, &c. The bell rang about five minutes before the ringing when the box was left. I went to the door at the first ringing. There were two persons, who enquired for my father, and I told them he was out. Do not know who they were. Mr. Geo. Wilkes, Editor of the Police Gazette, was the first to remind me that the bell had rung a few minutes before. I had not thought of it till then. I do not know whether one-eyed Thompson was one of the persons who called, or whether he has a glass eye or not. Have seen him without a glass eye. [Mr. Clark said they would show that Mr. Drury was innocent, and that the guilty parties are those who got up the prosecution, Mr. Wilkes, Mr. Warner and one-eyed Thompson.] Witness said that Mr. Wilkes told him at his house. [Mr. Wilkes advised that he had an affidavit either as to the person who sent the box or made it. I went to Mr. Wilkes house in company with Mr Ticknor. Have seen Mr. Wilkes at my fathers office. He is a client of my father. Heard my father say, about a week before he went away the time the box was left that that he would have to go I think he said to Philadelphia—he did not know the day. I saw him home after 2 o'clock on 24th, the explosion was next day. Had he gone to Philadelphia do not know how long he could have stayed there. First saw one-eyed Thompson at my fathers office. My father left England in 1835, when I was 3 years old. I was born in England. I came here in 1849. The family consisted when my father left, of myself, my brother, sister, and my mother. My sister's in Court. She is married to Mr. Coleman, hatter, Nassau-street. Understood my father and mother did not live together for some time before he left. He lived with a woman named Feistead in Bland street. Saw her in Court. We lived in Elsam-street. My mother had seven children by my father. First heard of my father being here in 1841. Saw it by seeing his name in a New York paper. We had not previously heard of him after he left London in 1835. The paper showed he was a lawyer and doing business in New York. [A letter was shown, said to be Mr. W's, writing dated New-York, Dec. 1841, written to his family. Mrs. Warner was requested by Mr. Clark, and she produced some other letters written by Mr. W. to his family.

Mr. Graham asked the Court if it would be proper to go into an examination as to Mr. Warner, the object of which is apparent to make it appear that Mr. Drury is not only innocent, but that Mr. Warner himself sent the box there to destroy his family. The idea is so horrible that regularity, at least should be observed, and it is proper to go into examination, to the utmost extent, on this enquiry at present. The Court thought it would not be proper to interfere. It is proper to read the letter, to show the state of feeling. It is dated City Hall-place, No. 20, directed to Eleanor Warner. It says he intends leaving for the West Indies—denies the knowledge of the handwriting, and speaks of threats that it is no use, if any person took any claim upon him let them come and show it. He expects after going to the West Indies to return to England in the autumn, and will seek out the writer of the letter. The letter is addressed to Mrs. W. London. The witness stated that his mother maintained herself and family by working at hat trimming, as did his sister. Witness was at pastry cook's; do not recollect having seen my father but once before I was 5 years old; my sister carried me to his house; he recognized me as his son; he spoke to my brother; we went away; understood he was at Rochester with a woman named Rusby; I followed him as far as Troy; the name was entered on the books as Mr. Warner and lady; did not see any lady with Mr. W.; he wrote to my mother when absent. The letter is produced, dated Rochester, March 2, 1843. It commences "My wife, you made me promise to write, and do so; speaks of their being happy together; the forbearance since their reunion; thinks there should be an understanding; says will state facts; about 27 or 28 years ago, when both under 18, were privately married, and passion did more to bring it about than love; their sentiments were dissimilar, he for seeing the world, she cold and retired; after the lapse of seven or eight years deserted her, then had again deserted her, and came to this country. Sent money, but could not find you. Received threatening letters from you and other deceased son.—In 1844 I went to Europe, and endeavored to find you out, but could not. In 1847 I sent you more money than you required, and the better feelings prevailed, and I wished for a reunion, which you granted. As our children came out I looked forward to happiness, and refer to my course for a year afterward. I strove to show you all I could do, and how happy I would be if you would act in the year, and afforded articles not only of necessity but luxury. Yet how often was it apparent that difficulties stood in our way, as to happiness, by difference of temperament; but they have not driven me to excess, as in my younger days. I thought we could not be happy, and on one occasion you broke out, and as to something I wished, which made a bad feeling, and your daughter was present, and I gave notice to insult me at every meal, though I never did anything to offend her. Have no fault to find with George, and will provide him admission to my own business. From the absence of comfort and your continued coldness, and your happiness with your family and unhappiness with me, manifesting itself in ill-humor, I was mistaken as to happiness in a reconciliation. After such had been 18 years by yourself, so far as I am concerned, and had been accustomed to control with such sway as you chose, and among a large circle of acquaintance, it was supposing too much, you could be contented without them, and with a husband who, for his former ill-conduct, caused some dislike, perhaps, to linger in your breast. I cannot endure this state of things in connection with the cares of my business."

The letter concludes by suggesting some remedy, and asks her to point out, be being always ready to do his part in a pecuniary point of view. [This is an outline of the letter.]

Witness stated that the letter was unexpected by the family; Mr and Mrs. Coleman resided there then, but they went to reside elsewhere; Mrs. C. visited my mother, and was at the house the evening the box was left; she had gone about half an hour; my mother's place of residence and associations did not change much; she could have been found at Crystal's, Gracechurch-st. where the letter was directed, at any time; I have only a grandfather (my father's father) living in London; do not think Mr. W. could have learned from him; understood the father had disowned him; did not hear of Mr. W. being in London in 1844; I saw one-eyed Thompson at my father's office a couple of weeks before the explosion and an hour or two afterwards; saw him in the basement; he appeared to be looking for the single cover; he connected with no one; my father did not seem to like it; he said he knew he was to manufacture torpedo boxes; [Mr. Clark said he would prove that the box was manufactured by one-eyed Thompson, in the employment of, will not say now;] they had made, previously, a point of a quarrel, but Thompson is found there immediately afterwards. Thompson is the prosecution. The District Attorney cautioned the Jury not to be influenced by the statements of Counsel. The testimony is irrelevant till Mr. Warner becomes a witness.

Mr. Clarke, in answer to a remark of Mr. Graham, said they did not mean to contend that Mr. Warner left the box, but that he procured Thompson to do it. Mr. G. objected to conversations, but the Court thought it proper where the parties were present. Witness continued; my father made a sign that I was not wanted there and not to speak to one-eyed Thompson. I told my father I was trying to pump Thompson, and my father replied that I would not get any thing out of him. That was two or three days after the explosion. Believe I went almost immediately away at the Police office, after the explosion, my father asked Mary if it was a person with one arm who delivered the box, and she could not say; believe it was suggested a second time. Recollect a slight quarrel one time, between my father and mother as to some cold victuals; recollect a remark of my father's that he wouldn't have a drunken woman in the house; the charge was perfectly false; my mother and myself left the house 29th July; Mary left at thirteen days since. [The witness was asked who came in afterwards, which was not allowed; also asked a conversation between Mr. W. and Thompson.] Believe Thompson was in Mr. W's employment; have seen the scraps of paper here shown before; there was a day-book kept in my father's office; I took an extract. [Not allowed, as the book is to be brought. The witness was asked several questions to be brought. The witness was asked whether he could not account for the manner of my father say once which he could easily be detected; heard poison was dangerous, as it could easily be detected; heard him say, after the box was sent, that there was one such thing occured in this country before—a box sent from England to a timber merchant.

The other letters alluded to were placed in the hands of witness: my elder brother died in 1844; believe my father was not aware of it till the arrival of my mother in 1848. The letters were marked but not read.

Direct—Know Mr. Drury; became acquainted with them a month or two after my arrival in May, 1848; knew him at my father's office; he used to come there; saw him at Albany in June, 1849, where I was trying to trace out Mr. Warner; he is acquainted with Mr. Coleman, my brother-in-law; think the day before the box was left, my father said he had to go to Philadelphia on business for Dr. Moffat, who was a client of his; Dr. M. used to prosecute persons for forging his labels, and one-eyed Thompson was employed to ferret out persons so forging; my father paid our expenses to this country, including Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, whom my father promised twelve months' board, and they remained that long at his house within two or three weeks; my father has provided for my mother and myself since we left in July. In regard to what I said about my father being no swindler, my father might have said he had not condescended to him, or something of the kind; in reference to what Mr. W. said about poison, it was superinduced by the trial of a cause for poison at the Sessions; my father and myself had just returned from the Sessions; as to torpedoes, conversation was in our house afterward that the intention was to destroy my father, mother and the whole of us; think the allusion to drunkenness was after the time of one-eyed Thompson; believe the effect of the question of Mr. W. to Mary was whether the box was handed in with two arms or one. The affidavit here shown was signed by me.

The Court then adjourned to the forenoon at 10 o'clock.

COMMERCIAL AND MONEY MATTERS.

For Sales of Stocks &c. see Fourth Page.

TUESDAY, Jan 29—P.M.

In Stocks the business is not large, and the quotations have a downward tendency. Most of the Fancies are easier. Government Stocks are in fair request and firm. Government Fives, 1853, sold to considerable extent for banking purposes at 104¼.

In Exchanges there is a little movement, and the market is about ½ per cent. higher than last steamer. Some sales of first-class bills have been made at 8¾@9 per cent. Sterling drawers are 8½ per cent. France are now plenty at 5.20.

In Freights there is a fair business doing, and the market is steady. The engagements are some 40,000 bushels Corn at 44d in bulk and 5d in bags; 5,000 or 2,000 bbls at 1s 6d; 500 bales Cotton 5-16d, and 200 or 300 tons Heavy Freight at 20s@22s 6d, the latter for Cuxhaven. To Have the packet of the first has 1,200 bales Cotton at ⅛c. To Glasgow, 500 bbls Rosin 1s 9d; Cotton at 3-16d; 6,000 bushels Corn 4½d. To Antwerp 200 or 300 hogsheads Rice at 32s 6d. To California the market is active and rates firm—65@70 cts per foot and $55 per M.

Money is easier and offering at 5 per cent on first class stocks. Paper goes at 6@7 per cent. for strictly first sort.

In our remarks upon the extension of the Erie Railroad yesterday we spoke of the extension of the connecting roads westwardly to the Mississippi. To-day we learn that one of the links is about to be built immediately.

The subscription of $250,000 applied for by the Michigan Southern Railroad Company for the extension from Hillsdale to Coldwater has been taken, a large portion of it by the citizens of Jonesville and Coldwater and other places along the line. A contract has been made with Messrs. Harbour, Witt & Co. (the contractors for the Cleveland and Columbus Road,) for the construction of the division between Hillsdale and Coldwater, the work on which has been commenced and is now in progress. This division is 22 miles in length, and is to be completed by the first day of August next. The cost of it when finished, according to the contract price, and laid with a heavy iron rail, will not exceed $12,000 per mile. The enterprise of the Eastern and Western gentlemen who have the work in hand will not permit them to rest long at Hillsdale, but we expect to hear soon of other contracts being made for extending the road still further toward Lake Michigan.

The receipts at the Sub Treasury are $69,831; Payments, $15,936; Balance $2,758,757.

The Leather Manufacturers' Bank has declared a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent.....The Merchants' Bank of Newark has declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent.

The receipts of the Syracuse and Utica Railroad during the year 1849, from passengers and all other sources, is about $465,000.

The receipts on the Syracuse and Auburn Road, very nearly reach $200,000.

The value of the exports of New-Haven for the year 1849 amounted to $217,854, and the imports to $213,279. The number of arrivals for the same period, from foreign ports, was 73; clearances do, 61.

The Worcester Railroad Corporation has applied to the Legislature of Massachusetts for an increase of capital of $300,000, which will raise the capital to $5,000,000. This with the sale of property worth $300,000, is expected to relieve the Company from debt.

The Newark Advertiser says the amount of probable damages incurred by the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company, in consequence of the decision of the Court of Errors on Saturday, has doubtless been very much overestimated by rumor; as we hear that the amount for which suits can be sustained cannot at most exceed $100. The State is a stockholder, we believe, to the amount of 2,000 shares. The case is to be carried, we understand, to the U. S. Supreme Court by writ of error.

GENERAL NOTICES.

☞ The Committee appointed by the Flour Association for the purpose of selecting "Standards," have this day made such selections, and left them with the Inspectors where all who are interested may obtain samples, viz:

Extra Superfine Flour.
Superfine Flour.
Superfine Flour No. 2.

And such other as they may desire.

It is understood by the Committee, and so stated for the purpose of avoiding misunderstandings between buyers and sellers, that there is but one Ohio brand usually known as Superfine Flour in the City of New-York, and that in all contracts, sales or purchases of Superfine Flour of New-York Inspection do not include the quality Superfine No. 2 unless expressly so stated.

Resolved, That the Inspector's brand for quality No. 2 be placed upon the head of the barrel instead of the side, with the word and figure No. 2 plainly branded on the same.
