ACCIDENT ON THE BOSTON AND LOWELL RAILROAD.—A collision occurred upon this road on Thursday, by which Mr. Brown, fireman of the Express Train, was so badly injured that one arm had to be amputated. The Express car was going 40 miles an hour when the collision occurred. The passenger train had come to a stop on the road, in consequence of the engine having given out, and the passengers had left the cars, running just the Express was not far distant in the rear. A man ran back and waved his cap, but the engineer of the Express did not notice it soon enough to heal up, or slacken his speed, although the brakes were applied and the steam immediately let off. Hall, the engineer, jumped off, without injury. Brown was standing on the steps, hesitating whether to jump off or not, when the engine struck the passenger cars and made a passage entirely through, until the two engines came in contact with each other.
