I take pleasure in stating my opinion that the Classical and Mathematical School at West Point, N. Y., under the charge of EDWARD V. KINSLEY, A. The course of instruction, judging in part from students received in this College from that school, is thorough and judicious—and the discipline and moral culture at once efficient and successful. LADIES' SCHOOL. Red Hook, on the North River.—Mrs. Wm Jones receives into her family twenty young ladies, whom she undertakes to instruct in all the branches necessary to a sound education, and also in those accomplishments and in that personal carriage which are essential to their making a good figure in refined society.

The cardinal branches of study are taught by herself and daughter, together with the higher Mathematics, Belles Lettres, and the Sciences; and a vigilant supervision is constantly exercised by them over every pupil, with regard to those points, which are most the object of judicious parents' solicitude.

Her Teacher of Music is a lady eminently skilled in the science, who unites with great patience, a perseverance which often makes respectable performers of those even whom Nature has not gifted with a talent for Music; and the best tuned instruments only are used for practice.

Her Teacher of French and Drawing is a native of France of whom no duties are required, but assiduously to teach these branches. She accustoms her pupils to speak the French language colloquially, and the idiom is rendered familiar by their being taught to think in it, as well as to speak it.

The residence of Mrs. Wm. Jones is a commodious Cottage, fitted up with every convenience conducive to health and comfort; and the village is three hours from the City by H. R. Railroad. References may be made to the parents of any of her present or former pupils.

TERMS—One Hundred and fifty dollars per annum, in full for every expense, except for cash advances previously authorised.

DR. CHILTON'S NEW MAGNETO-ELECTRIC MACHINES—For Medical Application.—These instruments possess great advantages over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass in any direction, at the will of the operator. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action, and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids so objectionable in the kinds now in use. They are always ready for immediate application, and are in no wise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child or even in many cases by the patients themselves.

They are put up in a portable form, being secured in neat cases, from which they do not require to be removed.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, UNITED STATES.—Before Judges Grier and Dickerson.—New-Jersey District, Trenton, April 5, 1851.—JOHN CAMPBELL vs. HENRY H. SUTTON and JASPER HARDING.—Suit for Injunction and damages.—This suit was brought at the September term of the Court, on an application made at that term to restrain the defendants, by an injunction, from further using the improved method of digesting rags and other fibrous materials in the manufacture of paper, patented by George Spafford and by him assigned to the complainant, John Campbell. The injunction was not granted at the September term, the defendants denying the validity of the patent of complainant, and asking for a trial by jury at the next term, which was ordered. The cause was now called by the complainant for trial, and the defendants having failed in their application to put it off, withdrew the issue from the jury, and the Court ordered an injunction to be issued restraining the further use of the patented process. The damages were referred to a master, to report to the Court, and the amount having been fixed a final decree was entered and a perpetual injunction granted. This judgment and decree establish the validity of the patent issued to George Spafford and assigned by him to John Campbell. The process is a very important improvement upon all the old methods of preparing stock, and became necessary to the manufacture of first rate paper. Messrs. Keeler and Dickerson for complainant; Messrs Vroom and Gummere for defendants. a9 1t*
