SINGLE TAX IN CONGRESS.

Henry George's Favorite Theory Embodied in a Bill By Mr. Maguire.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The feature of the debate upon the Wilson bill which has been most surprising, is the unexpectedly strong sentiment in the direction of free trade and single tax theories developed among the Democrats of the west and south. Representative Breckinridge of Kentucky, called attention in his speeches to the the tendencies in these directions manifested throughout the thorough and diversified threshing of economic principles which has been in progress since the revenue measure, with income tax accessory, came before the house. The whole drift of politics, as he saw it, was back toward the systems of direct taxation enforced in the earlier stages of this government.

In a different spirit spoke Representative Hendricks of New York, a representative of the more conservative eastern element of his party, who, while admitting the current which Mr. Breckinridge commented upon, was unable to believe that the Democratic party could be going over bodily to what he called the socialistic school of Tom Johnson.

It has remained for Representative Maguire of California, to bring forward the most far reaching proposition placed before the house. For the first time congress will be brought face to face and placed on record with the single land tax scheme of which Henry George is the author. Mr. Maguire has drawn up with great care and study a bill which gives effect to the single tax theories and he will propose it at the proper time as a substitute for the income tax in the Wilson bill.

This bill levies a direct tax of $62,620,250 upon the value of all land, exclusive of improvements thereon, on the states and territories. It provides for collection by collectors and assessors for each state and territory to be appointed by the president, or that state shall collect the taxes themselves and turn them over to the treasurer of the United States retaining 15 per cent of the proceeds.

Mortgages on real estate are to be treated as an interest in the land, and the tax on the proportion of value represented by the amount due from mortgage shall be a primary charge against mortgages, but will constitute a lien on the land, to satisfy what may be sold. In case the mortgages fails to pay his proportion, the owner is to pay it and be entitled to receive credit for the amount of his mortgage.

WAGES NOT REDUCED.

Union Pacific Has Made No General Cut, Says Superintendent Deuel.

DENVER, Jan. 29.—General Superintendent Deuel of the Union Pacific, who returned from Omaha this morning, says emphatically that there is no general cut in wages by that system. The alleged reduction is nothing more than an equalization of wages which has been contemplated for some time.

"For a long time," said Mr. Deuel, "the men on some divisions have been receiving more than they really earned through the constructive mileage system. For instance, the engine men on the Cheyenne run from this city, 106 miles, have been credited with 115 miles, and the men on the Wyoming division, who run 101 miles, have been paid for 150. There are several other cases of the same kind, which, of course, are wrong and should be stopped. The company only intends to adjust those matters and make a new schedule to which the men can honestly find no objection."
