Caution.—The frequent destruction of vessels by fire induces the Underwriters of this city to notify shippers of merchandise liable to spontaneous combustion, or to take fire by pressure or friction, that by a recent act of Congress (which is hereunto appended) they are subjected to a heavy penalty for shipping such goods without notice to the master or officer in charge of the vessel.

Persons whose duty it is to oversee the loading of vessels, are earnestly requested to be vigilant in their examinations, and when packages of a dangerous character are received, to have them stowed in a proper manner, where they will not be liable to ignite by pressure or shifting of cargo.

Within the past year not less than six vessels have been burned at sea, under circumstances which lead to the conclusion that the spontaneous ignition of bituminous coal was the cause of these disasters. The subject is recommended to the attention of parties interested.
ELLWOOD WALTER, Secretary Board of Underwriters.
