JIM AND HIS HOP TEA.

The Latter Gets the Former Into Jail for Ten Days.

When the name, Jim Williams was called this morning by City Prosecutor Otis Hungate, a rather dilapidated looking man came into the court room and gave a longing glance at Judge Ensminger's large diamond stud.

"Jim Williams, you are charged with being drunk and disturbing the peace," said lawyer Hungate. "I'm guilty," replied the prisoner, in a weary way. He was fined $10. He was arrested by Sergeant Tim Donovan, last night. He was begging on the streets and when arrested had a bottle of hop tea. He wanted to drink the rest of the contents of the bottle before he was taken to the city prison, but the sergeant got it away from him and it will be turned into the sewer at the city prison(?).

Catarrh
AND COLD IN THE HEAD
relieved instantly by one application of
Birney's Catarrh Powder

REV. FATHER CLARKE, Sec'y to the Rt. Rev. Bishop of Columbus, Ohio, writes:

Gentlemen:—I send you money for your Powder. It has proved beyond an equivalent cure of catarrh with nothing else could help me. Am delighted with it. All my friends in whom I have tried it are quite enthusiastic over it. The good it does they can accompanied of their own accord to the druggist and order it. I will do anything to speak a good word for the remedy to anyone I think would be benefited.

M. B. FRESCHETTE, Custodian U. S. Appraiser's Stores, Chicago, Ill., writes:

Gentlemen:—Your sample catarrh snuff for a number of years, and getting no relief from many advertised cures which I tried, was finally tried by a friend to try Dr. Birney's Catarrhal Powder for cold in the head. I have discovered my hearing improving, so that I can now hear a watch tick, partially, if using held to injured ear. I look upon it as a positive cure for deafness that has been pronounced by doctors owing to my trouble, and can say I have never heard of a case where it has failed to relieve.

LATEST

HOW IT CAME ABOUT.

Latest Particulars of the Whisky War in South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 31.—The battle between dispensary constables and citizens of Darlington, was not at all a premeditated affair upon the part of the citizens. Two young men, Floyd and Rodgers had had a fight at the depot, where dispensary constables congregated ready to leave town after making raids. Chief of Police Dargan went to the station on hearing of the fight. About this time Frank Norment and Mr. Redmond and several prominent citizens came upon bicycles on business. Constable McLendon interfered in the Floyd-Rodgers controversy. Norment was sitting on a barrel. Redmond also interfered at this point.

Meanwhile the chief of police was trying to keep the men apart. Some words passed between Redmond and McLendon and Norment. McLendon drew a pistol, put his arm over Rodgers and shot Redmond. He then shot F. E. Norment and was thereupon shot himself. Other constables then opened a fusilade with Winchester rifles. McCullough and other citizens returned the fire with pistols.

Constable Pepper was killed, being shot through the head. McLendon was shot through the abdomen. One spy was shot through the head, another had his nose shot off; F. E. Normant was instantly killed, being shot through the mouth.

The chief of police was shot through the body; K. D. Lewis was shot through both sides with five bullets; Redmond was shot through the neck; L. W. Norment was shot in the arm and side. A bullet was stopped by his pocketbook, otherwise he would have been killed.

The constables cleared the platform and vicinity of people with Winchesters and then fled the town pursued by citizens, as soon as the news had spread. When Governor Tillman received telegrams of the affair he ordered the Columbia battalion to go to Darlington on a special train. Darlington was reported in possession of the citizens, with the sheriff and civil authorities powerless.

The militia companies then disbanded, declaring that if they went to Darlington, it would be as private citizens and for the purpose of assisting the people of the town. The governor's guards held a meeting last night, two hours before deciding what to do, there being about a dozen members who favored obeying orders.

By this time several thousand citizens had gathered about the guard's armory and packed the street and building to the very doors. Indignation was expressed on every side at the indecision of the guards. It was reported at one time that the guards had decided to go and a large part of the crowd greeted this report with groans and hisses "for Tillman's body guard," and swore they would take their guns away from them.

The crowd was in a volcanic state. Adjutant General Farley and aides were hissed as they came down stairs. The crowd was composed of the best people of the town from bank presidents and city aldermen to laborers. Finally the guards decided not to go.

Threats were uttered against Gov. Tillman. Some one cried: "Let's break open the state dispensary and throw the whisky out," and a start was made, but after an hour of fervid eloquence from dry-goods boxes the crowd was dissuaded from its purpose.

The casualties as near as known are as follows:

The Killed.

CONSTABLE MCLENDON.
CONSTABLE PEPPER.
CITIZEN LEWIS.
CITIZEN REDMOND.
FRANK NORMENT.
MAJOR DARGAN; the last named died this morning.

Wounded.

Citizen Paul Rodgers, K. D. Lucas and Chief of Police Dargan, and others unknown.

A BIG GANG GOING.

East St. Louis to Send Six Hundred Men to Washington.

ST. LOUIS, March 31.—The southern branch of Coxey's army of the commonweal, is organizing in St. Louis today, formulating plans as to transportation, etc., by which they hope to join the main body of the army at Pittsburg. The start is to be made from East St. Louis tomorrow, and the recruits will probably take the box car route, by which most of them reached this city.

Captain Primrose, with about sixty men under his leadership, reached St. Louis yesterday. Since then some thirty men under the command of Lieutenants Mike Brandt and Mike Dunn of San Antonio Tex., have come in the Iron Mountain freight trains.

Darby Doyle, at the head of some twelve men, all from Little Rock, arrived also during the day.

All arrivals enlist under Captain Primrose's banner and will try to reach Pittsburg as one band, where they will join the main body of the army. Altogether some 600 recruits, many of whom will be unemployed of this city, are expected to leave East St. Louis tomorrow.

ONE MORE BIG CANAL.

It Will Extend From the Georgian Bay to Toronto, Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., March 31.—The private bills committee of the legislature this afternoon created a franchise incorporating the Huron-Ontario Ship Canal company and empowering them to have one terminal point on Lake Ontario, near Toronto, and another terminal on Georgian bay, near Collingwood. The company claims that this canal will shorten the route to Liverpool 800 miles. Work will begin in six months.

Several American capitalists are interested in the scheme.

LAIDLAW GETS $25,000.

For Injuries Received in the Norcross Bomb Explosion.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The jury in the case of Laidlaw versus Sage, in which Russell Sage is sued for damages sustained by Laidlaw on the occasion of the throwing of a dynamite bomb by the crank Norcross in Sage's office, has returned a verdict for $25,000 for the plaintiff.

The court denied a motion for a new trial, but granted a stay of forty days.

HARVARD'S PROSPECTIVE ASTRONOMICAL STATION IN ARIZONA.

An Expedition Now Exploring the Southwest For a Site For an Observatory Similar to the One Maintained by Harvard at Arequipa, Peru.

Through the liberality of Mr. Percival Lowell, a wealthy Bostonian, Harvard university is about to establish a new astronomical station in Arizona similar to the one it now maintains at Arequipa, Peru. For several years Professor Edward C. Pickering, who is the director of Harvard's astronomical department, has entertained the belief that an observatory somewhere in the southern Rocky mountains would be productive of good results, and he has frequently expressed the hope that such a station would be established, though the necessary funds were not available from the university's regular sources of revenue, and it seemed unlikely that they would be forthcoming from anywhere else.

It takes a good deal of money to build, equip and maintain such an observatory, at least $30,000 being required the first year. But Mr. Lowell's generosity contemplates the expenditure of even more than that if necessary, so the financial difficulty may be considered entirely settled. He takes something more than a mere financial interest in the project, too, and is a member of the expedition which is now exploring southern Arizona in search of the best possible location for the observatory. He is a devoted astronomer and the author of several valuable astronomical books.

PROFESSOR W. H. PICKERING.

Professor William H. Pickering, a brother of Director Pickering, is in command of the exploring party and will be at the head of the new establishment. It was he who managed the expedition to Peru and established the observatory at Arequipa, and he has had years of valuable astronomical experience. In 1887 he was in charge of a party which spent several days on the summit of Pike's peak, making observations at the altitude of 14,000 feet, the highest ever attained by astronomical observers with a telescope. He is especially interested in telescopic photography and has achieved some famous results in that line at the Peruvian observatory.

"The new station," the professor said just before leaving Cambridge, "is intended principally for visual work, while in the near future only photographic work is to be carried on at Arequipa. The Bruce photographic telescope, which has an aperture of 24 inches, we are testing here, and within a few months it will be shipped to Peru, where a regular system of photographing the heavens will be begun.

"Our work here at Cambridge will be greatly facilitated by the ease of communication with the Arizona station, and we can better trace certain phenomena at each point. Then, too, a larger amount of the regular investigation can be better carried on at the new station than here because of the atmospheric conditions. Of course we shall work out plans here, but we shall seek their verification at the station.

"Arizona was decided on because that section of the country is moderately high, and the air is dry. We were not looking for height alone, for what we want most is dry atmospheric conditions. Pike's peak I found by personal observations to be no better than here. Often there are many successive nights when satisfactory observations cannot be made here, and I think the same is true at most observatories located in large cities. Then, too, the powerful electric currents used for lighting and the high tension trolley wires disturb our instruments.

"There must be a change in the sites of observatories. In the past it has nearly always been the case that large telescopes were erected near capitals of countries or near large universities instead of in places where the meteorological conditions would permit of attaining the best results.

"The conditions of climate which render a city or country great are often those most unfavorable to astronomical work. The climate of western Europe and the eastern portion of the United States is not suited to good astronomical work, and yet these are the sections where nearly all the large observatories of the world are situated. Among the exceptions to this rule that I note are the observatories of California and Illinois, the Lick and the Yerkes stations.

"It has not been the policy of Harvard college observatory to attempt to obtain a large telescope to be erected in Cambridge because of the bad climatic conditions. It was on this account that a station was established for this observatory near Arequipa at an altitude of more than 8,000 feet, and now the new one in Arizona we hope to locate at an altitude of some 4,000 feet.

"The special reason for hurrying this expedition and getting the station in working order is the opposition of Mars next summer. Two years ago Mars was near the earth, but farther south, and we made some valuable observations at our Arequipa observatory. This coming summer Mars comes near the earth again, but much farther north, and our Arizona station will be just right for the observation."

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CIN'TI.

ARRESTED AS A THIEF.

The Leader of the Coxey Brigade at Denver is in Trouble.

DENVER, Colo., March 31.—Joe St. Clair, alias Bert Hamilton, alias "General" Hamilton, commander of the Colorado division of Coxey's commonweal army, was arraigned in the justice court today charged with stealing a suit of clothes and numerous other articles from Mrs. Kennedy, a boarding house keeper.

Hamilton claimed that the case was one of persecution because of unreciprocated affections and asked for a continuance until Monday, which was granted. About forty of his followers were present when the case was called, one-half of whom, says City Detective Carbarry, have served terms in the county jail.

MIDSUMMER ICE PALACE.

Baltimore to Provide a Cooler for the Citizens in July Weather.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 31.—The second Ice palace in the U. S. (the first one being at the Mid-Winter exposition, San Francisco) is to be constructed in this city by the Maryland Steel company of Sparrows Point.

The Howard auditorium, on North Howard street, is the location. It will be opened June 1, and skating on real ice inside by the mechanical process will be provided all the year around.

The Baltimore ice palace will have an area for skating of fifty by 150 feet and the ice will be 6 to 8 inches thick. In general construction it will resemble the one constructed in the cold storage palace at the World's fair, Chicago, which was destroyed by fire last July.

HAZLETON COXEY SOLDIERS

Daniel Sullivan is Organizing a Band of Marchers.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 31.—The reorganization of Coxey's army was begun today by Daniel Sullivan, who styles himself "Colonel" Sullivan, and says he is commissioned to organize recruits in northern Pennsylvania to join Coxey at Frostburg.

He had a conference today with W. A. Evans, who abandoned the work here a week ago. Evans will not resume the scheme, but Sullivan expresses himself as confident of securing a large following.

NEW YORK, March 31.—O'Donovan Rossa was one of the principal guests at the ball given last night under the auspices of the United Counties Irish association at the Lexington avenue opera house.

This was the first effort at the social amalgamation of the Irish county associations. The counties belonging to the association are Cavan, Derry, Dublin, Galway, Limerick, Longford, Monaghan, Tyrone and Westmeath.

NOT WITH OLD PARTIES.

United Mine Workers to Form a New Political Organization.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 31.—The state convention of the United Mine Workers of America was called today for April 21, in this city to devise ways and means to secure a more harmonious action between miners and operators and to secure a more uniform scale of prices.

Delegates will meet here again April 21 to discuss the several political questions. The miners propose at this convention to endeavor to form a separate political party with the aid of the federation of labor and trades assemblies.

TODAY'S TELEGRAPH TIPS.

Prof. Wm. Robertson Smith, librarian of the University of Cambridge, Eng., and president of Arabic, is dead.

The Cunard line steamer Lucania arrived at New York today after a remarkably fast winter passage of five days 18 hours and 52 minutes. Owing to the prevalence of ice she took an extremely southerly course, traveling some 15 miles farther south than in her usual course.
