SUPREME COURT.—In the matter of the application of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, relative to the OPENING OF SEVENTY-FIRST-ST., from Third-avenue to Seventh-avenue, in the Nineteenth Ward of said City.—The undersigned, Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the above entitled matter, duly appointed by a rule of the Supreme Court, give notice—pursuant to the requirements of an act of the Legislature of the People of the State of New-York, entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled an Act to reduce several laws relating particularly to the City of New-York into one act, passed April 9, 1813," passed April 20, 1839, that the abstract of the Estimate and Assessment of the said Commissioners in the above entitled matter, containing the names of the owners of the lots assessed, the numbers of such lots as they appear on the maps of the Commissioners together with such maps and the amount of assessment, whether for damage or benefit; and also all the affidavits, estimates and other documents, which were used by the said Commissioners in making their Report, have been deposited in the Street Commissioner's Office of the City and County of New York, for the inspection of whomsoever it may concern; there to remain for at least sixty days, before the said Commissioners make their Report to the said Supreme Court, at the time and place hereinafter mentioned. And the said Commissioners further give notice, pursuant to the provisions of the Act entitled "An act to amend an Act entitled an Act in relation to the collection of assessments and taxes in the City and County of New-York, and for other purposes, passed May 14, 1840," passed May 7, 1841—to the owner or owners, occupant or occupants of all houses and improved or unimproved lands affected thereby, that they have completed the Estimate and Assessment; and that all persons whose interests are affected thereby, and who may be opposed to the same, are requested to present their objections in writing to NICHOLAS C. EVERETT, Esq., the Chairman of the said Commissioners, at his house No. 117 White-street, in the City of New-York, within thirty days from the date of this notice; and that the limits embraced by this assessment are as follows, that is to say: All those pieces or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of New-York, and bounded on the east by the westerly line or side of Third-avenue; on the west by the easterly line or side of Fourth-avenue; on the north by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventy-second-street, and on the south by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventieth-street. And also all those other lots, pieces or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of New-York, and bounded on the east by the westerly line or side of Fourth-avenue; on the west by the easterly line or side of Fifth-avenue; on the north by the line of the center of the block, between Seventy-first-street and Seventy-second-street, and on the south by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventieth-street. And also all those other lots, pieces or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of New-York, and bounded on the east by the westerly line or side of Fifth-avenue; on the north by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventieth-street. And also all those other lots, pieces or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of New-York, and bounded on the east by the westerly line or side of Sixth-avenue; on the north by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventy-second-street; and on the south by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventieth-street. And also all those other lots, pieces or parcels of land, situate lying and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of New-York, and bounded on the east by the westerly line or side of Seventh-avenue; on the north by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventy-second-street; and on the south by the line of the center of the block between Seventy-first-street and Seventieth-street. And the said Commissioners further give notice that their report in the above matter will be made and presented to the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, at a Special Term of the said Court, to be held at the City Hall of the City of New-York, on SATURDAY, the 12th day of July, 1851, at the opening of the Court on that day, or as soon thereafter as Counsel can be heard; and that then and there a motion will be made that said report be confirmed. Dated, New-York, April 23, 1851.

PARIS, Thursday June 5, 1851.

Le Discours de Dijon, which was the great subject of discussion at the departure of the last semi-weekly mail, has again furnished the theme for the journalists and the politicians. Two points connected with this speech are more striking and suggestive than the text of the discourse itself. M. Bonaparte had been so long silent that his address was anticipated and waited for with all the interest attendant upon a President's message. Such official communications are usually the joint production of the Chief Magistrate and his Ministers. They are generally put forth and received as an expression of opinion from a united and harmonious Cabinet. But on this occasion, so far from Messrs. Baroche, Faucher and so on, being a party to the sentiments contained in the President's address, they turned pale and sat uncomfortably in their seats as its successive sentences fell upon their ears. The President spoke for himself. The Cabinet had no part or lot in the matter. The Chamber, to which direct reference was made, is only spoken of with bitterness and animosity. Louis Napoleon stands out in full relief, unsupported and alone; and seems purposely to have placed himself in this isolation, in order to throw himself with more effect, upon the people for support and defense. Everything is lost sight of in this memorable address, but the President, his endeavors in the past, and his convictions in the future. Not a word, even by way of preface, upon the great event that they had met to celebrate; not a word in reference to the enterprise upon which the Clergy had just invoked the blessing of Heaven. He speaks of the confidence, the touching sympathy of the people, displayed toward him from Paris to Dijon, of the ameliorations that his Government had intended, of the encouraging welcome extended toward him by patriotic Burgundy, of his hopes of the result awaiting the petitions for revision, of his self-sacrifice and tranquility, and finally, of his determination that France shall not perish in his hands. But this continual placing of himself in the foreground, coupled with expressions of satisfaction at those salutary measures that had been carried into effect, and of regret for those that had failed, in connection with a sort of studied neglect of the Cabinet, and a regular back-handed thrust at the Assembly, will probably make a favorable impression upon the rural population where all Napoleon's strength lies.

But another incidental circumstance is more striking even than this. The Cabinet, frightened at this sort of defiance thrown at the Assembly, or at least at this way of talking to the country over the Assembly's head, hinted at schism, retirement from office, and a general crisis, if the official report of the President's address was not a little softened down, and the rough edges smoothed away. Mr. Leon Faucher charged himself with this duty. The next day the Moniteur, the immaculate Moniteur, with its sworn stenographers and faultless reporters, issued a garbled edition. The following sentence, pronounced by the President, is banished from its columns: "The Assembly has lent me its aid in all measures of repression; but it has gone no in all measures of beneficence that I had conceived in the interest of the people." Mr. Léon Faucher, interrogated on the subject in the Chamber, declares that he knows of no other version, recognizes no other, cares for no other, than the one inserted in the Moniteur. To this complexion have we come at last.

The Constitutionnel, almost the only paper favoring revision in Louis Napoleon's behalf, is also almost the only journal expressing
