Gridley was elected Secretary. The Convention thereupon elected Jacob Stein as the Delegate from the Ward at large. The Convention being thus organized, proceeded to elect five Delegates to represent this Ward in the District Convention to be composed of Delegates from the VIIIth and IXth Wards.

And thereupon the following persons were unanimously chosen delegates from this Ward to nominate a Police and Civil Justice, viz:

☞ To the Eighth and Ninth Wards, and CITIZENS GENERALLY.—EXPOSITION of FACTS.—On WEDNESDAY EVENING, Oct. 8, I was at Charles Abel's, in Broadway, when Philip Case approached me, and requested me to see him in private, and then stated that he was authorized to say to me that if I would secure the Nomination of James T. M. Bleakley for Police Justice, by carrying the Delegations in the VIIIth and IXth Wards, that I should be fully paid for it, and after further conversation, the sum of $600 was named. He stated that he was authorized by Andrew Bleakley and James W. Booth to offer this, and that they were then waiting to see me on the corner of Grand st. and Broadway. I went there and met those persons. They offered that sum to me. Booth then stated that he would pay me $250, and being short of money, he would pay me the balance afterward. I said that I would not answer (meaning at that time) under no circumstances, to sustain an unworthy and unfit man, who has disgraced the position he now occupies. I never will give any support to a bad man, a dishonest man, a corrupt man, where honesty and integrity are indispensable. I left them. Subsequently Andrew Bleakley met me in Varick-st alone, between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning, and offered me $600 down if I would sustain his brother, James T. M. Bleakley. I looked at Andrew, and thought of the past. Of the Street Inspector, and of the reason why he had to leave that place of the Judge, who had distinguished himself in his administration, by injustice and wrong, serving always his animal and personal ends, utterly regardless of the rights of others. I repelled that offer. He and his brother and their friends had not money enough to buy my support toward placing a venal man in a position where he had the power, as we knew he had the malice, to throw suspicion upon the character of those who could not conscientiously support him. Harvey Hart was a party to throwing the ballot-box out of the window, six minutes before 8 o'clock, at No. 47 Howard st. When such men, who had themselves hired forces from every part of the city—had the far famed Short Boys under the lead of their most notorious champions, as well as street sweepers, lamplighters, and dung and dirt cartmen, as well as Charley Miller and other bully friends from the XVIIIth Ward, and from every other Ward except the VIIIth, were gathered as Bleakley's friends, to the exclusion of the actual Whig voters of the Ward, whom their bullies, when they could, prevented from voting—when such men talk, or write, or publish assaults upon others, the public will know it is intended as a cloud of smoke, under cover of which they expect to escape from the odium which should attach to those who are themselves under the guise of hypocrisy and church professions, but actually a mass of political corruption; and who have again and again offered to me and to others money and their after influence, if we would defraud the Whigs of the Ward and the District of their rights at Primary and other elections.—New-York, Oct. 10, 1851.
o11 1t* WILLIAM POOLE.

☞ To the Whigs of the Eighteenth Ward.—A majority of the Inspectors appointed by the Joint Democratic Whig Committees of the Eighteenth Ward, to inspect the Primary Election held at the corner of 4th-av. and 22d-st, on the 9th inst., beg leave to submit the following statement of facts:

The Polls opened at 8 o'clock A. M., and proceeded orderly and quietly until 8½ o'clock, when the Polls were virtually taken possession of by a gang of notorious fighting men from different Wards, who retained possession until the close of the election, allowing those only to vote who carried a certain ticket. Hundreds of well-known Whig citizens and voters of the Ward were literally driven from the Polls. Under these circumstances, the undersigned declare that the following ticket was duly elected by a large majority of the Whig voters of the Ward:

PUBLISHED THIS MORNING, THE MOST HUMOROUS BOOK EVER PRINTED.

THE LIFE OF DAN. MARBLE, with Reminiscenses, Comicalities, Anecdotes, &c., &c. By Falconbridge, author of "Provincial Drama," "Scenes in Prairie Land," etc., etc. Beautifully embellished with original designs on plate paper, and an illustrated cover, designed by Croome, and engraved by N. Orr. Price 50 cents.

No man in this country can do up Yankee comicalities, anecdotes, &c., in which lay Dan's great forte, better than he so well known under the sobriquet of "Falconbridge," and well, we think, has he maintained his former high reputation.

Few men, while living, boasted a larger circle of friends than he whose Memoir is here presented; and few men, dead, are more often quoted as authority for "Yarn," "Joke," or "Story," than he whose Comicalities are here recorded. He "was a man of infinite jest," and the public owe much to "Falconbridge" for preserving, "hunting up," and perpetuating many of those inimitable daguerreotypes of Yankee character, which would otherwise have descended to the tomb along with their successful delineator.

The Engravings are well drawn and exceedingly comic, and taken in connection with the mirth-provoking text, which they serve to illustrate, render the book a decided exorciser of all "Devils"—be they blue spirits or gray—and from its superior efficacy and cheapness we would certainly give it the preference over the "Bell, Book and Candle," which our worthy old ancestors so implicitly relied on.

CHAPTER IV.

The standard of womanhood to be taken from the noblest types of the sex—Girls trained in reference to marriage—Men and women often unadapted to marriage—Property confers dignity.

CHAPTER V.

Woman occupies a false position—She would be dissociated from labor in a true state of society—At present her affections are a barter for rank
