We understand there will be no preaching at the Methodist church Sunday night, as Rev. Gilmore has not yet sufficiently recovered from the injuries received in the tumble from the hay loft last Friday.

A family reunion was held the first of this week at the home of Mrs. Young, northeast of Nemaha. Mrs. Young's sister, Mrs. Minick, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and her brothers, Eli Corn, of Salem, Nebr., Jasper Corn, of White Cloud, Kansas, and Jonathan Corn, of Clifton, Washington county, Kansas, all met together for the first time in many years. Only one member of the family, a sister living at Rockport, Mo., was absent.

We notice that J. D. Calhoun has recently started another paper, this time at Tampa, Florida. "Cal" doesn't feel healthy unless he is editing a paper. He published the Brownville Democrat, now the Auburn Granger, in the late '60's and until 1872, when he went to Bloomington, then just started, and began the publication of the Guard. Since then he has held positions on several Lincoln and Beatrice papers, has published the Bloomington Echo, Lincoln Call and Herald, and has started one or two papers in the south. He is a born newspaper man.

The law suit brought by J. H. Broady against Bud Stockton and others for possession of the sand bar northeast of town was decided last Friday night in favor of Broady. This land is the accretion formed on the banks, gradually extending out into the river until several hundred acres were formed. This joined on to the land owned by Judge Broady and Enoch Haneline. Bud Stockton and others went on this accreted land and have been farming it for several years, claiming it was public land. Broady finally brought suit for possession. The first suit was tried last fall, resulting in a victory for Broady. A new trial was granted, and the second trial, decided last Friday night, also resulted in a victory for the judge.

A very enjoyable surprise was given Mrs. N. E. Morrison, mother of E. S. Morrison, on her sixty-fifth birthday a few days ago. Several of her old friends and neighbors were invited to a sumptuous dinner prepared by her daughter-in-law, Ed's wife, which old ladies are usually able to test. Mrs. Strain, Grandma Sayles, Mrs. Herb Minick, Mrs. Titus, Mrs. John Hoover, Mrs. Wm. Hawxby, Mrs. Vanmeter and Mrs. Cenner were the guests. It was a complete surprise to Mrs. Morrison who thought it was so nice that they all happened together on the same day, when some one said they guessed it was her birthday, and of course they all laughed. When evening came several nice presents were given and many kind wishes were said. They all departed for home feeling that they had had a very pleasant and enjoyable time. ONE WHO WAS THERE.
