Having (nearly completed) a steam engine of eighty horse power, with stamp works of the largest class, and possessing a mine which has proved to be one of the most valuable in the State of California, located in the immediate vicinity of the City of Sonora, on Wood's Creek, it is the purpose of the Trustees to prosecute the work with vigor and without delay, with a view to profit from the business of mining. The enterprise commends itself to the particular attention and confidence of capitalists. It is deemed unnecessary to enter into a calculation as to probable profits, it having been satisfactorily demonstrated that Yein Mining is to be the great business of California, and that companies already in operation with good machinery have been eminently successful.

The Trustees have determined that the employees of the Company in all responsible positions shall be shareholders, selected with special regard to fitness, and required to give bonds with sureties, and in such sums as may be deemed sufficient to guard the interests of the Company; and further, that none but well-tried and approved machinery for crushing and amalgamating shall be used, and that experiments of a costly nature, which heretofore have proved so disastrous to the interests of companies, shall be carefully avoided and provided against.

☞ A Special Meeting of Excelsior Engine Co. No. 2 was held at the Engine House on Saturday evening, Feb. 21, 1852. Present all the members and a large majority of the honorary members of the Company.

The Foreman presented a communication, giving an account of the melancholy accident that has so suddenly deprived us of a beloved associate, our late Assistant Foreman, WILLIAM M. JOHNSTON, whereupon the following preamble and resolutions were offered by our honorary member, Samuel P. Titus, and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty Goodness to call home thus suddenly from our midst our late much esteemed associate and Assistant Foreman, WILLIAM M. JOHNSTON, while yet in the morning of life, full of strength and vigor; and whereas, the members of this Company ever entertained a high respect for him as a man, enhanced by his faithful and efficient services for the past three years, as their Treasurer, Secretary and Assistant Foreman, and feel most sorrowfully this sudden bereavement; yet, trusting that our loss is his gain, we humbly bow to this, to us inscrutable decree, and in so doing would express our heartfelt sympathy with those to whom the golden bowl is indeed broken and the silver cord loosened—with his family—with that father and mother, of whose declining years he was indeed a prop and a stay; but most of all with her who so lately at the altar became his through sickness or health, through weal or woe; and in this trying dispensation through which they have thus suddenly to pass, this severing, as it were, the very life cords of the heart, we remember while tendering to them our deepest sympathy, and while mingling our sorrows with theirs, that He "whose mercies are fresh every morning" ever chasteneth whom he loveth, and that in his merciful kindness "the rod is always tempered to the sheep's lamb."

Resolved, That this Company will meet at the Engine House on MONDAY next, Feb. 23, at 1½ o'clock P.M., for the purpose of paying the last sad tribute of respect to our departed associate.

Resolved, That our apparatus and meeting room be shrouded with the usual emblems of mourning, and that we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That as an additional token of respect, the office of Assistant Foreman be and is hereby declared vacant until our next annual meeting.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing, duly authenticated, be signed by the Foreman and Secretary and transmitted to the widow and family of the deceased.
GEORGE C. BAKER, Foreman.
CHARLES GRIFFEN, Secretary.

COUNT MONTE-LEONE; Or, THE SPY IN SOCIETY. A Romance of the Carbonari of France and Italy. Translated from the French of H. DE SAINT GEORGES.
With Illustrations. Price 50 cents.

"The scene of this exciting romance is laid in France and Italy, and in the stirring times which immediately succeeded, or rather witnessed, the downfall of the Bonaparte dynasty in France, Spain, Naples, and wherever else Napoleon had thought fit to place upon the head of a member of his family a despot's crown. Intrigue and martial adventure, love, conspiracy, crime, and vengeance, all accordant, however, in their main features, with historical fact, crowd the pages of this highly dramatic and powerfully written work. It will compare, we think, with the most popular stories and legends of Dumas, and they will be termed the 'counterpart of Monte Cristo.' The translation is admirable, and we have no doubt that the book will have a tremendous run." [Morning Star.

TOWER OF LONDON!—Immense sale of it. With one hundred Engravings!

A second edition of this, the most popular book ever printed in cheap book form, will be published and for sale this afternoon. We advise all persons to get it and read it. One engraving in it, the full view of the Tower of London in 1553, is worth the price of the work alone.

Hear what the Press say of it:

"The publisher announces this as the only complete edition ever puplished. It contains a view of the Tower, and is embellished with ninety-eight illustrations, designed and engraved by Cruikshank. As a historical novel it will command attention and may be read with profit. The matter alone is doubly worth the price of the volumes." [Dollar Newspaper.

"One of the greatest historical novels out. A continued succession of scenes and characters; invested with all the interest that can excite the human mind, from gentlest sympathy to intensest passion, whether of love or hate. I is the master work of Ainsworth, written, for the most part, on and about the localities with which it deals; and as we may suppose, with the very shadows of the ghostly inhabitors of London town in the olden time, hovering about him. The very view of the Tower of London in the year 1553, is worth the price of the two volumes. The giant Magog's courtship shows that the author, in satirical and the gay cavalier style, is as much at ease as when wiping off the dust from some obscure epitaph, or delineating in powerful and exquisite imagery, Lady Jane Grey's first night in the Tower." WALKS AND TALKS OF AN AMERICAN FARMER IN ENGLAND. By Fred. Olmsted. Forming the third volume of Putnam's Semi-monthly Library. 12mo., with Engravings on wood. Price 25 cents.

"This is the fourth, we believe, of Mr. Putnam's Semi-monthly Library; and although Dickens and Hood have preceded the farmer-author, we doubt not that this will be the most popular yet published of the series. The book is plain, unaffected and direct in its style; simple, not from an assumption of simplicity, but from the habit of the writer's mind to speak exactly what he thinks and feels, exactly as he thinks and feels it. His 'walks' have been in out-of-the-way places, and his 'talks' are replete with keen perception and sagacious observation, which he seices with humor of the richest. That these beautifully printed books are sold for 25 cents is the marvel of modern literature." [Courier and Enquirer. 21f 2t
