JUDSON CONSIDERS LIGHTING SCHEME

Commissioner Says New System Is Forthcoming.

The District Commissioners have under consideration a scheme whereby Washington may obtain a better and cheaper street lighting system. Just what the scheme is, the Commissioners are keeping under cover.

Parties from the United States Geological Survey, upon the request of the Commissioners, are now making a preliminary survey of Great Falls to see if it will be practical to harness the falls so as to provide for a possible municipal electric lighting plant. If it is found to be feasible, the Commissioners will ask for an appropriation of $10,000 for a final survey, at the next session of Congress.

Commissioner Judson returned yesterday after an inspection of the lighting systems in various cities in the East. He would not discuss his lighting plans further than to say the District ought to be getting more light for the money it is expending. He expressed a strong opinion that the down-town section of the city ought to be brilliantly lighted.

Interest is being centered in the survey of Great Falls, and a report will be turned in to the Secretary of the Interior within a month.

Illinois Has 5,638,591.

According to statistics issued by the Census Bureau yesterday, the total population of the State of Illinois in 1910 is 5,638,591. This is a gain of 817,041, or 16.9 per cent, over the population of 1900, which was 4,821,550.
