Between 25 and 30 of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Barker gave them a pleasant surprise last Friday night. Mrs. Barker went to prayer meeting and Pres was detained down town by some of his friends who were in the secret. When they got home they found the house in possession of their friends, who had already begun to prepare the oyster soup and get ready for supper. A very pleasant evening was spent.

The Christian Sunday school gave a supper in the Vanderslice building Tuesday night and of course we attended—we always go where there is something good to eat if we get an opportunity. They gave a great big supper of chicken, meat, potatoes, salad, beans, pie, cake, and coffee, and other good things all for only 15 cents. They also had oysters, but we indulged in the general supper—that suits us best. George Hartwig was eating when we got there and was eating when we left the table, so we judge the supper met with his approval also.

DON'T FORGET

That we are going to have lots of cold weather, and now is the time to buy Comforts, Blankets, Underwear, and goods of that description.

The wife of Chas. H. Bohl, living on the old Church Howe farm east of Howe, died at 2 o'clock a. m. Friday, and the little one for whose coming she had looked forward so fondly did not live to miss the mother's care. Mother and son were laid in one coffin. Brief funeral services were held at the home Saturday, conducted by Rev. G. W. Ayers, and the bodies were then taken to Lincoln for burial. Mr. and Mrs. Bohl were married on March 12, 1907. The young husband is almost heartbroken over his great loss.
