BITS OF GOOD READING.

Stray Items of General Interest Clipped from the Various Exchanges.

Only twelve Indians are left of the tribe of 1,000 who inhabited the Yosemite valley but a few years ago.

A Chinaman arrested in San Francisco carried a revolver which was heavily plated with silver and set with rubies.

Archaeologists have traced the wedding ring to the earliest times. It has been made of gold, silver, copper, brass, iron, tin, pewter, lead, bone and wood.

The harbor at Charleston used to abound in black fish, but none are caught there now, and it is believed that the earthquakes have scared them away.

It is a pink season in Washington. Pink menu cards are used; ices come in pink roses set in real rose leaves of green; and the ladies wear pink corals.

The empress of Austria has been recommended to try the new health clothing for rheumatism, from which she suffers, but she prefers imperial purple silk with lace trimmings.

The king of the Belgians has recently insured his own private property in the royal palaces at Brussels and at Laeken for £350,000. This property consists of furniture, pictures, plate, objects of art, and china.

It is now possible for a traveler to go direct by rail from the City of Mexico to British Columbia, a distance of 6,000 miles. This has been made possible by the recent completion of the California and Oregon railway.

A census has been begun of the French carrier pigeons. They are regarded now as of such importance in the event of war that all owners are obliged to report their pigeons under a maximum fine of 2,000 francs.

Buzzards in Mississippi devour vast quantities of carrion and hence are valuable as scavengers. The law against killing them is strict, the penalty for violating it being $15. The birds are therefore very plentiful and tame.

A member of the Duke of Norfolk's mission took his wife to Rome, but was at once obliged to relegate her to another hotel, as the Vatican etiquette, which is very strict, requires that no woman shall be included in, or connected with, any mission to the pope.

The British are rapidly pushing their India railway system in Afghanistan. Bostan, a point twenty-five miles beyond Quetta, to which a railway is open for traffic, has become an emporium of Cashmere. In a single week recently 500 tons of dried fruit, wool, and merchandise were brought there for carriage to India.

It is said that the ambition of the life of Mme. Boucinat, the great Paris shopkeeper, was to receive the cross of the Legion of Honor, but she always refused to intrigue for it or to buy it, hoping to earn it. The recent scandals, showing how empty was the honor that she sought, was a great blow to her, and she at once gave up her longing for the decoration.

The diamond mining companies of South Africa, which number about ninety, propose to form a gigantic combination that will control the whole diamond territory. The object, of course, is to increase the price, which has been reduced by the enormous production of that region. It is estimated that there are about $1,000,000,000 worth of diamonds now in use, one-half of which came from the African fields.

The papers and public of the two capitals of Austria and Belgium were much excited the other day at the report of an accident which had befallen Archduchess Stephanie. Some lumps had become loose, and she wanted to fix them with her own hands and a hot iron. But those hands not being used to rough work the iron burned the skin and did not fix the lumps. An ugly burn over the eye was the result of the mishap.

A Romantic Story.

A story is told in Brooklyn society of the sudden appearance of a former resident with a large diamond and an ambition, equally glittering, to marry a former sweetheart, if he could. He had been to Australia, made a pile, and was coming back to stay long enough to get a wife, give her the diamond, marry her, and take her back there. Unfortunately, the girl of his choice was engaged and about to marry. The Australian went sadly away without having shown his diamond, and in a day or two he gave it to another old acquaintance. Then he called upon the lady of his choice to bid her good-by, and she told him that she had been thinking the matter over, and had found that she loved him better than she loved the man to whom she was engaged. Back went the young man to the girl to whom he had made a present of his diamond and persuaded her to give it to him and to take its worth in money or in another jewel. He then took the diamond to the girl for whom it was intended, and she became his wife and they have sailed for Australia.—New York Sun.

A Trunk Full of Dynamite.

There's a young man in town who has a whole trunk full of dynamite in his room, and a good many persons are anxious lest he should let the stuff explode. Some of them are miles away, too. This dynamite consists of a few hundred letters written by members of the great whisky ring ten or a dozen years ago. "In the lot," says the young man, "are letters which would make a great sensation if published even at this late day. But they'll not be published. What am I keeping them for? I don't know. Nothing, I suppose. Yet how could a fellow go and destroy a lot of letters like that? I haven't the heart to do it."—Chicago Herald.

Partridges in the Snow.

In the northern states the ruffed grouse, commonly known as partridges, have a habit of nesting down in the snow, and hunters say they do so to keep warm. In Oxford county, Me., a man was passing through a wood lot and was startled to see a bird start almost under his feet and fly away. Looking carefully ahead of him he saw a dozen or more black specks on the snow. Closer inspection proved that each of these was the head of a partridge. The birds sat quite still until he was almost near enough to touch them, then shook themselves free from the light snow and flew hurriedly away.—Chicago Herald.

The Cat's Medicine.

A cat that had the appearance of being sick entered a drug store at Van Buren, Mo., and began gnawing at a paper package of medicine. On examination it was found that the package contained opium. A quantity of it was poured on the floor, and the spectators were surprised to see the cat eat freely of the dry leaves and then lie down and wallow in them. The cat had repeated its visit to the drug store every day since, and has taken medicine regularly, the result of which is that it is rapidly recovering.—Chicago Herald.

Requipes for the Emir.

The Emir of Afghanistan has ordered 300 lapinets. It is not stated what lapinets are, but the object may be in ordering so large a consignment of these eccentric instruments.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Louise Michel is sick and in need of money. Prince Krapotkin is lecturing for her benefit.

Mrs. George Gould has a white ostrich feather fan, inlaid with gold and diamonds, which cost $1,000.

Dr. Merriam, of North Adams, Mass., goes sleigh riding in a sleigh that was made for his great-great-grandfather in 1683, and has been in the Merriam family ever since.

In 1829 Butcher Paschke began business in Berlin. On Dec. 2 he killed his 200,000th goose, which, suitably celebrate the occasion, was specially fattened, and afterward eaten with great ceremony.

Prince Chun, the father of the reigning emperor of China, is not dead, as was reported in the cable dispatch some weeks ago, but merely suffering from a passing indisposition, due to a treatment of powdered otter's liver, to which he had been subjected by his native medical attendant. An English physician of the name of Dr. Manson has now been summoned from Hong Kong to take charge of the case of his imperial highness, this being the first occasion on which a foreign doctor has ever attended a member of the imperial family of China.

The widow of the late Henry Ward Beecher has devoted herself to writing since Mr. Beecher's death. In addition to assisting in the preparation of his "Life and Letters," she has written many excellent newspaper articles. One of them argues, with great good sense and ability, against familiarity. The gospel of reserve, that reserve necessary to the dignity of certain self-contained souls, and which well meaning but stupid friends so often outrage, was never better preached. Mrs. Beecher is herself a lady into the depths of whose feeling, it is plain to be seen, neither friend nor stranger should try to enter uninvited. Such persons appear cold to the majority of others, because they have a dignity of soul which commonplace minds cannot understand.

Although his friends have known it for a long time, it seems to have just been made public that Mr. Amos R. Eno, alone and unassisted, refunded the entire amount of his son's deficit to the Second National bank, writing his check for $2,945,000. The $47,500 advanced by Mr. William Walter Phelps for this purpose was returned to him with interest by Mr. Eno. Mr. Phelps disclaims any credit he may have got from the press for his part in this transaction, Mr. Eno being the sole loser by his son's conduct. While Mr. Eno could well afford to refund this money, it was not incumbent upon him in law or equity. He did it of his own free will and accord because he believed it to be the right thing for him to do; and it may be truly said that few men, no matter what their bank account, would have acted with such noble generosity, particularly as by so doing he could not save his family from the mortification of a public scandal. Mr. Amos Eno is a remarkable man in many ways.

In the first place he amassed his large fortune, which is estimated at from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, by his own exertions, having come to New York without a dollar in his pocket. When he began to earn money he put it into real estate up around Broadway and Twenty-third street, which was then pretty far out of town. Now in his old age he amuses himself with reading and studying. Within the last three or four years he has taught himself Italian, which, though he hesitates to speak, he understands perfectly, and can read as readily as English.

The German Crown Princess.

"The German crown princess," says Dr. Morell Mackenzie, "is a model nurse, having all her feelings under strict control and suffering without making any sign. I do not think I can be accused of flunkeyism, but it is the simple truth that she is the most remarkable woman I have ever met. Her knowledge of science is something quite extraordinary, and she is now thoroughly posted in the pathology and surgery of the larynx. I consider that very few medical men—not specialists—would be able to acquit themselves satisfactorily if examined on these subjects by the crown princess. She discussed the opinions of all the physicians and the various suggestions for treatment, criticizing each with the most perfect knowledge and judgment. Yet there is no speck of 'blue' about her. Her manner, when she cares to please, has no indescribable fascination about it, which makes one understand the devoted feeling of personal loyalty that has sometimes been felt for princesses. I can only say that if all royal personages were like this exalted lady and her gallant husband, republicanism would soon be an extinct tradition."—Boston Transcript.

The Maharajah's Benevolence.

The Maharajah of Darbhanga, Bengal, has established, in connection with Lady Dufferin's medical aid for women fund, a hospital and dispensary for women at a cost to himself of more than $25,000. This benevolent nobleman, during the past eight years, has expended in philanthropic works fully $1,700,000, including the building and endowment of three hospitals and twenty-three schools, the opening of 150 miles of roads, and the execution of irrigation works at a cost of $350,000. When he was made a K. C. S. I. he remitted $150,000 of rents to his tenants. In 1882 he canceled all arrears due him in his dominions, amounting to over $625,000, and in 1885 he remitted $155,000 more. To the Benares drainage works he contributed $50,000. He is, as might be supposed, a highly educated man, a fine English scholar, and a most loyal supporter of the British empire.—New York Tribune.

Illustrating the Different Religions.

Great progress is being made with the building of a museum near the Trocadero palace, in Paris, for the exhibition of the magnificent collection formed by M. Guimet, at Lyons, to illustrate the different religions of the world. In one wing of the museum will be the Japanese divinities and the Mandara, a kind of Japanese Olympus; the Egyptian divinities and collections of Japanese porcelain, while the galleries which face the Avenue d'Iena will contain the divinities of China, India, Greece, Italy and Gaul. In another wing not yet built will be exhibited the divinities of Africa, Oceania, etc., while in another part of the building will be studies for the use of persons employed to translate Indian, Chinese and Japanese manuscripts.—Chicago News.

The Britannia, of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation company's line, has just made the passage from Brindisi to Australia—including detention in Egypt waiting the mails, the detour to Ceylon, and detention there for thirty-six hours—in twenty-three days and ten hours—a continuous speed at sea for 8,000 miles of, within a fraction, sixteen knots per hour.

Lord Tennyson's Dairy.

As a dairyman Lord Tennyson seems to be a success. The demands on the production of the Tennyson dairy, and this is not said to be a recognition of poetical genius but of the vegetable excellence of the butter, milk and cream.—Chicago News.
