CONSOLED AT LAST.

He Didn't Like the East, but He Got Satisfaction. He came up to me as I stood eating roast chestnuts in Bleeker street, and after a remark about the weather he led off with: "Say! Is there any place in this town where a feller can be made to feel at home?" "That's according to the feller." "Well, a feller like me. Say! I've been here a whole week today, and this town makes me tired. I thought a feller could have a heap o' fun here, but he can't. It's just a big old town without any ruffles or lace trimming. You been here long?" "About six months." "Come from the west?" "Yes." "And you are living yet! Well, I swan! Say! Don't you miss something here—don't you miss that hilarious, good naturedness of the great and glorious west?" "How do you mean?" "How? Why, man, I'd give a ten dollar bill for the privilege of walking up to somebody and slapping him on the back and asking him to go and take a nip with me! I'm just aching to call somebody 'old man,' and to find a place where all the boys get together in the evening and he about how many Indians they've killed, and how cold it was up in the mountains last winter. How do you manage to stand it?" "Oh, I get along all right." "But I'll bet it worries you; of course it does. But you've lost two pounds a week since you came here. Say! You don't know of any such place as I spoke of, do you?" "I can't say that I do." "I expect not. People altogether different, you know. Have to keep a restraint on ourselves all the time. I suppose, Landst! but how I would like to stand on the corner and yell just once! Will you back me up if I do?" "I wouldn't try it if I were you." "No, I don't dare to. I suppose it would start a riot. Say! You are from the west?" "Yes." "Shake! You probably pulled a pop and killed somebody out west and don't go back. That's why you are here; that's why you stay. Feel mighty sorry for you, old man. If there's anything I can do let me know." "I don't think of anything." "Well, I do. Say! I know you are just dying for that hilarious freedom of the great west. You look as lonesome as a coyote forty miles from home. Turn around and pretend not to see me." "What are you going to do?" "Bring the glad old days back to you fur about a minute—make you think you've taken a sudden fly back to old Montana. Stand still. Now, then, whoopee! old man—let's hicker!" He brought the flat of his right hand down upon my back in a way to loosen a dozen pairs of lungs and to knock me clean over a barrel of oil, and his yell brought twenty men around us before I could get up. He uttered two more whoops, picked me up, extended his hand with a grin and said: "I feel like a new man! Seems like old times again! Come on around the corner and thump me and yell in my ear, and I'll warrant it'll make a new man of you! Whoop! Thump me hard and yell like all creation!"—New York Evening World.

Transcendental Lextography.

and Mistress—Miss Balfour, I saw you as that Tablet boy. What is the meaning of that? Sweet Girl Undergraduate—I can spell it, Miss Grayson, but I can't define it. Life.

Overheard at the Club.

Mr. Fellows—Mr. Whitehead, what makes you look so despondent this evening? Mr. Whitehead—Well, Fellows, the fact is, I'm in trouble. I've been contesting my wife's will. Mr. F.—Your wife's will? Why, I didn't know your wife was dead. Mr. W.—Dead! No. That's what makes the contest so hard.—Boston Budget.

What He Had Lost.

Old Bullion—Ah, my boy, I often long for the good old times. Friend—That's very strange. You are rich now, but in those old days you were an overworked, barefooted plowboy on a farm. What had you then that you haven't now? Old Bullion (sadly)—An appetite.—Good News.

One Better.

Jacky—We had a thirteen pound turkey at our house yesterday. Jim—Oh, that's nawthin. We had one that weighed fifteen pounds. Jacky—I don't care if your old turkey was bigger. I'll bet you didn't have no doctor come to see you twice in the night, the way I did.—Boston Post.

The Dreadful Infant.

Tommy—Mr. Wilkinson, ain't you shaped just like other men? Mr. Wilkinson—I suppose so, Tommy. Why? Tommy—Papa says you ain't exactly square and Belle says you seem to be all ways round.—New York Herald.

A Large Following.

"What was the most successful funeral you ever saw?" "Well, I think the best attended one was that of a man who had spent most of his life practicing the cornet with his windows open."—Kate Field's Washington.

Too Much.

He—How happy both of us are! But how much happier we shall be when we are one! She—I don't know, Harry. Don't you think there will be too much happiness for one?—Boston Transcript.

His Wife Went Out.

Caller—Is your wife in, Mr. Nabor? Nabor—No, she has just run over to Mrs. Call's for five minutes. Can you spare the time to wait a couple of hours till she gets back?—Yankee Blade.

THE COTTON BLOSSOM CLUB.

Brother Gardner Talks Very Plainly to Judge Cahoots. When the regular Saturday night meeting had been opened in due form, Brother Gardner looked up and down the aisles of Watermelon hall and inquired: "Am Brudder Judge Cahoots in de hall dis evening?" The judge had just got his left brogan off to scratch a chilblain of the vintage of 1890, but he hastened to replace it and approach the platform.

"Judge Cahoots," said the president in fatherly tones, "I've dun heard dat yo' has decided to go to Baltimore to lib. Am dat so?" "Yes, sah."

"I've dun farder heard dat yo' was gwine to git married arter you git dar; am dat so?" "Yes, sah."

"We shall be a heap sorry to lose yo', Judge. Yo' is one of the original members of de ole Limekiln club, and yo' is one of de half dozen members who follered me down yere to New York. I hev knowed yo' for 'bout ten yers, an I've free to say I nebber knowed yo' to do anything mean."

The judge bowed his thanks and Brother Gardner continued: "Yo' haven't bin regarded as a shining light in dis club, I has nebber knowed you to make a speech, second a motion or move to adjourn. But yo' has de sense to keep yo' mouf shet an not show yo' ignorance, an dat counts a heap in yo' favor. Some men's silence is mout' dan older men's blab. I am sartin dat ebbery member of dis club will feel yo' absence when Saturday night comes round."

The judge bowed again, and was evidently affected.

"Now, Judge, yo' was gwine among strange people. Yo' will be a strange nigger in a strange land. Ize a fur older man dan yo' was, an I has trabbled about a good bit. I darfure want to gin yo' a leetle advice. In de first place, it will be known dat yo' cum from New York. Yo'll nacherally be proud of de fact yo'self. But doan let dat puff yo' up too high. Of co'se New York am a big town, an it's de metropolis of America, but some folks outside of it kin read an write an cipher just as well as we kin. Doan't go down dar to Baltimore wid de idean dat de inhabitants go to meetin barefut an wash deir hands wid soft soap."

"No, sah," humbly replied the judge. "As a New Yorker an a member of dis club, I kin't see how yo' kin advise me to do nothin but to admit him to my circus free of cost, yo' will hev a sartin dignity to maintain. Do it in a dignified way. De man who tries to pull up twenty rods of sidewalk to frow at a barkin dawg only one foot long suffers by comparison. Should a Baltimore nigger hit yo' in de head wid a cabbage as a sort of welcome doan go fur to runnin him cross lots an ober fences to git even. He's doan't let dat puff yo' up too high. Yo' kin't see how yo' kin advise me to do nothin but to admit him to my circus free of cost, yo' will hev a sartin dignity to maintain. Do it in a dignified way.
