MRS. MAILLARD'S NEW NOVEL,
MILES TREMENHERE,
OR THE LOVE TEST.
By Mrs. Maillard, author "Zingra the Gipsey," "The Compulsory Marriage," &c., &c. Elegantly illustrated and beautifully bound in cloth, 75 cents; neatly bound in paper, 50 cents. Uniform with "Model Flirtations."
The Publishers have the satisfaction of presenting, as the second volume of their Library of Standard Novels, a very uncommon and original production by the talented and popular authoress of "Zingra the Gipsey." On the appearance of the work in London it created a sensation in the literary circles second to no other fiction of the season. The English press paid the highest eulogy to its rare merits, and the American journals are no less unqualified in their praise of its superiority.
OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
From The Albany Argus.
"It is difficult to read a page in Miles Tremenhere with out perceiving that it is the production of an extraordinary mind. Its pictures all glow with life."
From The London Standard.
"This novel has produced upon us a favorable impression. There is more vigorous writing here, a clearer and more evident purpose, than are to be met with in any of the novels lately published."
From The Fredericksburg (Va.) News.
"There is a wonderful fascination in its story. Its truthfulness, its abhorrence from exaggeration, the Shakspeare-like gift of delineation of character (not the highest to the lowest—all are true). Its conciseness is one of its merits. As a work of true genius and unfailing interest, 'Miles Tremenhere' stands unrivaled."
From The News of the World, England.
"Miles Tremenhere is one of the cleverest books we have had this season."
From The Kingston (Canada) Chronicle & News.
"Miles Tremenhere is an extremely fascinating book. It is one to be read at a sitting, so well sustained throughout is its narrative and exciting plot."
From The Penn Yan Democrat.
"The characters are exquisitely drawn, and the individuality of each is preserved with a boldness and delicacy which strike the reader with surprise, and warn him that he is in the presence of pure and exalted genius."
From The Albany Transcript.
"Miles Tremenhere is really a great book—one of those which make an indelible impression upon the memory."
From The Lawrence (Mass.) Courier.
"Miles Tremenhere is an oasis in the broad waste of light literature, on which the tired reader may refresh himself."
From The Buffalo Fountain.
"We have not read so attractive a book in a long time. The moral which the author has tried to carry out is that 'good deeds bring nearing joys to our bosoms, nor sea nor cold water cast upon the earth'"
From The London Dispatch.
"Miles Tremenhere has created an unusual sensation. The critics are in rapture with it; and with good reason—the work is a chef d'œuvre."
From The Rutland (Vt.) Herald.
"This charming work will be read to the end with a relish of that truly delicious character so gratifying to the man of a healthy intellect and correct literary taste."
From The Worcester (Mass.) Argus.
"Miles Tremenhere is one of the best conceived and finest written books it has ever been our lot to read."
From The Buffalo Republic.
"Miles Tremenhere is a delineation from nature."
From the Worcester (Mass.) Palladium.
"Among a literally love stories which we ever had the pleasure of reading, "Miles Tremenhere" ranks among the first."

FRANK FAIRLEGH'S NEW BOOK.
HARRY COVERDALE'S COURTSHIP,
AND WHAT CAME OF IT.
By the Author of "Frank Fairlegh," "Lewis Arundel," &c.
Illustrated.
"HARRY COVERDALE'S COURTSHIP, AND WHAT CAME OF IT.—This new work by the author of 'Frank Fairlegh,' &c., is decidedly one of the best-written novels of the age. It is full of the most exquisite drawings of the human character, and the vein of quiet humor which pervades the work shows that the author is a close observer of his fellow-men—and women. Every person who desires a book to laugh or to weep over, will be satisfied with this." [Poughkeepsie Eagle.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
"It ought to be in the possession of every family; it would be of inestimable benefit in the preservation of health; but independently of the great value of its pages as a guide to physical and moral health, it is of a most attractive character. We never read a romance of more interest than the scenes in city practice by the editor. [Wing, Flint, Michigan.
"The Scalpel for May is filled with important papers on subjects vital to vigor of mind and body. 'Scenes in City Practice' is a chapter of most touching remembrances, and exhibits of reflection the strongest philanthropy to the ills. The grave, the gay, and the humorous mingle, and tell upon the reader to a great purpose." [Wadsworth Gazette.
"Why this publication should more profoundly interest a old man than any other, we cannot explain, unless it be that its pages overflow with life, feeling, power, and good sense." [Sun & Register, Newton, N. J.
"There is a vein of originality, a freshness and enthusiasm in the pages of the Scalpel, which lifts it above ordinary journals. The Doctor is a good writer, and the Editor handles his subjects as least Walton but the touch, and while we pity the victims we can not admire the spirit. Read the Scalpel and learn wisdom; read it, and be merry; read it, and in the fullness of sympathy are nourished up in your soul, your tears will take its name." [Herald, Paramus, Michigan.
"Beyond all some this is the best journal which it contains a perfect knowledge of human nature with excellent instruction and humor. It should come to the support of the entire community; its editor is doing more for the instruction of the community in the laws of health than any man in America." [Gold Dust, New-York.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
"It ought to be in the possession of every family; it would be of inestimable benefit in the preservation of health; but independently of the great value of its pages as a guide to physical and moral health, it is of a most attractive character. We never read a romance of more interest than the scenes in city practice. [Wing, Flint, Michigan.
"The Scalpel for May is filled with important papers on subjects vital to vigor of mind and body. 'Scenes in City Practice' is a chapter of most touching remembrances, and exhibits of reflection the strongest philanthropy to the ills. The grave, the gay, and the humorous mingle, and tell upon the reader to a great purpose." [Wadsworth Gazette.
"Why this publication should more profoundly interest a old man than any other, we cannot explain, unless it be that its pages overflow with life, feeling, power, and good sense." [Sun & Register, Newton, N. J.
"There is a vein of originality, a freshness and enthusiasm in the pages of the Scalpel, which lifts it above ordinary journals. The Doctor is a good writer, and the Editor handles his subjects as least Walton but the touch, and while we pity the victims we can not admire the spirit. Read the Scalpel and learn wisdom; read it, and be merry; read it, and in the fullness of sympathy are nourished up in your soul, your tears will take its name." [Herald, Paramus, Michigan.
"Beyond all some this is the best journal which it contains a perfect knowledge of human nature with excellent instruction and humor. It should come to the support of the entire community; its editor is doing more for the instruction of the community in the laws of health than any man in America." [Gold Dust, New-York.
