☞ The following Circular has been issued to the Exhibitors at the Crystal Palace:

OFFICE OF THE ASSOCIATION FOR THE EXHIBITION OF THE INDUSTRY OF ALL NATIONS,
No. 8, CRYSTAL PALACE, New-York, October 31, 1853.

To ——, Exhibitor in Class No. —:

Referring you to the circulars heretofore issued by this Association, I address you to say that after the first of December next, you may, if you desire it, withdraw the articles which you now have on exhibition, and make such disposition of them as you see fit.

As to the formalities to be observed in regard to withdrawal, information in detail will be given at this Office.

We have, however, in addition to say, that in consequence of the delay of the opening of the Exhibition, and of the general desire expressed by the Exhibitors and the public, that the Exhibition should not close at so early a period as that above named, we have determined to prolong it during the winter, and into the next season, to such time as shall be hereafter decided upon, and with such intermission (if any) as may hereafter be thought expedient.

For this purpose, arrangements are now being made to warm the Building.

You have now had sufficient opportunity to learn, from your own observation, the character of this enterprise, and the mode of its management, and to decide how far it will meet your views to continue your cooperation in the important objects which we have endeavored to accomplish.

Our aim has been to produce such an Exhibition of the Art and Industry of the World, as cannot fail to be productive of great and beneficial results; as cannot fail to bring together in closer connection the active intellects of countries separated by distance and by language; to create mutual regard and mutual dependence; to raise the standard of Taste, and to keep warm the love of Art.

The Exhibitors in the Palace can better than any persons judge to what extent these objects have been attained. We are required to be assured by the gratified thousands who daily visit the Exhibition, that the substantial success of our enterprise is completely assured, and that, thanks to the cooperation of the Exhibitors we have been successful in making a display of the Art and Industry of the World, such as was never before witnessed among us, such as cannot fail to be of great permanent utility.

The advantages likely to result from the existence of an Establishment in this City, where all that is novel or useful in invention, all that is beautiful in Art, the choicest products of the skill and genius of either Hemisphere, can be exhibited for the instruction and delight of the active and inquiring minds of our people, seem to us so apparent, that we do not believe it necessary to urge further arguments to recommend the idea to those who have shown, so well understand the wants and interests of the producing classes.

In regard to our arrangements for the future, it is important for us to make them at once; and at the same time, in making those arrangements, we deem ourselves under obligations to give you a proof evidence if you see fit to avail yourselves of it. We proposed, therefore, to apprise you in writing, on or before the first of January next, by letter addressed to L. C. STUART, Art Jury, Acting Secretary, Crystal Palace, New-York, whether you desire to retain the space now occupied by you, for the prolongation of the Exhibition.

If you notify us in the affirmative, we shall understand you as agreeing to keep the space you now have filled with the same articles, or, belonging to the same class as those you now have on exhibition, and at least of equal excellence, with the liberty on your part, to make occasional changes; and, as also agreeing to occupy your space by such time during the course of the next year as the Association shall see fit (notice of which will be given you), and to permit the Association to use the space in each case to determine, subject, however, to your right to vacate your entire space at any time upon giving sixty days' notice of your intention so to do. If you omit to notify us by the first of January, as above stated, we shall assume that the you do not desire to remain, and shall, after that day, proceed to allot your space to other parties.

It is proper to state that in future the Association does not intend to pay either freight or marine insurance on any goods hereafter imported from abroad.

In regard to fire, after the first of January, 1854, the Association will not continue to effect insurance on the property of Exhibitors. After that date, Exhibitors can, if they think necessary, make such insurance for their own protection. Fire insurance can at all times be effected on property in the building at reasonable rates. In relation to articles of Art in marble, bronze, or zinc, mosaics, and oil paintings, the Association will, however, make an exception and will insure property of this description not insured by individual owners, and if furnished with a proper description and valuation for the purpose.

The Association will continue to provide such police force and attendance as in their judgment shall be sufficient for the cleanliness and safety of the building, and of the articles exhibited. The Exhibitors may, with the consent of the Superintendent, employ special agents at their own expense.

We wish also to inform you that henceforth Exhibitors may, in all cases, if they wish it, affix prices to the articles they have in the Building.

We have yet to repeat the information heretofore given you, that the Association has no interest, direct or indirect, in the sale or other final disposition of the articles on exhibition; and that our only desire on this head, is that in selecting their agents and in making their arrangements with those agents to receive and dispose of their property, the Exhibitors should consult their own interest and convenience.

It is a source of the greatest pleasure to the Association, that the intercourse and connection between its officers and the Exhibitors has been so entirely harmonious; that so many minds and characters, representing such various interests, composed of such different elements, have worked together so steadily and quietly to the great result.

For your contributions to the Exhibition, and the cooperation it has received from you, he pleased to accept the cordial thanks of the Association.

I am, with great respect, your obedt.
