TWO HUNDRED SUCCESSIVE NIGHTS, and received with the most lively satisfaction and unpalliated applause by more than

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND CITIZENS of New England.

It represents Southern Negro

SLAVERY AS IT IS.

Exposing all its abhorrent deformities, its cruelties and barbarities.

It does nothing extensively or set down aught in malice; while it does not flatter, and unjustly elevate the negro above the white race in intellect or morals.

It exhibits a true picture of Negro life in the South, instead of shamefully representing the greatest slave so possessed of all the points of the Greek god, and the refinement of the educated white.

And instead of making every the poor negro to be happy the earlier he whines, and sighs for the gospel, and suffering, laborious and deprivating conditions, and all for the sole purpose of showing the benefits of Slavery, and the happiness by the hand of Hope who watches over all.

It is a work that Science finds with

FACTS INSTEAD OF FICTION

It appeals to citizens instead of the governor, and to be so ready to have provided their own comfort, and the comfort of the slave will be more secondary than it is, and of all those based upon humanitarian sentiment and religious feelings.

In the FIFTEEN EPISODES of the work, at 8 o'clock, is presented a startling and constant performance, for which see the bills of the day.
