

Mrs. Ava W. Astor

AVA WILLING ASTOR IS WILLING TO WED AGAIN.

Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, once the wife of Colonel John Jacob Astor, married William Lehman A. Inwood Bartlett Burdett-Coutts—some name there! she will complete the international marriage records, for Mr. Burdett-Coutts is an Englishman who was born in America. He has been a member of parliament for about a quarter of a century. His father was a baronet of Plymouth, Mass., and his mother was an Ashmole of Philadelphia. He married the Baroness Burdett-Coutts and assumed her name, just as he seems to have retained the name of both his parents. The baroness left him a large fortune. Mrs. Astor, who was Ava Willing of Philadelphia before the young Jack Astor of New York millions won her, divorced her first husband a few years ago. She still is a reigning beauty and quite popular in society. The rumor of her engagement to Mr. Burdett-Coutts, who is a writer and a philanthropist as well as a parliamentarian, is going the international rounds.

OPPORTUNITY

It is rare that an improved up-to-date farm in one half mile of Sumter, S. C. city limit is offered for sale at a low price, but as I have concluded to quit farming and look after some of my other interests. I am willing to sacrifice it.

Farm contains 195 acres, has a nice clear spring water stream on one edge of place and public school in ten feet of line, four two room tenant houses, two three room tenant houses, one six room tenant house, one five room tenant house, one very large barn two stories about 30x130 built extra heavy and covered inside with corrugated galvanized iron, both floors are tongue and groove flooring, contains about 60,000 feet of lumber. Also several smaller houses and out buildings.

About seventy five acres has heavy wire fence around it and a good road paved in on edge of branch. I predict it will sell very shortly while before this price will change, as there is now a movement for electric power to pass through it.

If sold inside of thirty days will clean out for

Twenty Thousand Dollars

Nothing less will buy it. If looking for an opportunity and a bargain you must be prompt in looking into this proposition, this is the first time I have ever advertised it publicly and it will go quick.
