ANOTHER CHARMING WORK, to be added to STRINGER & TOWNSEND'S NEW LIBRARY OF STANDARD NOVELS.
Nearly ready.
MARGARET; OR, PREJUDICE AT HOME AND ITS VICTIMS. AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.
This volume comes to us with the warmest eulogiums of the London press. It is recommended as far above the ordinary fictions of the day, not only for the intrinsic excellence of its literary merits, but also for the vigor of its conceptions, the skillfulness of its characterization, the severity of its satire, the power of its stirring pages upon the reader, and the singular purity of its moral. Such a work cannot fail to create a sensation, and add to the popularity of this favorite series. The London Morning Post, in reviewing this powerful production, remarks:
"This book must touch the hearts and consciences of men, if their religion be anything more than a pretense. How powerfully the story is told, how boldly and skillfully the characters are drawn, how true its moral, and how severe its satire, no adequate conception can be formed except by reading it."
And The London Spectator, in noticing it, declares:
"Scenes from actual contemporary life are here portrayed with truth and vividness; two great vices of the age, formal religion and the prejudices of society in favor of wealth, are assailed with telling effect. The story is written with force and with depth of thought."
This delightful work will form the sixth volume of this very popular LIBRARY OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE BEST AUTHORS. Each volume is elegantly illustrated and beautifully bound in cloth 75 cents; neatly bound in paper, 50 cents. The previous issues consist of the following works:
I. MODERN FLIRTATIONS. By Catherine Sinclair.
"Modern Flirtations is a powerfully wrought and salutary satire upon fashionable follies." [N. Y. Evangelist.
II. MILES TREMENHERE. By Mrs. Maillard.
"There is a wonderful fascination in this story. As a work of true genius and untiring interest it stands unrivaled." [Fredericksburg (Va.) News.
III. THE ARTIST-WIFE. By Mary Howitt.
"The whole work bears the impress of Mary Howitt's gifted and beautiful mind." [Albany Argus.
IV. JANE SETON. By James Grant.
"One of the most powerful and interesting historical dramas since the days of Sir Walter Scott." [Albany Express.
V. MERKLAND. By the author of "Margaret Maitland."
"This work, as a delineation of character, is compared by the reviews to Jane Eyre and Ruth in force and truthfulness, but more touching and winning." [Lawrence Courier.

Vol. III. THE LIFE AND DEATH OF OUR LORD.
Vol. IV. THE APOSTLES AND THE EARLY CHURCH.
"There is not probably an English writer living who has done more for Biblical learning than the pious and indefatigable author of the volumes before us. The name of John Kitto will descend on the tide of time to future generations, when he will be held in profound veneration for his achievements in the cause of sacred learning. For the student, the scholar, the man of erudition, he has already accumulated the choicest stores of intellectual and Biblical learning. And in these Daily Bible Illustrations he literally lets himself down to the level of the popular mind, and by the interest he throws into the subject he touches on, he enchains the attention well of the unlearned as the learned. To all who wish to become better acquainted with the Bible in its most interesting historical parts, we know of no more valuable auxiliary. The chapters or daily readings are short, clear and concise; and all who will daily read and understand one of these, will find their minds gradually and profitably enlarged in the knowledge of divine things."

THE BRITISH POETS—(Little, Brown & Co.'s Edition.)
EVANS & DICKERSON, No. 307 Broadway, New-York, having made arrangements with Messrs. Little, Brown & Co., are now prepared to offer to the trade and the public, at the lowest prices, the new and complete edition of the English Poets, now in course of publication. The size and style of the volumes will be the same as "Pickering's Aldine Poets" and as all of the works of that edition are full entirely within the plan of the present collection, will be embodied in it. Each separate work will be sold by itself at 75 cents a volume, either in the Aldine style of binding, or in cloth, gilt letterings. A uniform style of more substantial binding will be ready shortly. The following are now ready:

Butler, 2 vols.	Goldsmith, 1 vol.	Pope, 3 vols.
Collins, 1 vol.	Gray, 1 vol.	Prior, 2 vols.
Cowper, 3 vols.	Milton, 3 vols.	Thomson, 2 vols.
Dryden, 5 vols.	Swift, 3 vols.	Churchill, 3 vols.
	Young, 2 vols.

The only collection of the English Poets at all deserving the name of "complete," is that which was edited by Alexander Chalmers, about forty years ago, and is now out of print. This, as well as the earlier collections of the English Poets, contained much that was then worthless and is now obsolete and forgotten. The new edition, now in course of publication by us will differ from previous collections in several important particulars. It will embrace all that is of general interest and permanent value in English Poetry, from Chaucer to Wordsworth. The whole works of the most distinguished authors will be given, and selections from the writings of the minor poets. Several volumes of fugitive and anonymous poetry will be added, besides what may be taken from the publications of Ellis, Percy, Ellis, Bridges, Park, &c., of the Percy Society, and other printing clubs. Pains will be taken to secure a correct text; and each work will be accompanied with biographical, historical and critical notices, and with glossaries, where such assistance is needed. An edition conducted on these principles will, it is thought, deserve to be called a complete collection of the English Poets.
NOTICES.
"All persons whose standard of home comfort embraces more than one single book shelf, must have the "British Poets" in some form; and they may be sure that they will never be able to procure them in a more convenient and economical form than that which these volumes wear." [Christian Examiner.
"They have already issued the Poems of Gray, Goldsmith, and Pope, in a style which challenges the attention of all lovers of beautiful editions, no less than of the lovers of standard English Poetry. The whole
