"No one should buy the book who thinks it sinful to laugh." [Henry Ward Beecher, in N. Y. Independent.

MRS. PARTINGTON and the PRESS—MORE GOLDEN OPINIONS:
"Blessings on Mrs. Partington! Her mirth-provoking sayings are always on the side of virtue and morality." [Salem Register.
"All the delightful things in the delectable volume own half of their attractiveness to the fact that they are expressive of character. Such writers cannot fail to be popular, because they combine heartiness with mirth, and humanity with wit." [Graham's Magazine.
"It is thoroughly original, and full of fun as an egg is of meat. The echoes of her cheerful philosophy come back to us in the journals of Great Britain." [Knickerbocker Magazine.
"Here we have opened another and most genuinely American vein of humor. Jack Downing has had his day. Sam Slick has run his race. Mrs. Partington now is the American humorist; original, genial, laughable, and not uninstructive." [N. Y. Independent.
"If any one wants to dip in the genuine Fountain of Fun, and lap the luxury till their sides split with uncontrollable laughter go and buy 'Mrs. Partington's Life and Sayings.' It is funny without vulgarity; it strokes merriment without an unchaste excitement; it is the very essence of humor." [Peekskill Eagle.
"It is the inner meaning of the sentences, the dainty subtlenose of humor and satire, and even pathos, which rises to the sense of the discerning reader, even as doth the Souchong fragance from the old lady's tea cup, superior to the leaves from which it is drawn." [Saturday Evening Post.
"We knew we should 'laugh rite out in meetin' over it. We have. Such humor!—it is rich. We don't wonder Dr. Holmes says Shillaber is the Tom Hood of America." [Boston Herald.
"The book is more than a bundle of witty sayings. It is the picture of the persons, the minds, the tastes, the habits and the thoughts of as true a series of characters as ever shone on the pages of the drama." [Springfield Republican.
"Wit, humor and pathos, changeful as hues on silk, deck the pages, keeping up the attention constantly." [Albany Knickerbocker.
"We have read the book with unfeigned delight, and tens of thousands will agree with us that it is brim full of the genius of humor." [Pennsylvania Dutchman.
"Her humorous sayings have, for the last few years, excited smiles enough to make a world of sunshine." [Arthur's Home Gazette.
"We can commend the book to those who wish summer reading fraught with more than ordinary amusement." [Char. (S. C.) Jour.
"It would be difficult to find another book of the same size comprising as many witticisms, and such a rich fund of humor, with so little that is exceptionable." [N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.
"We would sooner break friends with our breakfast, than we would consent to part with Mrs. Partington." [N. Y. Times.
"No one who can relish real humor, and has a desire to show his sympathy for real genius, will neglect to purchase a copy of this capital book." [N. O. Picayune.
"Her 'sayings' have given her an immortality that will glitter and sparkle among the records of genius wherever wit and humor shall be appreciated." [Worcester Palladium.
"Mr. Shillaber, you will be the death of us yet; we have to lay down the volume continually, for fear we should die of laughing. The book is worth a dozen doctors. If we had a few more like it, there would be no need of lunatic asylums, at least for melancholic patients." [Ladies' National Magazine.
"Get the book, and when the cares of life perplex, read a few pages. The medicine which Mrs. Partington furnishes is a sure antidote if taken in small doses." [Newburgh Eagle.
"We have been unable to lay down the book until we had read every line. She must become a household oracle in every American family." [Saturday Evening Mail.
"It is a book that will charm away evil spirits, and incite the readers to cherish a love of human kind, while it excites him with merriment." [Boston Commonwealth.
"The jokes are never carried to the extreme, and there is a refinement that gives a true relish to them." [Albany Atlas.
"Everybody should buy the book; everybody at least, who loves genial, quiet wit, which never wounds, but always heals where it strikes." [Independent Democrat.
"Now, reader, you want a life-preserver to carry with you wherever you go, and here it is: a book full of original wit, old sayings, quaint observations, laughable incendiot, philosophical engagements." [Phil. City Item.
"A regular Yankee institution is Mrs. Partington. She is brought before the public, which is so greatly indebted to her unique vocabulary for exhaustless stores of fun, in a style worthy of her distinguished character." [N. Y. Tribune.
"If it is true that one grows fat who laughs, then he who reads this book will fat up, even though he may be one of Pharaoh's lean 'kine.'" [Mass. Life-Boat.
"Dame Partington—thanks to her faithful biographer—will hereafter fill a niche in the world's Westminster Abbey, side by side with Mrs. Grundy, Mrs. Caudle, and Mrs. Fetipat." [Phil. Mercury.
"It will be good to keep, as a sort of family panacea, warranted to cure a fit of the blues 'however magnified and distorted.' The table at the 'table of contents' is almost equal to a 'feast of fat things.'" [South Boston Gazette.
"Housewives who occasionally get belated about their dinner, should have it lying round. It will prevent a deal of grumbling from their lords, by keeping them so well employed as to prevent them from the dinner." [New-Hampshire Telegraph.
"It is crammed full of her choicest sayings and rings from title page to 'finis' with her unconscious wit." [Oneida Herald.
We do not know how to praise the work too much. [N. Y. Atlas.
"Sparkling in every page and paragraph, with a mingled merriment and pathos singularly suggestive of a day in spring." [N. Y. Democrat.
"There is more genuine original humor in this volume than in any other that has appeared from the American press since Washington Irving's 'Knickerbocker's New-York.'" [Cambridge Chronicle.
"Brimming over with the purest sentiment, the kindliest sympathies, and the most genial philanthropy." [Pathfinder.
"Ruth Partington is a Christian and a patriot. Such a book will go everywhere—be welcomed like a returned exile—do good and cause good." [Buffalo Express.
"There is a deeper vein of humor and humanity in them. The humor is much of the quality of that we see in Sterne, and Mrs. Partington constantly reminds us of 'My Uncle Toby.'" [Belfast Journal.
"'Hang the books!' said an appreciative examiner, to whom we handed a copy for inspection, 'I can't afford to buy them, but I can't do without this;' and, laughing until the tears ran, he drew forth the purchase money." [Clinton Courant.
"The volume externally, with its numerous and happy illustrations, is one of the handsomest ever got up for popular circulation in America; while internally (we say it deliberately,) it contains more genuine original humor than any recent publication with which we are acquainted." [Boston True Flag.
THE LIFE AND SAYINGS OF Mrs. PARTINGTON, AND OTHERS OF THE FAMILY, by B. P. Shillaber, is now ready and for sale by all Booksellers. A beautiful 12mo. vol., 304 pages; 43 engravings. Price $1 25.

TICKNOR & FIELDS have just published, in one volume 16mo., price $1,
ESSAYS ON THE FORMATION AND PUBLICATION OF OPINIONS, THE PURSUIT OF TRUTH, AND ON OTHER SUBJECTS. By Samuel Bailey. From the fourth London edition. Revised and enlarged.
FROM THE PRESS.
"The various subjects treated are handled in a masterly style, and are the result of a deep-thinking, observing and philosophical mind. As a household book and a companion for the young student we commend it most heartily." [New-York Atlas.
"We heartily recommend this book to all thinking individuals who do not read so much to kill time, as to gather up a store of useful knowledge." [Worcester Transcript.
"We have repeatedly heard gratefully ascribed to the reading of this book the commencement of a new and intellectual and moral life, and we wish it could be thoroughly studied by all young persons." [New-Bedford Mercury.
"These essays are destined to a great popularity throughout our country." [Philadelphia Bulletin.
"We welcome this fine edition of a book which we have long prized. This is one of the most interesting works of a strictly logical and metaphysical character that we have ever read." [Boston Atlas.
Miss Leslie's new Cook Book for the Million.
MISS LESLIE'S NEW RECEIPTS FOR COOKING. Great success of it.
It comprises new and approved methods of preparing all kinds of soups, fish, oysters, terrapins, turtle, vegetables, meats, poultry, game, sauces, pickles, sweetmeats, cakes, pies, puddings, confectionery, rice, Indian meal preparations of all kinds, domestic liquors, perfumery, remedies, laundry-work, needle-work, washing thread laces of all kinds, to make them look equal to new, preserving autumn leaves, Chinese embroidery, letters, additional receipts, etc. Also, list of all articles in season suited to go together for breakfasts, dinners and suppers, to suit large or small families, and much useful information and many miscellaneous subjects connected with general housewifery.
This work is having a very extensive sale, and many thousand copies will be sold. All persons that have had Miss Leslie's old book should get this at once. All the receipts in this book are new, and have been fully tried and tested by the author since the publication of her former book, and none of them whatever are contained in any other work but this. It is the best and most complete Cook Book published in the world, as in addition to Cookery of all kinds and descriptions, its receipts for making cakes and confectionery are unequaled by any other work extant. No one should be without it.
It is an elegantly printed duodecimo volume of 520 pages; and in it there will be found One Thousand and Eleven new Receipts, all useful, some ornamental, and all invaluable to every lady, miss or family in the world. Price One Dollar a copy only.
A copy of this new, popular and celebrated Cook Book, entitled MISS LESLIE'S NEW RECEIPTS FOR COOKING, will be sent to any person, by return of mail, free of postage, on their remitting $1 to the publisher in a letter, post-paid.

"A tale of exquisite pathos."—Watchman.
VARA; OR, THE CHILD OF ADOPTION, 12mo. $1.
Attention is solicited to this charming story. Hear what the Press say:
"There has no volume fallen into our hands for years with which we have been more interested. The beautiful simplicity of the heroine—the unadorned yet highly interesting narrative—the development of the different characters, combined with the peculiar fascination of the author's style—carries the reader imperceptibly along to the finale, and he sighs that the sweet repast is over." [Sandy Hill Herald.
"It is the history of an adopted child, and such a history as must soften the heart and awaken the pity of every reader. It is a story, and yet a sermon. Taking the little Vara by the hand, and leading her through the corridors of an eventful life, it leaves upon the mind a genial and lasting impression which will prove of service. We hope to see it circulated widely." [Buffalo Express.
"A charming story. We read it with unbounded satisfaction, and we feel that our time was well employed while so doing." [N. J. Literary Standard.
"It is a deeply interesting story, and has a thoroughly evangelical spirit running through its pages." [Presbyterian Herald.
