SUSPICIOUS DEATH OF A WOMAN.

ARREST OF HER HUSBAND.

Ann Donohue, a woman who resided at No. 421 East Twelfth-st., was almost instantly killed at 4 o'clock this morning by falling or being thrown from a 4th-story window of the house to the sidewalk. The police of the Seventeenth Ward soon afterward found the deceased and took her remains into the house. Information was given to the Coroner, and believing the circumstances connected with her death, caused the arrest of Bryan Donohue, her husband, and detained him till she holding of the inquest. His daughter Bridget was also detained to give evidence before the Coroner.

NEW-YORK POLITICS.

DELEGATES TO THE WHIG STATE CONVENTION.

Cattaraugus.—Eastern District, DETOS E. SILL. Western District, the Hon. GEORGE A. S. CROOKER. In the Eastern District resolutions were adopted sustaining the Saratoga platform and opposed to all future compromises with Slavery and the slave power, or with the apologists of Slavery. Two of the resolves we extract inasmuch as the proceedings were ordered to be published in THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE:

Resolved, That the actions, opinions and votes of the Hon. WM. H. SEWARD, one of our Senators in Congress, through a long series of years, on the subject of Slavery, as well when he stood almost alone, in advance of his party, as now when the whole North is with him, entitle him to be regarded as a champion of Liberty, and endear him to every friend of Freedom, of Humanity and of Man; and that we earnestly desire his reelection to the Senate of the United States.

Resolved, That we regard the issue between Freedom and Slavery in our Government as the great issue before the American people, and one that overrides and absorbs all labor questions, and that while that issue remains undecided we believe it the duty of every freeman to lay aside party ties and party obligations whenever his party is false to the principles of liberty.

Clinton.—A. B. KINGSLAND.

Cayuga.—2. WILLIAM MUIR. Of the resolutions adopted, The Auburn Advertiser says they "are of the right stamp, and the entire unanimity with which they were adopted reflects the highest honor upon the delegates, proving, as it did, that they regard with scorn and indignation the recent attempt of the Slavery propagandists to strengthen and extend the borders of the 'peculiar institution' by forcing through Congress the infamous Nebraska bill. The delegates evidently were of one mind in regard to what should be the future course of the Whig party of the North on the Slavery question. Not another foot of Slave territory, the repeal or essential modification of the Fugitive Slave law, and the immediate abolition of the curse in the District of Columbia, should be the motto of the party. We congratulate Mr. Muir upon the strong and healthy platform upon which the delegates placed him."

BROOKLYN ITEMS.

SERIOUS CARRIAGE ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last, a one horse carriage containing S. Stevenson, wife and child, came in violent contact with a cab in Court-st. near Degraw, and they were all thrown out upon the pavement. The woman and child were seriously hurt, and the man was somewhat injured. Officer O'Donnell of the Third District Police accompanied the woman to Greenwood in the cars and sent her to Fort Hamilton, where she resides, in a carriage. The driver was intoxicated, to which the accident may be attributed. He was lodged in the Station-House until he got sufficiently sober to go home.

WILLIAMSBURGH ITEMS.

BURGLARY.—The cost-office of Messrs. Hussey & Co., corner of First and South Fourth-sts., was burglariously entered on Thursday night, and the safe door was blown open with powder placed in the key-hole. The burglars did not get any money, but carried away a tin box, in which were notes amounting to about $12,000.

DEATH OF SCHELLING.

The death of this illustrious philosopher—who had survived the extraordinary intellectual development which had given such celebrity to his name, in connexion with Kant, Fichte, Jacobi, and Hegel—is announced by the last arrival from Europe, as having taken place on the 20th of August. He died at Ragaz, in Switzerland, having gone to that place for the benefit of his health, which had long been in a declining state.

Schelling was the most brilliant and poetical of the philosophical trio, of whose labors his own were regarded as the systematic completion. With a less vigorous power of analysis than Kant, and far inferior to Fichte in the pitiless force with which he applied logical formulas to the destruction of illusions, he surpassed them both in creative vigor of imagination, in the depth and brightness of his intuitions, in his comprehensive views of the history of the race, in his broad and penetrating conceptions of natural science, and in the masculine eloquence with which he sustained the principles of an original and daring philosophy. His teachings formed an epoch in the progress of German thought. He gave an impetus to opinion, which has never been wholly lost. Although he did not satisfy himself in giving coherence and form to his ideas, he so vitalized the philosophic intellect of his country, that all subsequent laborers in the field of speculation have been compelled to acknowledge his potent influence. His genius is impressed on many of the most admirable productions of German literature, although he failed to embody his conceptions in a permanent system. Of late years it is understood that he has been little addicted to philosophical pursuits, and with the decline of interest in philosophy, which marks our own days, his name is doubtless less familiar to the present generation than it was to their immediate predecessors.

Schelling was born in Leonberg in Wurtemberg, on the 27th of January, 1775, and was accordingly in the eightieth year of his age at the time of his death. He passed through the usual course of University studies, first at Tübingen, and afterward at Leipsic and Jena. In 1803, he succeeded Fichte in the chair of Philosophy at the latter University. Here he at once attracted the attention of the public by the bold originality of his ideas, the glowing earnestness of his eloquence, and the costume of poetic beauty in which he clothed the most profound conceptions.

His first publications, entitled "The Possibility of a Form of Philosophy," and "Self-hood as the Principle of Philosophy," had already seen the light, having been issued when he was scarcely turned of twenty—an instance of mental precocity scarcely paralleled in the history of letters. Soon after he gave to the world a series of volumes, of which the most important were "Ideas toward a Philosophy of Nature," "Of the World-Soul," and "Outlines of a System of Natural Philosophy." The tendency of these works was to represent the universe as a living, organic whole,—abounding in curious and wonderful harmonies—and moving by the evolution of its own laws,—instead of a barren collection of mechanical forces. The works just named were soon followed by the "Journal of Speculative Physics," and the "System of Transcendental Idealism." The leading idea of this most subtle treatise is the gradual unfolding of the spiritual nature of man through a succession of epochs,—Poetry being the highest degree of development, and art the complete blending and identification of Spirit and Nature, and the consummate product of genius. Hence, regarded from the most elevated point of view, Art, Poetry, Philosophy and Religion are identical in their character, and occupy the same sphere of being.

After leaving Jena, and residing for a short time in Würzburg, Schelling received the appointment of Secretary to the Royal Academy of Fine Arts at Munich, where he remained from 1808 to 1826. A difficulty with the President of the Academy caused him to resign this post, and he devoted himself to lecturing at Erlangen. He subsequently returned to Munich as Professor in the University, which office he sustained till 1841, when he was appointed to a Professorship of Philosophy in the University of Berlin. During the earlier portion of his academic career, he took an active part in several philosophical controversies, in which he showed himself as an adroit and relentless polemic, and an impassioned defender of the ideas which formed the basis of his philosophy. He was especially formidable to his opponents, in repelling the personal accusations with which they were in the habit of fortifying their arguments. He was charged with irreligion—with Pantheism—with teaching doctrines that led to the dissolution of all moral ties. These reproaches he was unwilling to bear. He was conscious of their false application. He threw them from him with vehemence and scorn. One of his most significant treatises, during this period, is the "Philosophical Investigation on the Nature of Human Freedom" published in the first volume of his collected "Philosophical Writings."

Upon his first removal to Berlin in 1841, he delivered a course of lectures upon the "Philosophy of Revelation" and the "Philosophy of Mythology," which awakened a good deal of interest; but from that time he gradually disappeared from the public view, and for the last ten years his name has had only a historical significance. In the records of philosophical speculation during the latter years of the last century and the first decade of the present, no name will hold a more conspicuous place than that of Schelling. He will be known, however, more for his profound and luminous suggestions than for his positive contributions to systematic philosophy. In this respect, his merits will not stand a comparison with the dissolving analyses of Kant, in whose tough crucible so many intellectual traditions have been completely melted down—nor with the audacious idealizations of Fichte, pursuing with his inexorable logic the whole circle of human opinions—and still less with the icy abstractions of Hegel, who from the most frozen regions of speculation, has poured a fresh light over the whole field of history, revealing the absolute character of truth and illustrating the dignity of human nature by the revolutions of ages. But the influence of Schelling will long be visible in the tendency of modern thought. He has furnished his successors with materials which have already been wrought up into permanent and beautiful forms. He has pointed out to the earnest inquirer, the harmony, the unity, the wonderfulness of Nature, and taught him to peruse the signatures of Divinity with which it is everywhere inscribed. Equally averse to the dreamy flights of the mere sentimentalist, and the degrading views of those who perceive no truth or good but in the world of the senses, he has illustrated the spiritual significance of the Universe, while expatiating on the sublimity of its material laws. We can scarcely compute the extent of the impulse, which may be said to date from the doctrines of Schelling, by which natural science has been transformed from an aggregate of isolated facts, into a coherent, unitary system, pervaded by wondrous and exquisite analogies, and ever revealing the imprint of the Unity, which is the primal attribute of the Infinite.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

U. S. COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE—Before Commissioner MORTON.

CHARGE OF SMUGGLING.

Capt. Serra, of the brig Ippogriffo, on a charge of smuggling a quantity of silks and velvets, &c., from Genoa, has been committed on the charge, and the amount of bail fixed at $5,000.

The District-Attorney subsequently offered, we understand, to reduce the bail to $3,000 on two responsible sureties being given, but Capt. S. could not furnish the necessary bail, and is still detained in custody. The vessel, as usual in such cases, has been seized on the charge of smuggling. The penalty, on conviction of smuggling, is to the individual State Prison for two years and $3,000 fine, or a less degree of punishment suitable to the case, and a forfeiture of the goods and the vessel.

CHARGE OF COUNTERFEITING.

James Williams and John Blair, arrested on a charge of counterfeiting or attempting to pass at Brooklyn counterfeit half dollars, knowing them to be such, were examined. It was shown that the two entered a saloon and called for two sancers of oysters which they eat. Blair then went out and stood on the sidewalk, while Williams offered a half dollar piece in pay and to receive the difference of change. The proprietor of the saloon saw it was counterfeit when Williams said he would redeem it, and did so. He was then arrested as was Blair. On Williams no other counterfeit piece was found, but five or six upon the person of Blair. Some other testimony was taken. They were committed.

SUPERIOR COURT—Before Judge HOFFMAN.

HABEAS CORPUS.

John Welch, a married man, recently residing in Division-st., was brought up on a habeas corpus to obtain his discharge from enlistment in the United States Navy asked for, on the ground that he was intoxicated at the time he enlisted.

Four witnesses testified to having seen him drunk on 17th of July, the day he enlisted—one of them knew him to have been intoxicated for several days before; that he is never himself when he drinks, and on the day in question he seemed to be wild, and said to the witness "Good bye, I shall never see you again." Clothes who fitted Welch our after his enlistment, and the officer who enlisted him, testified that they did not notice any intoxication. The Court considered the positive testimony, however, sufficient, and ordered him to be discharged on giving up the U. S. clothing.

DECISION BY JUDGE BOSWORTH—POINT OF PRACTICE.

Stephen Reed, Receiver, agt. Charles Hart.

A party who has recovered a judgment should not be prevented from collecting it pending an appeal from it unless it is made to appear that its collection, if affirmed, will be reasonably certain. The party moving to the contrary must, in his affidavit, state his pecuniary condition, &c. Motion denied, with leave to renew it.

STATE OF THE MARKETS TO-DAY.

MONDAY, Sept. 18—2 P. M.

ASHES—The market is quiet but firm at $7 for Pots and $6 75 for Pearls.

COTTON—The market is firm, and there is a fair business doing, somewhat restricted, however, by the non-arrival of the steamer now due.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market is quite irregular and very heavy for the medium and better grades of State and Western Flour, and good supply, and difficult of sale, while the low grades are scarce and wanted. Canadian Flour is scarce at $9,75 in bond.

The sales of Western Canal are 2,100 bbls. at $8 75@$9 for common to good State, $8 87@$9 12 for common to good Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. Southern Flour is in fair demand; the better qualities are plenty and irregular, but of common kinds there is only a moderate supply at steady prices.

Sales 2,300 bbls. at $8 75@$9 25 for mixed to good brands Baltimore and Alexandria. Rye Flour is dull at $7@$7 50 for superfine. Corn Meal is nominal.

GRAIN—There is only a limited demand and supply of Wheat in the market; the demand is for milling purposes, and prices are unvaried; the sales are 3,000 bush. white Southern, in lots, at $1 90@$1 95, and 300 bush. white and red Southern mixed at $1 85.

Rye is scarce and unsettled; a sale of 1,200 bush. River at $1 23 afloat. Oats are scarce and the demand is brisk at 52@53c. for State and Western, and 50@53c. for Jersey. Barley is scarce and wanted at $1 05@$1 07.

Corn is in good supply, there being 140,000 bush. offered; the demand is limited and mainly for the home trade: sales 25,000 bush. at 80@81½c. for Western mixed; round yellow is nominal at 86c. and is wanted.

WHISKEY—An easier market with a moderate demand; sales 200 bbls. at 41c. for Ohio and 41½@41½c. for Prison.

PORK is steady at $14 12@14 25 for mess and $11 87@12 for prime. Beef firm at previous rates. Lard &c., unchanged.

A method of preparation has recently been discovered which enables the Company to warrant their Paints to keep fresh and soft in the kegs for any reasonable time. In this respect their Paints will be superior to any other on the market.

Their BROWN ZINC PAINT, which is sold at a low price and can only be made from the Zinc Ores from New-Jersey, is now well known for its protective qualities when applied to iron or other metallic surfaces.

Their STONE-COLOR PAINT possesses all the properties of the Brown, and is of an agreeable color for painting cottages, depots, out buildings, bridges, &c. Dealers supplied on liberal terms by MANNING & SQUIER, Agents, No. 165 Washington-st., N. Y.

Coal.

COAL.—The DELAWARE, LACKAWANA and WESTERN RAILROAD (and Coal) COMPANY, are now prepared to receive orders for their superior SCRANTON (Anthracite) COAL, to be delivered after the close of canal navigation at Jersey City, Newburg, and all other stations on the line of the New-York and Erie Railroad, and its branches, on board of their cars.
