A BOOK the JESUITS cannot SUPPRESS!

THE ESCAPED NUN;
OR,
DISCLOSURES OF CONVENT LIFE,

Giving a minute description and a bolder revelation of the Mysteries and Secrets of Nunneries than have ever before been submitted to the American public. Elegantly bound in cloth, 12mo. Price $1

DE WITT & DAVENPORT'S CARD.

From The N. Y. Herald of Sept. 6.

THE ESCAPED NUN.

To the Editor of The N. Y. Herald:

SIR: An advertisement appeared in The Herald of the 3d inst. over the signature of "Know-Nothing," to which we are expected to reply, although an anonymous writer is hardly ever worthy of notice, because an honest person who writes that which he knows to be true would scorn to skulk behind an irresponsible name. But "ab uno disce omnes"—such has been the conduct of the principal party in this affair from the beginning of the lawsuit to the end. It is very evident that the "Novice" has been made to believe herself a perfect martyr, and had her fears operated upon until she was frightened no doubt half to death, with pretentious stories of Jesuitical plots and dangers. We question very much whether there is a greater Jesuit living than the one who is using her fears to serve his own purposes.

With regard to the "Herculean task" of writing her book twice, we regret having been the cause of compelling her to have it re-written, but we should not be censured for the consequences of her "friends" interference.

We would ask by what authority does a "Know-Nothing," whom we believe to be an ex-officeholder under a Jesuit master, dare pronounce our book—"The Escaped Nun, or Disclosures of Convent Life"—as untrue and unworthy of credence? Can he controvert one fact mentioned therein; and has not our work on Nunneries been pronounced, by persons far more capable of judging of its merits than our sapient "Know-Nothing," to be the best and most daring expose of convent life ever published?

We admit—as "Know-Nothing" says—that we have all the original documents, which, had the parties behaved themselves they might have used, and not have had the "Herculean task" of arranging anew without the necessary vouchers. "A well known literary lady of Virginia" found it anything but an "Herculean task" to write her book, and she required no reverend gentleman to assist her.

When the injunction was sustained through the machinations of a very doubtful Know-Nothing—but correctly, according to the affidavits rendered by our opponents—we at once determined, having all the necessary facts in our possession, to bring out a book in which nothing should be SUPPRESSED that could unmask the convent system to the American public, and the large sale of the work shows that the people appreciate our motives.

We regret that the escaped novice has fallen into such hands, and that in endeavoring to avoid an imaginary Scylla, she has run into a real Charybdis. Respectfully, &c.

Published in one volume, cloth, 400 pages. Price $1.
A COMPLETE SUCCESS.

The great success of this work is the theme of conversation in all literary circles. Its sale has even surpassed the expectations, highly raised as they were, of its publishers. It has achieved the GREATEST TRIUMPH of any Novel published during the present year. Its sale during the dull season has been so rapid and constant that, without having found it necessary to keep it before the public by advertising, the Publishers have experienced difficulty in keeping a sufficient stock on hand. Another large edition is now prepared for the increased demand, and the Publishers will continue every exertion they have hitherto made to supply orders as promptly as possible.

TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS

"It is more instructive and far more interesting than either the memoirs of Greeley or Barnum." [Boston Herald.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND SOLD IN TWO WEEKS OF MEMOIRS OF BENNETT AND HIS TIMES.

With a fine Medallion PORTRAIT. 488 pages. Price $1 25.

Everybody is reading this truly charming Biography. Its triumphant success is proved in the rapid sales of sixteen thousand copies in three short weeks. From a thousand independent journals that have heartily welcomed and commended this valuable and intensely interesting volume, we extract the following as specimens of their tone and spirit.

EDITORIAL OPINIONS.

"The book is, as a life of Bennett should be, a history of our own times and the men and things that have figured in them. The tone of it is impartial and independent; and it is evidently the production of a ripe scholar." [Philadelphia City Item.

"It pourtrays with apparent fidelity the life and times of one of the most successful editors of the present century. It will be read with deep interest." [Hunt's Merchants' Magazine.

"The author has performed his labor with great ability. He has produced the most satisfactory and able biography that we have come across for many years." [United States Review.

"It possesses a general interest. It is not written in the spirit of fulsome adulation, nor with a partizan zeal for a personal favorite." [Harper's Magazine.

"The book is truly entertaining, and will be a great addition to a well selected family library, as it treats of things with which all are interested." [Boston Waverly Magazine.

"These memoirs are indisputably the best and most complete of their class which we have ever seen. In every respect we believe this work will have a large sale." [The Home Journal.

"The author has been severely pounced by several cotemporaries who are personally hostile to his hero; while others, who are either indifferent or favorable to the subject of the work, praise the industry and tact with which it has been compiled. It will generally be read with interest." [N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

"The 'Memoir' will unquestionably have many readers. The volume is elegantly issued, and contains a medallion likeness of Mr. Bennett, which is one of the best specimens of this class of work that we have seen. The likeness to the original when at his meridian, is perfect." [Boston Evening Transcript.

"This is truly an interesting work. It is admirably written, and of all the memoirs that have recently flooded our book market, we pronounce these as indisputably the best. No student of history should be without it." [Rock Island Republican.

"We predict that the work will have a sale only, perhaps, precedented by 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'" [New-Brunswick Fredonian.

"These Mnemoirs of this truly great man in the annals of newspaper enterprise, have been read by us with the greatest of interest." [The Montreal Pilot.

"The writer wields a facile pen. What he wishes to tell, is told easily and pleasantly. He never descends to vulgar abuse, nor indulges in extravagant encomiums." [Buffalo Daily Republic.

NEW NOVEL.—OAKFIELD.—
By W. D. Arnold.
A Novel by a Son of Dr. Arnold of Rugby.
This Day Published.
1 vol., 16mo. $1.

"A NOVEL BY A SON OF DR. ARNOLD.—'Oakfield' is the title of a novel written by a son of the eminent Dr. Arnold of Rugby—Lieut. W. D. Arnold of the British Army. It is often the case that the bearing a distinguished name is the worst fate that an author can have. [illegible] a father of eminent genius and virtue we expect a son distinguished by the same qualities. No higher praise can be awarded to the author of this work than by saying that the admirers of the late Dr. Arnold will find that his mantle has fallen upon shoulders worthy to bear it. Although he has employed his pen in a different walk of literature from his father, yet we find everywhere in 'Oakfield' that same regard to high moral principle and boldness to attack abuses which were distinguishing traits of his father." The Indorsement of the Northern Press:

"It will every way sustain the praise so worthily won by the author's first effort. It exhibits the same healthful sentiment and beautiful feeling, the same truthful simplicity and yet charming elegance, the same just appreciation of different phases of social and domestic life. The tale is one of American life, and is most aptly and gracefully wrought." [N. Y. Courier & Enquirer.

"'The Hidden Path' is a work of originality and genius, full of striking thoughts, beautiful descriptions, and graceful conversation, and just interesting enough as a story to carry the reader through a volume from the perusal of which one rises better at heart and with a more genial, kindly feeling toward humanity in general." [Boston Daily Journal.

"We take the liberty of confidently commending it to our readers as one of those gentle, earnest books which will be found acceptable to all pure hearts, and become, we sincerely trust, an especial favorite with the women readers of America." [Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

"We have read the 'Hidden Path' with unmingled pleasure. It is one of the best novels of the day. The promise given by Miss Harland in her 'Alone' has been fully met. She takes rank among the best writers of fiction of this age. The story is interesting; the language pure, often eloquent; the plot natural and interesting; and the moral excellent." [N. Y. Daily News.

"High as has been the reputation acquired by the many authoresses of our country, we shall be mistaken if the writer of 'Alone' and of 'The Hidden Path' does not take, ere long, place and precedence. She combines as many excellencies with as few faults as any one we can at the present writing call to mind. There is an originality in her thinking which strikes one with a peculiar force, and he finds himself often unconsciously recurring to what has had such a powerful effect upon him. She is emphatically an authoress not to be forgotten; her works are no short-lived productions, for they have in them a genius, a power and a purpose." [Boston Evening Gazette.

"The previous work of this authoress at once stamped her as a woman of genius and power. It was read everywhere, and the appetite grew upon what it fed. There was a purity of thought and sentiment running through its pages—an occasional humorous way of shooting at folly, and a keen satire on the vices of society. 'The Hidden Path' is no whit behind its predecessor—indeed, in our opinion, it is a work of greater power; and we assert that 'The Hidden Path' is the most deserving of popularity of any book of the season, and we venture to predict that the public will sustain us in our verdict." [N. Y. Atlas.

"It forms a series of delightful home pictures, changing from place to place, but chiefly confined to Virginia, the writer's native State, and she paints its beauties with a master hand. She loves her native State, and has paid it no mean tribute in her book. We congratulate the young and gifted authoress for having produced a work so remarkable for its delicacy, purity and general worth, and prophesy for her a brilliant and successful career in the world of letters." [Old Colony Memorial, Plymouth, Mass.

"Its great charm, like that of 'Alone,' consists in the sincerity which pervades it, and in the delicate sentiments of love and friendship which, in all their unadulterated sweetness, throw a magic grace over the whole volume." [N. Y. Day Book.

"Home sincerity and truth, are invested with most attractive charms, and their value enhanced by painful contrasts. While engaging the imagination by its well-conceived plot, it makes all submit to its moral impression, and enlists the reader's approbation exclusively with the virtuous and true." [N. Y. Evangelist.

"Her pathway to fame appears auspicious." [Buffalo Express.

THE PRETTIEST of all BOOKS.

The Fairy Tale of CINDERELLA, forming the first book of Hewet's Series of Illuminated Household Stories for Little Folks, in neat, small quarto, with ten superb Illustrations, designed and engraved by the best artists in the country, in a style superior to anything of the kind ever published, either in Europe or America, and printed superbly, on very superior paper. Price in illuminated cover and edges, 25 cents; full bound and gilt edges, 50 cents. The novelty in this series is a colored frontispiece to each volume, in imitation of an oil painting—a new feature in book illustrations in this country. From numerous letters addressed to the publishers by distinguished gentlemen to whom the enterprize has been submitted he takes pleasure in presenting the following extracts, which will speak for themselves:

"Cinderella is really beautiful in its typography and illustrations, and I am surprised and gratified that the drawings are original, designed and engraved by artists in our own country. "WASHINGTON IRVING."

"I have never seen so beautiful an edition of Cinderella. Pray send me any other volume which you may publish this year. ROBERT C. WINTHROP." [Boston.]

Miss Louisa Pyne (prima donna in English opera) "assures the publishers of her appreciation of the admirable way in which the publication (Cinderella) has been gotten up, both for its utility, and also as a work of art."

"The Illustrations of Cinderella are excellent, and the whole appearance of the little work is so tasteful that a continuation of the series will be looked for with pleasure.

THE FIREMAN.—
If there is any one Representative Man in whom the nobler qualities of Humanity are more largely developed than in another, it is of America—a man ever ready to spend time, exhaust strength, and risk life in unpaid services for the good of others, friends and foes alike. The unwritten deeds of noble prompting performed by this man afford the most splendid material for the bookmaker, and are now for the first time depicted in a beautifully written work by a popular author, entitled (as the most characteristic of the hero)

THE FIREMAN

THE FIREMAN.

A book destined to create an intense interest, and meet a greater sale than "The Lamplighter," or any similar publication.

One large 12mo. volume, beautifully illustrated. Price $1. Mailed, post free, on receipt of price.
