Special Notices.

A Meeting of Passengers on the New-York and Erie Railroad, in the night express train of Wednesday, the 3d of October, they being detained by an arrival too late for connection with the 12:10 o'clock P. M. train West on the 4th of October, was held at the Eastern Hotel, Dunkirk, on Thursday, P. M. October 4, 1855. G. B. ALBEE, Esq., of Grand Haven, Michigan was appointed Chairman; and HIRAM GIDDINGS, Esq., of Palmyra, Ohio, Secretary, and the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Whereas, assurance was given us of an immediate connection from Dunkirk West to Chicago and other cities and towns; and whereas such connection has failed, causing a detention of over twelve hours, and a frustration of important engagements to most if not all of us, and no good cause to our knowledge having existed for such detention. Therefore,

1. Resolved, That the engagements of running-time as given us by the New-York and Erie Railroad Company have not been met, but to us have been made void.

2. Resolved, That the inconvenience and disappointment thus accruing to us, some having important business engagements; some being on express calls to meet sick, and it may be dying friends or relatives; some being themselves invalids and unfitted for wearisome delay; and all of us being anxious to reach our several places of destination, are exceedingly trying and ought not to be silently submitted to. We therefore, for ourselves and the traveling public in general, protest against such unnecessary detention, causing, if no big more, unnecessary expense. We therefore respectfully hope that they may be at once prevented by the Company, which enjoys so largely the patronage of the traveling public.

3. Resolved, In the above resolutions we exonerate from all blame the engineer and conductor who had charge of the above train on the last section of said road.

4. Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the New-York Tribune and Herald, and the leading journals of Cleveland, Chicago, and Cincinnati, &c.

TWO CHARMING NOVELS.—
THE ELDER SISTER:
By Marion James.
ETHEL;
OR, THE DOUBLE ERROR:
By the same Author.
Published in uniform volumes. Price 75 cents each.
From The New-York Daily Times.

Marian James, whose two novels (Ethel, or the Double Error, and The Elder Sister) have been just republished here by Bunce & Brother, is one of the most delightful of living fiction-writers. She has scarcely passed the age of twenty one, has very handsome face and petite person, and writes with exquisite expression, true womanly feeling and great delicacy of sentiment. Both her stories exhibit those characteristics, but The Elder Sister shows a marked improvement in their development and use. It is a charming domestic romance, always natural, never overstrained, and full of personal interest. The heroine is as fine a creation as modern fiction has produced.

TWICE MARRIED;
A STORY OF CONNECTICUT LIFE.

This romance has appeared in parts in Putnam's Monthly, in each number of which, for a great portion of the present year, it has regularly occupied a place. Its very kind reception, not merely by the critical authorities of the press, but by the public at large, has induced the publishers to present it in the present form, in which they confidently trust it will meet with the same generous appreciation as heretofore.

1 vol., 12mo., cloth, 75 cents.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS, as it appeared in Putnam's Monthly:

"'Twice Married' could not be written by any one but an American, so thoroughly characteristic of the country is it." [Daily British Whig.

"One of the best written tales we have of primitive Yankee life and character." [New Bedford Mercury.

"It is one of a very few stories in periodicals that we could have wished finished at once, so that we could see how it comes out." [Indianapolis Journal, Ind.

"'Twice Married' continues—the charming Yankee story of which we have already had several chapters." [N. Y. Tribune.

"'Twice Married,' the sparkling and brilliant style of which constantly brings to mind the stories which have given so decided a charm to the pages of Old Ebony." [Dedham Gazette.

TO THE TRADE.

The great number of orders for this book, announced for publication (in our last) on the 1st of October, rendered it necessary to postpone the publication day to the 20th of October.

It abounds with wit, humor and fancy, and the plot is admirably constructed.

From The Boston Traveller.

Almack's is well known as the head-quarters of the fashionable world in London; and this book, which is a lively gossip concerning the society to be met with there, quite "flattered the Voleians," we remember, on its first appearance. In the highly interesting story which it contains, the mysteries of Almack's are clearly and cleverly developed. The period selected by the author is the most brilliant time of George the Fourth, when the beautiful Lady Jersey reigned supreme; and the other lady patronesses of the club of that day who will be recognized in the pages of this volume, are the present Lady Palmerston, the Marchioness of Londonderry, the Countess Brownlow, and Lady Willoughby d'Eresby. The great charm of the work is in the lively nature of the conversations introduced; and a New-York critic, rising from the perusal of it, says: "The world of fashion has been opened to our eyes and we have been so carried away by the book that we seem still to breathe its aroma."

Complete in one volume. Price 50 cents.

A LITERARY CURIOSITY.
By THOMAS DE QUINCEY, the English Opium-Eater.
On Wednesday Oct. 31, we shall publish
KLOSTERHEIM;
OR, THE MASQUE.

A Novel, by THOMAS DE QUINCEY, author of "Confessions of an English Opium Eater;" with a short and interesting BIOGRAPHICAL MEMOIR, by Dr. SHELTON MACKENZIE.

The million admirers of this great master of the English language, who are familiar with his writings, and have felt "that wondrous spell and witchery of style in which he has had no predecessor, and has no fellow, perhaps no follower," will hail with delight this, his only, attempt at any lengthy work of fiction. Competent critics pronounce it "second only to the 'Opium-Eater,' and in some respects superior to even that celebrated work."

In one volume, 16mo., handsomely bound in cloth. Price 75 cents.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
REMEMBER TO READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD!
By Mrs. ANN S. STEPHENS,
Author of "Fashion and Famine."

From The N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

"The works of Mrs. Stephens are no mere imitations, but are striking original both in conception and execution. 'The Old Homestead' is a much better work in every respect than 'Fashion and Famine,' and ought to have a proportionately greater popularity. Its plot has been more carefully considered and skilfully elaborated, and many facts are so interwoven with the body of the fiction as to give the narrative almost the power of truth."

One volume 12mo. Price $1 25.

A BRILLIANT NEW NOVEL,
FRANK HILTON; Or, THE QUEEN'S OWS.
A companion to "Harry Lorrequer," &c.
Price 50 cents.

"A reader on the look-out for a novel, crammed full of incident, excitement, and the wildest adventure, will find in 'Frank Hilton' what he desires. It is clever—some of the descriptions of Eastern and desert scenes are even beautiful. The story is built up like a castle in the clouds—the impossibilities are bridged over with all the smoothness of a dream. There are neither jinn nor magicians, as in the 'Arabian Nights,' to assist when matters come to a 'dead fix;' but in return the heroes the heroines, and all connected with them, are endowed with ten lives and the faculty of turning every one of them to the best account. The reader is carried on breathless to the end of the book, and will feel sorry when it comes to a close." [London Athenæum.

In short, it will be their purpose to render THE SCHOOLFELLOW a welcome visitor and a valued friend among the children of every family.
