WHO KILLED COCK ROBIN?
There is a great deal of talk now-a-days, about disunion. If the South has its way, the North will bolt; if the North has its way, the South will bolt; disunion, therefore, seems inevitable. In such a crisis we may well ask, in the glowing words of Daniel Webster, "Where, then, shall our flag wave? where shall the eagle tower? The fact is, owing to the puerile mismanagement and chronic stupidity of those who have been at the head of affairs for a few years past, the once glorious Flag of our country has become a mere rag of disunion, an affair of dissolution and decay; and its emblematical bird is now only a poor, dying cock robin, lying on its back, with its claws quivering in the air. Under such circumstances the question naturally arises, Who killed cock robin? Perhaps the narrative might be made a matter of instruction as well as of amusement, by throwing it into a familiar form, thus:

Who killed cock robin?
"I," said ROBERT BONNER;
"I did, upon my honor,
And I killed cock robin."
Who saw him die?
"I," said CALLENDER of Philadelphia;
"With my Argus eye,
I saw him die."
Who caught his blood?
"I," said SYLVANUS COBB;
"I did the little job,
And I caught his blood."
Who'll dig his grave?
"We," said ROSS & TOUSEY;
"We quit him when he got drowsy,
And we'll dig his grave."
Who'll make his shroud?
"We," said the crowd—
And they spoke very loud—
"We'll gladly make his shroud."
Who will ring the bell?
"We," said the newsmen;
"We'll gladly ring the bell,
Because he didn't sell."
Who will now buy him?
"I," said Sam Yates.
"It's the work of the fates,
And I'll now buy him."

Then they buried him, at dead of night,
The sod with an old "Pic" turning,
A bogus Lieutenant holding the light,
And at the LEDGER'S success all squirming.

"At night he heard the lion roar,
And the hyena scream,
And the river-horse, as he crushed the reeds
Beside some hidden stream;
And it passed like a glorious roll of drums
Through the triumph of his dream."

NOW READY, and for sale by all Booksellers—That "intensely interesting narrative of adventure:"

This unique publication excited the greatest sensation, and circulated with the rapidity of lightning throughout France, on its first appearance in Almanac form, and is now meeting with equal success in Great Britain. It cannot fail to meet with universal popularity among ourselves. The present work is a new, graphic and minute record of the Lion-Killer's wonderful achievements during the whole of his ten years of Arab life.
DERBY & JACKSON, Publishers, No. 119 Nassau-st.

A CHARMING FAMILY STORY.
MARGARET MAITLAND,
OF SUNNYSIDE.
By MRS. OLIPHANT, author of "Zaidee." 12mo., 75 cents.
"We have seldom read a more fascinating story than 'Margaret Maitland.' Those who have read 'Zaidee' need not be told of the irresistible charms of the author's style. The novel before us is not of the 'thrilling' or 'intense' class. Its object is not to pander to a depraved taste, but to improve the heart and to entertain the mind by representing human actions and events as they occur in real life. No book has been better received in England, where we see it passed through several editions in the course of six months, and we do not hesitate to predict that it is destined to become equally popular in this country. Mrs. Oliphant has now avowed herself as the author, and, consequently attached at once a high rank among the literary magnates of Great Britain. Our lady readers will be particularly pleased, indeed, we might say delighted, with 'Margaret Maitland.' It is replete with incident, the characters are truthfully delineated, and there is vivacity and originality in the style which are rarely found combined." [Philadelphia News.
"It is a charming book—simple yet exquisitely artistic—interesting in a high degree, yet healthful and good." [Springfield Republican.
G. P. PUTNAM & Co., No. 321 Broadway.

THE N. Y. INDEPENDENT is a good judge of good books. It says:
"COZZENS'S SPARROWGRASS PAPERS
is full of droll conceits, delicate satire, genial humor, exquisite pictures of nature, and pleasing touches of home life; such as one looks for instinctively in 'Letters from Idlewild.' Now that these papers are embodied in a volume, they will be read by hundreds with the interest of novelty, and re-read by hundreds more with the zest of a remembered pleasure."

"WHO WROTE the TEXAN CRUISER?"—This question was lately asked in all the dailies by some of Ballou's Pictorial people. We reply: SYLVANUS COBB, jr., the man who is now writing the STORM SECRET for THE NEW-YORK LEDGER, wrote the TEXAN CRUISER, notwithstanding Ballou advertised it as having been written by T. Buringame Ross, when he KNEW that COBB wrote it, and that he PAID Cobb for writing it. Cobb is now writing solely for THE NEW-YORK LEDGER, and he is the man who wrote not only the Texan Cruiser but nearly all the other long stories published in Ballou's Pictorial and The Flag of our Union of late, many of which were published under the nome de plume of Austin C. Burdick and Horace B. Stanford; but he is not going to write another line for those papers. HE wrote the Texan Cruiser, and Ballou himself says it is the best sea story ever published in newspaper form. Is the question answered?
