The Mother of Love, by a messenger dove,
To Lovers sends this proclamation,
That Two Ninety-three, in Broadway is to be Cupid's regular Valentine Station.
There is a brilliant display, of his billets so gay,
Of all styles, in diction and colors
RANNEY'S counters adorn, and as sure as your's born,
The price runs from dimes up to dollars.
If gilded designs, and soft musical lines,
The bosom of Beauty can warm,
If hearts can be caught, by a passionate thought,
Or pictures the fancy can charm,
At A. RANNEY'S you'll find, the true-heart piercing kind
Of Valentines, ardent and tender,
But the best's yet to tell—with each billet they sell
Comes a present of exquisite splendor.
The present you can, if you fancy the plan,
Inclose in the Valentine cover,
And where is the breast, cold enough to resist
Such a double attack from a lover.

Our thanks are tendered to our enterprising brethren in the trade who with such charming wit and liberality occupy a column in this morning's TRIBUNE, mainly in calling attention to Mrs. Sherman's Edition. The considerable inquiry for it already excited admonishes us that some acknowledgment is due, and as we cannot pretend to that poetic fire, glowing genius and exquisite taste which would enable us to reciprocate in kind, we must content ourselves with offering our very sincere thanks.
