Robinson, is one of the most humorous productions ever offered to the public by an American author. It is commenced in the NEW-YORK MERCURY for this week, and will provoke one long roar of hearty laughter from Maine to Texas, and from ocean to ocean. Hence, the reading public cannot fail to devour with avidity the excruciatingly funny exploits of the inimitable "GOOD-FOR-NOTHING DICK," whose humorous biography, by Dr. J. H. ROBINSON, commences in the NEW-YORK MERCURY for this week. For irresistible drollery, quick wit, and general fun, this "Good-for-Nothing" genius never had a rival, and the tens of thousands who wish to laugh at his "irrepressible" oddities can procure the NEW-YORK MERCURY, in which they are emblamed, at any newsstand or book-store in the country.
