A NEW JUVENILE BOOK,
BOYS AT CHEQUASSET;
Or,
"A LITTLE LEAVEN,"
It is written by a successful authoress, a lady of rare culture and exquisite taste, and chronicles this Summer's Adventures of JOHNNIE OSBORN, a bright-eyed lad of ten years, who, with his father, mother and sister, moved into the country last May.
"Egg Collecting" has had as great a run with country boys as the "Postage Stamp" collecting mania with the city boys. Johnnie and two other lads made collections, and through them wrought out the charming lesson of the book, how
"A LITTLE LEAVEN LEAVENETH THE WHOLE LUMP."
It is the best boy's book I ever read, so natural, so real, so instructive and entertaining.
Over and over again it will be read, and the lesson taught never will be forgotten.
Parents, be sure and secure a copy for the Christmas and read it yourselves. There has not been a novel published this season more fascinating.
PRICE 75 CENTS.
☞ For sale at APPLETONS' and by all Booksellers.

New Publications.

A NEW EDITION
OF THE
STATUTES OF NEW-YORK.
W. C. LITTLE
Has in Press, and will soon Publish,
A NEW EDITION
OF THE
REVISED AND OTHER GENERAL STATUTES
OF THE STATE,
BY JUDGE EDMONDS.
The work will contain the Revised Statutes, and all the general laws of the State now in force.
The REVISED STATUTES proper will be published precisely as the Legislature has formed them, up to the present time. No liberties will be taken with them; no portions will be left out, because deemed inconsistent with the new Constitution, the Judiciary Act, the Code of Procedure, or any other independent enactment; no provisions will be added, though on the same subjects with those reached by the Revised Statutes. But the text of the law, as the Legislature has enacted it, will be followed with severe fidelity. Thus leaving it to the Courts, whose peculiar province it is, to decide (where the Legislature has not expressly repealed or added provisions) how far the Statutes have been modified, enlarged, or annulled.
This scrupulous adherence to the text is carried even to the numbering of the sections; the original numbers being in all instances preserved, and no other numbers being given. So that where a section has been repealed, its number is dropped out and the other sections are not affected by it, and where sections are added and they come so as to interfere with others, they are distinguished as § 22a § 27b and so on, and the numbering of the other sections is undisturbed.
The object, in fine, being to publish the Revised Statutes precisely as they are, and not as the editor may deem they ought to be, or as he might believe the courts would decide them to be.
The General Statutes will be published with the like rigid adherence to the law as it has been enacted. They will be clustered together in topics, according to the topical arrangement of the Revised Statutes, and under each topic, the enactments will be published in chronological order, and in chapters just as they were enacted.
In this manner, it is attempted to have the publication contain all the general statutes in force in the year 1862 just as they are.
To each section, as well of the General as the Revised Statutes, will be added a reference to all the reported cases that have been decided in reference to the particular section from the earliest date of our reports.
There will be four full and minute indexes; one to each Constitution, one to the Revised Statutes, and one to the General Statutes, with reference in the Revised Statutes, to the General Statutes, which relate to the same subject.
The "Revisers' Notes," will be included in this edition of the Revised Statutes, the publishers having purchased the copy right.
The work has occupied the attention of the editor for some 2 or 4 years, and now that it approaches completion has been submitted to the examination of some of our most eminent jurists, who have expressed their unqualified approval of it. We are permitted in this connection to give some of their opinions of the work. The plan was also submitted to Messrs. Butler and Duer, during their lifetime, and received their approval.
The work is now passing through the press of Weed, Parsons & Co., of Albany, with entire new type, and in the best style of composition and press work, and will be ready early in February next. Orders are solicited which will be filled according to their priority in time.
Albany, October 2, 1862.
WEARE C. LITTLE,
Law Bookseller, &c., Publisher.

Letter from Judge Selden, of the Court of Appeals.
ALBANY, Oct. 11, 1862.
Hon. JOHN W. EDMONDS:
Dear Sir: I have carefully examined the pages of your edition of the Revised and General Statutes now in press, which you submitted to me, and am much pleased with the plan of the work. The preservation of the text as well as the original numbers of the sections, both of the Revised Statutes and Session Laws, with references to other statutes where changes have been made, seems to me to be decidedly preferable to new numbers of sections and emendations of the text, which have been adopted by other editors.
The great care which appears to have been bestowed in collecting and placing under each section, a reference to all the adjudications bearing upon it cannot fail to prove useful. I think the work is needed, and hope you may be well rewarded for your great labor in preparing it.
Very respectfully yours,
HENRY R. SELDEN.

Letter from Mr. Justice Allen, of the Supreme Court.
ALBANY, Oct. 13, 1862.
Hon. JOHN W. EDMONDS:
Dear Sir: I have examined with much interest your proposed edition of the Statutes of this State, and am persuaded that it will meet a present necessity, and be favorably received by the legal profession and by the public.
Your plan for the collation and arrangement of the general laws now in force, grouping together so far as might be all the laws, and at the same time preserving with care the divisions and sectional numbers of the Revised Statutes, was, I think, happily conceived, and has been faithfully executed.
The notes and references to judicial decisions, evidently prepared with great labor, will give especial value to the work as an aid to professional duties.
The lapse of time since the last revisal of our statutes, renders such a work as yours desirable at this time, and I doubt not that it will prove a success.
Very respectfully yours,
WILLIAM F. ALLEN.

Letter from Judge Hodgeboom, of the Supreme Court.
HUDSON, Oct. 13, 1862.
Hon. JOHN W. EDMONDS:
Dear Sir: My attention has been called to the prospectus and proof sheets of your proposed edition of the Revised Statutes. I highly approve of the plan and object of your publication. It appears to me to possess the following, among other advantages.
1. It preserves entire the text and numbers of the sections of the original edition, and thus enables the diligent student and careful lawyer to compare them with subsequent statutes, and determine for himself by a careful composition, precisely the effect of subsequent amendments or alterations, without taking the mere opinion of the editor or compiler. The preservation of the numbering of the original sections is also important, as subsequent legislation usually does or ought to refer to the text of the original edition.
2. The references at the foot of each section to every subsequent statute, either altering, amending, or in any way bearing upon the subject matter of the section, and to every judicial decision construing or referring to the same, furnish invaluable guides to the lawyer and judge.
3. The embodying, in subsequent volumes of your edition, of all Legislative enactments subsequent to the Revised Statutes, not only those directly amending, altering or repealing portions of the Revised Statutes, but also all subsequent general legislation upon the same subject, and preserving the same topical arrangement and classification adopted in the Revised Statutes.
4. The incorporation of all the notes of the revisers, which embrace in themselves a valuable digest of the law on the subjects of which they treat.
5. The indexes appear to me both valuable and minute.
I shall be glad if your work obtains, as I think it deserves, general circulation among the profession.
I am, very truly yours,
HENRY HOGEBOOM.

UNABRIDGED.—VICTOR HUGO'S
LES MISERABLES.
THE ONLY COMPLETE TRANSLATION.
CARLETON'S COPYRIGHT EDITION.
A splendid man with a splendid purpose has written a book. It is a romance. For fiery brilliance it is the solar sun of the romances. It is a history. Hume, Thiers, or Macaulay have written none more graphic or imperishable. It is a drama. Shakespeare's best does not excel it. It is a metaphysical and philosophical novel. Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton is eclipsed by it. * * * * * * *
The book is preaching and will ever preach, powerfully, resoundingly preach the great, deep, sweet religion that the Only Man went about doing and being. * * * What Hugo compresses into a page, a painter would require an acre for. * * * The first fifty pages of Cosette—there are no fifty pages in uninspired literature to compete with them.
