and that the arrest and trial of Mr. Vallandigham was upon his own responsibility.

After the arrest of Mr. Vallandigham, President Lincoln telegraphed to Gen. Burnside that he would sustain him in his efforts to support the Government.

CINCINNATI, May 24, 1863.

Vallandigham arrived at Louisville yesterday morning. The boat arrived too late for the Nashville train, and anchored in the stream all day.

Wm. G. Creppen, for nineteen years connected with the daily press, and widely known as "Invisible Green," died last night.

The National Finances.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24, 1863.

The subscription agent reports the sale of $2,307,000 yesterday in the agencies in New-York, Boston, Philadelphia, and the West, and the aggregate for the week is $13,184,950. The whole amount of sales by popular subscription reaches the enormous aggregate of $91,742,350, with no prospect of diminution. This does not include the amounts sold by the Treasury and Sub-Treasuries, which will swell the figure to $105,000,000, showing a degree of confidence in the Union cause and ultimate success which has no parallel in history.

From Bermuda.

The Bermuda Gazette of the 12th instant is received:

The brig Solferino, arrived at St. George's on the 10th instant from New-York, reports, on the 9th saw a large steamer supposed to be a blockade runner.

The Rebel steamer Columbia sailed for St. George's on the 8th for Nassau. No news.

From Port Royal.

The United States transport Ben Deford, Capt. Hallet, from Port Royal, S. C., 19th inst., arrived at this port on Saturday morning. She has 44 cabin passengers and 227 returned soldiers. There is no news of any importance in the Department of the South. Everything is quiet. The health of the troops is excellent, not a single death having occurred in the entire Department during the past week.

Returning Regiments.

On Saturday afternoon, the 31st Regiment New-York Volunteers arrived in this city, via Camden and Amboy line, from Philadelphia. The regiment returns with 313 men. It was recruited principally in this city, two or three of the companies, however, were raised in Williamsburgh and Brooklyn. The regiment was organized by Col. Pratt, and by him led into action at the first Bull Run engagement. When Col. Pratt was made a Brigadier-General, the command of the 31st was given to Col. Jones. On their arrival here, they were marched to the Park Barracks, where they stacked arms and remained till about 4 p. m. At that time, Company A, 71st Regiment N. Y. N. G., entered the Park for the purpose of escorting the 31st up Broadway. After the parade, the men returned to the barracks, and partook of a dinner prepared by Mr. Wood of the Astor-House.

The following commissioned officers return with the regiment: Colonel, FRANK JONES; Adjutant, Charles C. Height; Surgeon, Lucien Damoiseville; First Assistant Surgeon, John W. Ripley; Second Assistant Surgeon, O. M. Perry; Quartermaster, Spencer G. Gregory; Chaplain, F. McAlee; Captains, Ed. F. Fraisard, John C. Whiting, L. Dumouzet, R. J. Gordon; Lieutenants, Theo. F. Rich, Wm. W. Tracey, E. Burgess, P. S. Devitt, J. Beaumont, D. S. Lee, Eugene Fraisard, Thos. Egan, Wm. Brown, Charles Ross.

The following are the battles in which this regiment heroically participated: First Bull Run, Gaines's Mill, Golder's Farm, South Mountain, two days; Antietam, Storming Maryes Heights, West Point, Chamberlin's Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Storming of Campton Pass, Fredericksburg.

This regiment has numbered on its rolls 1,700 men, 107 of whom have been lost in the service; 802 three-years' men remain in the field. This gallant regiment was conspicuous in storming the Heights of Fredericksburg, in Gen. Sedgwick's division.

The splendid silk banner presented to the regiment two years ago was brought home on Saturday. It has been torn by bullets and stained with the smoke of battle, and will be sacredly preserved as a souvenir of many bloody engagements. Though soiled and in rags, it is embroidered with honor and ennobilished with deeds of noble daring, and its stars still shine like hope in the hour of peril.

The entertainment provided at the Park Barracks by the Common Council in honor of this regiment was presided over by Capt. Hicks. Speeches were made by Col. Tapers, Col. Lieberman, Col. Jones, and others. The men are hearty and jubilant. Their regiment, his are faced and their faces are broaded, but they appear the better for that in the eyes of loyal men and women.

THIRD NEW-YORK ARTILLERY.

Five hundred of the 3d New-York Artillery Regiment arrived in this city, from Newbern, N.C., on Saturday. On board the transport Thomas Collyer and Ellen S. Terry. The fraction of the 3d New-York artillery, which went take the service as the 19th Infantry, being now 527 men, return after being two years in the United States service. They have been all that time on duty in Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, under the command of Major-Gens. Sandford, Mansfield, Peterson, Banks, McClellan, Burnside and Foster, and Brigadier-Gens. Butterfield, Thomas, Gordon, Biddle, Williams, Porter, Berry, Pare, Reno, Stevenson and Leslie.

Brig-Gen. Leslie returns with the regiment. Major Giles, Surgeon Pilsen, Chaplain Hart, Capts. White, Gavigan and Wall; Lieuts. Tomlinson, Powers, Randolph, Titus, Boyce, Brannich, Dwine, Thompson, Hamilton and Havens leave the service with the old regiment.

Their first meeting with the enemy was at Martinsburgh, Va., July 9, 1861, when one man was killed, two taken prisoners, and three of the enemy disabled.

Next at Lovetsville, where Capts. Kennedy and Stephens, with 100 men, crossed the Potomac, attacked and routed 150 Rebel cavalry, emptying nine saddles and losing no men.

In December, 1861, the regiment was turned into artillery. After nearly a year's service on the Potomac, the regiment went to North Carolina, where they have taken an honorable part in every engagement, and now return with their banner bearing the following inscriptions, by order of their commanding Generals, under authority of the War Department:

Fort Macon, April 26, 1862.
Washington, N. C., Sept. 6, 1862.
Rawle's Mills, Nov. 2, 1862.
Kinston, Dec. 14, 1862.
Whitehall, Dec. 16, 1862.

The men are now stopping at the Park Barracks.

THE THIRTY-SEVENTH AND THIRTY-EIGHTH REGIMENTS.

The 37th (Irish Rifles) and the 38th (Second Scott Life Guard) will arrive in New-York on or before the 3d of June next.

"As these two regiments have served side by side during the past two years in the same division (the gallant and lamented Kearney's, and enjoyed his confidence above all others), I am exceedingly anxious that they should have a reception from their fellow-citizens commensurate with their great deserts.

"The losses in these two regiments in killed and wounded, during the war, exceed 1,200 men.

"Having acquitted themselves, on all occasions, with distinguished bravery and devotion, I can say, without fear of dispute, that no two regiments in the army can exhibit a better record."

Brig.-Gen. J. H. Hobart Ward will accompany these regiments.

REORGANIZATION OF THE BLOODY OLD THIRTEENTH.

Col. E. G. Marshall has received authority from the Government to reorganize his regiment. He begins immediately. The old Adjutant, Job C. Hedges, was yesterday mustered in as Adjutant of the 14th N. Y. V. Artillery, which is the name of the new organization. Of the old 13th and its officers we need say nothing. They have all proved themselves fighting men. Col. Marshall's reputation as a brave, gallant and efficient officer will be a tower of strength in the new organization. The old men will go with him almost to a man. Major Hyland of Dansville proposes to raise a company, as also Capts. Sullivan, Cooper and Conley, and Lieut. J. Elliott Williams. [Rochester Express.

Conference of the African M. E. Church.

The Conference met again on Saturday forenoon. The announcement that the Committee on the State of the Nation would present a report, filled the house with white and colored auditors. The Rev. Mr. JONES, Chairman of the Committee, presented the preamble and resolutions, which are spirited and patriotic. The Committee point with pride to the outspoken sentiment of various Conferences and reiterate their unyielding devotion to the national flag and to fortunes of the Federal Government in prosperity, and adversity in life and death, their confidence in the National Administration, remedies unimpaired; they regret the seeming reluctance with which the great principles of justice, judgment and right, are adopted the nation, by reason of which it has failed to secure fully the aid of that Almighty arm, which can only be enlisted in the interest of justice and right they are, nevertheless, thankful to God for the slow but certain advancement of this whole nation toward that righteousness that exalteth a nation; and they pray that its progress may never be checked. That the insinuation that the colored people are cowardly or unpatriotic, is triumphantly answered as well by the partial history of the present struggle as by the half-suppressed record of the manly aid they have rendered in every previous conflict in which the interests of the nation have been imperiled.

That the promptitude with which colored men have enlisted in Massachusetts, Washington, D. C., along the banks of the Mississippi, the Carolinas, and elsewhere, in the absence of any assurance of protection from being murdered, or sold if captured, or of their families being cared for during their absence, and in the absence of many other incentives which induced white men to volunteer, is a standing tribute to their bravery and patriotism; and that it is their opinion that with such incentives as influence other men, they would equal, if not surpass, in all that is manly, those who seek to disparage them. That they tender their brethren and companions in arms their warm sympathy and hearty God speed, and that they earnestly call on colored men, everywhere, to prepare and stand ready to give a patriotic response to every call, whenever the Government shall indicate, by proper guarantee of the rights of colored soldiers its appreciation of their services.

On motion of the Rev. Dr. GRAY the resolutions were unanimously adopted. A debate respecting the publication of the resolutions followed.

Last evening several of the ministers of the Conference preached in several churches in this city and in Brooklyn.

Among the noted men of color at the Conference meeting, on Saturday, was the Rev. Mr. Logan of Syracuse, one of most distinguished conductors on the underground railroad.

Receipts of treasure from the mines since the sailing of the last steamer, $2,000,000, being the largest arrival for a like period during the year. The prospect is the mines will yield more than any former season.

Judge Field has resigned from the State Supreme Court to take his place in the United States Circuit Court.

E. B. Crocker has been appointed to succeed Mr. Field.

From Panama — The Legislature — Mr. Squier—The News from Mexico.

PANAMA, May 16, 1863.

The last steamer took up all the news from Central and South America. Since then, there have been no arrivals from either point.

Here everything remains as when I last wrote. The State Legislature is in session, but has done nothing of importance yet. A proposition is before it to grant a concession for the opening of a steam line on the coast of the State, which will probably pass into a law. Some of the members are trying to get the Governor into trouble about the State finances, and may succeed. There is a strong party trying to get him out of office and put a worse one in. Nothing has been decided yet regarding the removal of the Capital of the Republic to Panama. It is said that Mosquera is very anxious for it.

Mr. Squier, the Commissioner to Peru, passed through this week. He left yesterday for Central America, and will go south in June.

The North Star arrived at Aspinwall on the 17th inst.

The Constitution, from San Francisco, got in this morning at 8 o'clock. She brings important news from Mexico. The dates from Puebla are to the 30th of April. The French were driven out of Puebla at the point of the bayonet. The Mexicans fought them for seven hours with swords and bayonets, and the loss on both sides is very heavy. It is said the French have lost 6,000. Juarez had come down to Puebla, and had held a council of war as to the propriety of becoming the offensive instead of the defensive party. It is thought that another attack will not be made on Puebla by the French with their present force, and it is likely they will return to the seaboard.

The rainy season has set in. The roads to Vera Cruz are bad, and infested with guerrillas, and the yellow fever may be soon looked for. You will, no doubt have a confirmation of this news via Havana, as it appears trustworthy.

From Central America.

The second invasion of Salvador by the President of Guatemala, it appears, proved as unsuccessful as the first. Scarcely had he crossed the frontier when he was notified that a revolution had broken out against him in his own State, and that he had been deposed and a new President placed in his stead.

This compelled him to abandon his project and hurry home, when by prompt measures he succeeded in quelling the revolution, and arresting the ringleaders.

It is probable this may put an end to the war between Guatemala and Salvador, especially as the people of the former State are very much opposed to it.

The Juarez revolution in Nicaragua is not making favorable progress, his army being badly defeated at Leon. It is, however, by no means improbable that he may finally succeed in deposing Martinez, as the spirit of the people of Nicaragua appears to be always in favor of the revolutionary party.

Regarding the transit, it is doubtful whether the passengers will be allowed to cross the territory or not. No one appears to know anything about it.

The Congress of Costa Rica had been convened for the 1st May. The new President, Sr. Jesus Jimenez, will take his seat on the 8th inst. Dr. Montealegre retires from office, taking with him the good will of the people, and Sr. Jimenez is looked upon as a man well fitted to manage the Executive.

The coffee crop has finally turned out larger than anticipated by 10,000 quintals.

There is but a small quantity unshipped, which is held at $16.

INVALID GENTLEMEN.—It is not, perhaps, as generally known as would be to the interest of invalids, that the ROYAL HILL WATER-CURE, in Northampton, Mass., possesses superior advantages for the treatment of gentlemen also. Its success in breaking up building, and dangerous diseases, dependent upon impurities in the blood, and of scrofula in the system, and in the cure of nervousness, sleeplessness, debilitating dreams, low spirits, loss of memory, dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, and gout, is unparalleled.

The treatment is efficient in remedying sick and other headaches, of however confirmed a habit, and all bilious tendencies.

Marked success has also been had in bronchitis, in restoring broken down constitutions, and in arresting torpid, nervous, and debilitated systems to strength and activity.

For the success in other cases, and the great favor given the Oriental Turkish, Russian, Chemical, and other Baths, see circular.
