THE GREAT VICTORY.

General Dispatches—Continued.

COURTESY DESPATCH.

WASHINGTON, Monday, July 6—12:30 a. m.

The following is the latest official information:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF POTOMAC, July 5—10 p. m.

MAJ.-GEN. HALLECK: The enemy retired under cover of the night and the heavy rain, in the direction of Fairfield and Cashtown.

Our cavalry are in pursuit.

I cannot give you the details of our captures in prisoners, colors and arms.

Upward of twenty battle-flags will be turned in from one corps.

My wounded and those of the enemy are in our hands. GEO. G. MEADE, Major-General.

The Capture of Artillery and Prisoners.

Private dispatch to the Tribune.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, July 5, 1863.

The Rebels are flying to the mountains. We have captured 118 pieces of artillery and thirteen thousand prisoners. You may expect a decisive victory. B. F. C.

The Retreat.

HARRISBURG, Monday, July 6—1 a. m.

Official information leaves no doubt that Lee's army is in full retreat. The line of retreat is not definitely known.

It is either through Cashtown or Fairfield; which-ever way it is Gen. Meade appears to have the advantage, as he is posted at Gettysburg, and is pushing our forces both toward Newman's Cut, directly west, and to Fairfield south-west.

Nothing is known as to the exact situation. Lee is probably trying to retreat by both routes.

It is supposed that he does not know of the destruction of the pontoon bridge.

The portion of the Rebel army last night was, with his left near Hunterstown, and his right across the Emmettsburg road, thus forming a semi circle around Gettysburg.

Gen. Lee operates from the center and Lee on the arc of a circle.

No information can be sent as to the movements of our army, but all our Generals are vigilant, and the troops in the best of spirits.

Col. George H. Ward, 15th Massachusetts, killed; his body is in Baltimore. Lieut. C. M. Shibley, Company K, Ohio Artillery. Lieut.-Col. George Arrowsmith, of the 157th New-York, was killed while gallantly fighting at the head of his regiment on Wednesday. Col. Arrowsmith was in command of the 157th. Gen. Schemmelfennig was not wounded, although he had a horse shot under him, and was taken prisoner. While the Rebels held the town of Gettysburg, Gen. Schemmelfennig was concealed in a house, and as they retreated he returned to his command. Gen. Sickles is said to have arrived in town to-day, and is doing well. Gen. Hancock was wounded in the upper part of the thigh, and told your correspondent that he had no fear of the result. Col. Amsberg, of the 55th New-York, who commanded the Third Division, Eleventh Corps, is safe. Col. P. P. Brown, in command of Schemmelfennig's Brigade, is safe.

Nine hundred Rebel prisoners, belonging to Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi regiments, arrived here to-day on their way to Fort McHenry. There were about sixty commissioned officers. Among them are the following names of officers as your correspondent was able to get them:

| | |

The Wounded in the Recent Battles.

HARRISBURG, July 5, 1863.

The following correspondence by telegraph took place to-day:

HARRISBURG, July 5, 1863.

Surgeon-Gen. HAMMOND, Washington:

Our people over the State are exceedingly anxious to render aid and assistance to the wounded at Gettysburg. Will you say how many volunteer surgeons I may send?

You may be assured that our people will take the wounded to their houses, and render every assistance that the most careful nursing may demand, and that our public buildings can be used as hospitals to any extent. Inasmuch as the battle occurred in Pennsylvania, I say that our people at least be not removed out of the State. You will readily notice the propriety of this, and the interest it will certainly be to the public service in future. A. G. CURTIN.

WASHINGTON, 5:45 p. m., July 5, 1863.

To Governor CURTIN: Pennsylvania troops will be cared for as far as possible in Pennsylvania. Five thousand vacant beds in Philadelphia, which have been ordered, will be first filled. We have plenty of hospital room prepared, where the wounded will be more comfortably cared for than in any extemporized hospitals. The Medical Director of the Army of the Potomac has plenty of surgical aid.

By order of the Surgeon-General.

JAMES R. SMITH, Asst.-Surg.-Gen.

Attack on Beverly, West Va.—Repulse of the Enemy.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

BALTIMORE, July 5, 1863.

Jackson with seventeen hundred men and ten pieces of artillery, attacked Beverly, Western Virginia, on the 2d inst. Measures were taken to resist the attack. Col. Harris, with a regiment of troops numbering 600, was ordered to hold the enemy in check till reinforcements should arrive, which he did. The mounted regiments reached there the same evening,
