The "Martyr" on his Travels.

VALLANDIGHAM LEAVES CANADA IN DISGUISE —HOW AND WHERE HE CROSSED THE RIVER.

The telegraph has already informed the readers of The Advertiser and Tribune of the fact that Vallandigham, who has been waiting and watching over the border for several months past, arrived safely at Dayton, Ohio, on Wednesday last. Of course this news created a great deal of sensation, and much speculation was indulged in relative to the manner in which he made his way from Canada into the United States. Various theories have been advanced by different parties, none of whom seem to have arrived at the true solution of the mystery. Some have it that he took the Great Western Railway at Hamilton, others advance the argument that he was taken from Amhurstburg in a egg-boat and deposited near Sandusky.

We have taken pains to ascertain the facts in the case, which are briefly as follows: For some time past the "martyr" has been known to indulge in the pastime of fishing in Detroit River, a few miles below Sandwich, at the old "Red Tavern." On Tuesday evening last, he left the Hirons House for the above locality, where he remained until about ½ o'clock, at which time he was conveyed across the river at Wyandotte, where he took the Michigan Southern road. A man residing in this city is known to have purchased a ticket over this road for Cincinnati on that day, and as he did not leave the city at all, it is fair to presume that it was obtained for Vallandigham. Be that as it may, "Val" crossed the river at Wyandotte, he previously having been disguised so as to avoid detection, and at about 10 o'clock he was on his way to Ohio in a sleeping-car.
