The Democratic Party.

[Correspondence.]

No. 169 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, Nov. 14, 1864.

Dear Sir: Referring to your very eloquent oration at Cooper Institute, Nov. 2, the ablest appeal of the campaign to the old Democratic party to support the Republican Union ticket, I would very respectfully beg leave to make inquiry as to your precise meaning when in the conclusion you say, "we will huddle under this Lincoln shell until Democracy finds us a better roof to shield us from the tempest." The plain interpretation is, that not being able at present to do any better, you accept the candidates and policy of the Republican Union party as a choice of two evils, and that there are some things far preferable which you and the Democratic party cannot now but may in the future attain for the general good.

I dismiss as unworthy of a moment's consideration the suggestion that coequal in your regard is the success of the Union and Democratic party and that you are of that class of sincere partisans who by conviction and habit believe that they are inseparable and identical. I prefer to regard you as of that other rank which frankly avows Tempora mutant et nos mutamur; free translation: Wise men change their opinions; fools never; and, far removed from the needs of office and servile ties of party, you seek for and advocate the eternal principles of truth and justice. Thus well impressed as to your character and desires, and by the eloquent oration persuaded that you are profoundly schooled in the doctrines which have divided the great political parties of the country, I would ask, for the benefit of others who are now and ever have been desirous of membership with the best political organization, that you will state what principles and policy you would prefer and adopt if now or in the future the Democracy should succeed to the general Government, which in their character and intent differ from those cherished and avowed by the present dominant party.

You were pleased to pay a handsome meed of praise to the sentiments of the Baltimore Platform and a just tribute to the great and good man who has through the unparalleled dangers and trials of the past three and a half years guided our ship of state; accrediting him with a pure and simple purpose of performance of duty which we may well believe is to him dearer than a thousand encomiums for great deeds accomplished. With equal power, but with fiery invective, you stigmatized and denounced the Chicago platform and its framers, exposing its falsity and cowardice; and with argument, eloquent and unanswerable, pointed out to the bewildered and unhappy Democracy the course of duty. This was noble; like to the heroism of those brave soldier Democrats, Butler, Sherman, Logan, and others, who, rising superior to all narrow party obligations, rallied to the flag and lawful authorities. But you go further than they, and for that I trouble you with this letter; for you frankly confess that neither the candidates nor their principles are as acceptable to you as they might be, and that only under a Democratic rule can our country attain its highest prosperity and glory. "Until Democracy finds a better roof to shield us from the tempest." Pray tell us what is this all-potential, wonder-working Democracy that in the days to come is to shield and bless us in a manner and degree that the present rulers and their successors elect can never pretend to because they are not Democrats? What men will you elect to the highest offices who in themselves better represent Democracy than those presented by the Baltimore Convention—self-made, hard-working men, who by the exercise of Heaven-endowed superiority of heart and mind, and their own industry, have risen from the humblest walks of life to the most distinguished honors of the Republic? What endeared doctrine of the Democratic party would you resuscitate from the cobwebs and tomb and present anew as a panacea and philosopher's stone for the defects and wants of our body politic? Time and the acts of the opponents of a high tariff have happily solved that vexed question in favor of the protectionists to American industry, and the advocates of a National Bank have lived to see the successful working of its cardinal principles admired and lauded by its ancient adversaries. The later party differences as to squatter sovereignty and State rights, by the act of emancipation have lost their significance, or will necessarily be forever determined by the issue of the conflict of arms, which, like the resistless tornado in its rage, prostrates in common ruin the fairest works of nature and of man, yet in its course bears away the plague and pestilence that so long had cursed the land,

And all the clouds that lowered upon our house
In the deep bosom of ocean buried.

In the spirit of the father of American Democracy, in happy terms you proclaimed, "last to come and to last always, Emancipation!" The banners of the Republican party of 1856 published in measured terms its simple mission—Free speech, free press, free soil, free men—and in its matured and broader nationality those sentiments are re-declared as the vital principles of American liberty.

Where, then, will you find a purer democracy than is presented in Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson, and in the declarations and acts of the party organized and adopted by patriots of all parties who loved truth, justice, and humanity more than a blind fealty to names, which, in their perversion and misuse, had ceased to guide and rule aright?

Dear is the title of Democrat to all who sincerely profess the faith—Vox populi, vox Dei; and may not they who contend for equal political rights to all, and that the majority shall rule, lay claim to it? Has not the time arrived for calling parties and men by their right names; and are we not now under the sheltering roof of triumphant Democracy?

Your obedient servant, FRANCIS G. YOUNG.

(Reply.)

FRANCIS G. YOUNG, esq.—Dear Sir: I owe you an apology for not answering your communication sooner. I have been confined to my room by a severe cold.

I am afraid you misapprehended my remark some that at the Cooper Institute. There was no such intimation as supposed that only under Democratic rule could the nation be happy and prosperous.

Having just escaped from the clutches of a name that meant nothing, to accept a cause that had done something when I said "until Democracy finds us a better roof," I meant no more than any one should mean who intends to go back to the name of Democracy whenever the name goes back to the principles of Democracy. Until 1861, the Democratic party with very great faults, had rendered great service to the country. The balls from the Morris Island batteries seem to have entered the head of the organization, and scattered to the wind the brains that should have been used to control the winds and waves of this contest.

I follow the substance and not the shadow of the Democratic element. I shall support the party which best exemplifies, in the most practical way, the best means to harmonize, under a written instrument, the varied interests and obligations of a united people.

If Mr. Lincoln's party accomplish this, then they are the true Democratic party. In ordinary times, I do not believe in a high tariff or a National Bank. In the present great trouble, if the paper is strong enough to bridge the awful gap, I am with it for the present.

I am also opposed to over-working in calm times, the Constitution with more virtue than it can bear, without rocking the earth. There will always be in this country a party more theoretical and impractical than the other, and that other will always be called the Democratic party. Its opponents will be called by whatever name the varying whim of the hour decides upon. They represent two distinct casts of mind. The one has most ideas, the other directer instincts; one has more intellectuality, the other more common sense; one is dogmatic, visionary and sentimental, doggedly determined you shall go to Heaven or the White House by their right road. The other is more liberal, tolerant and practical. If the latter goes wrong, as in case of slavery, it means only to give to a weaker section what it believes the Constitution guaranteed, and what a well-meaning but interfering party would wrest from them.

The impetuous guilt of the South has made the good intentions of the Democrats seem criminal, while the Republicans also erred in trying to force, by intemperate argument, what free labor was quietly accomplishing on the frontier. The Republican faults are buried in the splendor of the national uprising which associates them with the administration of the Nation's salvation.

I will return your letter if you desire it, while I am decidedly adverse to any print-work.

Yours very truly,

DANVILLE, Penn., June 2, 1862.

DR. WM. H. GRAGG—Dear Sir: In February, 1861, I was afflicted with sugar diabetes, and for five months I passed more than two gallons of water in twenty-four hours. I was obliged to get up as often as ten or twelve times during the night, and in five months I lost about fifty pounds in weight. During the month of July, 1861, I procured two bottles of Constitution Water, and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured, soon after regaining my usual good health.

Yours truly, J. V. L. DEWITT.

HALL'S

VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has proved itself to be the best preparation ever presented to the public; a fact to which thousands who have used it are ready to testify.

A few applications of it will change Brush, Dry and Wiry Hair to the most BEAUTIFUL SILKEN TRESSES!

If the Hair is falling off or becoming gray, the use of the RENEWER will surely arrest its decay, and cause it to assume, in a short time, ALL ITS FORMER BEAUTY. It completely eradicates Scurf and Dandruff, kills hair eaters so destructive to the roots of the Hair, and cures ALL Diseases and Humors of the Scalp.

As a Hair Dressing the SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER is unequaled. It is purely vegetable.

We offer it, KNOWING that it will Bring Back the Hair to its Original Color, Promote its Growth, and in nearly all cases where it has fallen off will restore it, unless the person is very aged. This is not like other preparations, making the hair dry and brashy, but will keep it moist, soft and glossy. Any one who has used the Renewer will testify to the truth of our statements in regard to it. R. P. HALL & CO., Nashua, N. H., Sole Proprietors.

NEW-YORK, 30th November, 1864.

James R. Watson, esq.—DEAR SIR: At a joint meeting of the two Union Aldermanic Conventions of the 17th District, I withdrew in your favor, and you then became the only Union candidate in the field. The action meets my cordial approbation; and I trust your success in the canvass has thus been secured. You may commend my services in your behalf, and permit me to congratulate you upon the unanimity with which the Joint Convention confirmed your nomination.

Truly yours, ROBERT C. BROWN.

The Union Charter Convention, by resolution, empowered the District Convention to fill vacancies, and to confer with other organizations, and to make complete tickets. The two Union organizations in the 17th Ward have unanimously indorsed the nomination of JAMES R. WATSON for Alderman.
