LITERARY ITEMS.

Our countryman, Dr. Thomas W. Evans, surgeon to the Emperors of France and Russia, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, &c., &c., has just added another work to the list of his writings in French on American topics. This is entitled Lettres d'un Oncle à son Neveu sur le Gouvernement des Etats-Unis, and is published by E. Dentu, in Paris. It contains a complete exposition of our political system in its several branches, together with a translation of the Constitution. It will be remembered that Dr. Evans published in Paris last year a historical and descriptive account of our Sanitary Commission (La Commission Sanitaire des Etats-Unis), and a translation of a number of essays on military hygiene and therapeutics presented to the commission, by Drs. Van Buren, Hammond, Stillé, Smith, Metcalf and others. (Essais d'Hygiène et de la Thérapeutique Militaires présentés à la Commission Sanitaire des Etats-Unis). All his French works can be obtained of John Wiley & Son, No. 535 Broadway.

We have received from Lawrence Kehoe, No. 145 Nassau-st., a copy of a portly and well printed volume of "Miscellanies, comprising Reviews, Lectures and Essays, on Historical, Theological and Miscellaneous Subjects, by M. J. Spalding, D. D., Archbishop of Baltimore." (Baltimore: John Murphy & Co.) This is a fourth edition, revised and greatly enlarged, of a work which has attained a high character among Catholics; and as an exposition of the opinions of a representative man among the Roman Catholic hierarchy in this country on a variety of disputed questions, it must possess a peculiar interest and value. Archbishop Spalding stands at the head of the clergy of his faith in this country, not only in his ecclesiastical position, but also in his literary reputation. In this collection of his miscellaneous writings the reader will find all the standard arguments commonly advanced by Catholics in defense of the Church of the Middle Ages, and in answer to the charges brought against her by the best Protestant historians.

Walker, Fuller & Co. will publish, in a few days, "The Truths and Errors of Orthodoxy," by Dr. Clarke.

Messrs. Leypoldt & Holt have just issued new and beautiful editions of Heine's "Pictures of Travel," and "Book of Songs." The former work is calculated to be of special interest at this journeying season, though such praise as Matthew Arnold's stamps it as a book of interest for all times.

Draper & Halliday, Boston, have in press "Winer's Idioms of the New Testament Diction," revised by Prof. J. Henry Thayer of Andover Theological Seminary, and "Murphy's Commentary on Exodus."

Lee & Shepard announce "The Way of the World," a novel, by William T. Adams ("Oliver Optic"). It is not a book for children, but the author's first essay in the field of adult literature.

The office of The American Presbyterian and Theological Review will be hereafter at the bookstore of Scribner & Welford (Charles Scribner & Co).

The Theological Eclectic, edited by Dr. George E. Day, Professor in Yale Theological Seminary, after a career of vicissitude, seems to have achieved at last a permanent place in our literature. Its publication will henceforth be conducted by Messrs. Moore, Wilstach & Baldwin, an enterprising Cincinnati house, who have a branch establishment in New-York, at No. 60 Walker-st.

An association has been formed in Great Britain, under the direction of the eminent geographer Dr. Keith John, son of Edinburgh, to secure a complete exploration of Palestine. A party of gentlemen have already gone to the Holy Land and made some preparatory excavations. At the suggestion of Dr. Johnson, who believes that Tell Humas the true site of ancient Capernaum, they dug into the mound, hoping to find the remains of the synagogue there, popularly called the "White Temple;" and, according to letters just received, were rewarded with complete success, finding the supposed building nearly or quite entire. As this question of the location of Capernaum has been a battle-ground of topographers, these tidings will awaken a fresh interest. Should they prove correct, that will be the only building in which the Savior actually was on earth which can be identified at this day. A perfectly accurate and complete scientific survey of Jerusalem has been made by Capt. Wilson, giving all the localities and measurements with the exactness of the British or the American coast-survey; and but for an unfortunate accident at the last, in the lithographic process, it would have been out at this time. Now it will be delayed for several months, as the work must be done anew. The same parties fixed the depression of the Dead Sea by survey across from the Mediterranean, and found it to correspond within a foot or two of that computed by Lieut. Lynch.

A publication by the Statistical Office of the Kingdom of Italy, gives some interesting notices on the Italian dialects. "The Italian dialects, not alone from the historical but principally from a philological point of view, may be classed into six families, in which classification, however, the subdialects of foreign origin are not counted; the dialects spoken in Venetia, Friuli and Corsica have likewise been omitted, although of Italian origin, but being under foreign government. Firstly, the family of the Italian-Celtic dialects, which are spoken in the province of Turin (with the exception of the district of Aosta and some valleys of the Graian Alps) and in the provinces of Cuneo, Alessandria (excepting the district of Novi), Novara, Milan, Pavia, Bergamo, Brescia, Cremona, Piacenza, Parma, Modena, Reggio, Bologna, Ferrara, Ravenna, Forli as far as the Foglia and toward Pesaro—to which may be still added the canton of Tesino, where a Milanian sub-dialect is spoken, the eastern valleys of the Tridentinum, where a Bresciun sub-dialect is spoken, and the province of Montova; on the whole a territory with more than 8,000,000 inhabitants. Secondly, the family of the Ligurian dialects, which are spoken, with numerous varieties in the pronunciation, all along the coast of Genoa, Mentone to Sarzana, that is, in the Provinces of Genoa and Porto Maurizio, and beside in the District of Novi; on the whole by 800,000 inhabitants. Thirdly, the family of the Tuscan-Roman dialects, which are divided into the three types of the Tuscan, the Umbrian and the Marchipisanian; they are spoken in the Provinces of Florence, Pisa, Arezzo, Siena, Grosseto, Umbria, and in the greater part of the former Marches of Ancona; this territory, inclusive of that under Papal Government, contains about 4,000,000 inhabitants. Fourthly, the family of the Neapolitan dialects, among which is prominent the dialect of the Abruzzi, that of the Pula, and the Neapolitan or Campanian Proper. These dialects are spoken in the three Abruzzi, the Terra di Lavoro, the two Principati, the Provinces of Naples, Benevent, Molire, Capitanata, Terra di Basi, Terra d'Otranto and the Basilicata, together with 6,000,000 inhabitants. Fifthly, the family of the Sicilian dialects, rich in varieties, but with two principal types—the Calabresian and the Sicilian—spoken by more than 3,000,000 inhabitants. And sixthly, the family of the Sardinian dialects, which fall in the two branches of the Campidanese and the Sugudunese, and which are spoken by more than 500,000 inhabitants. Considering the number of the speakers, the Celtic dialects, of foreign origin or relationship, would have to be placed in the first rank. But the groups of the Tuscan-Roman dialects maintain their superiority, inasmuch as the life of the nation has its root in them, drawn its nourishment from them, and also because the other Italian dialects, as the Venetian, which has not been taken here into consideration, the Neapolitan and the Sicilian, are much nearer related to the Tuscan-Roman than to the Celtic type."

A new serial novel, by Henry Kingsley, entitled "Silcote of Silcotes," was commenced in the July number of Macmillan's Magazine. The author of "The Story of Elizabeth" (supposed to be Miss Thackeray) begins a tale called "The Village on the Cliff" in The Cornhill Magazine for the present month; and All the Year Round, in which "The Second Mrs. Tillotson" is drawing near her end, announces "The Tale of Aunt Margaret's Trouble, by a new writer," to be commenced July 14. This "new writer" is said to be Mr. Edmund Yates.

"Prof. Blot's Lectures on Cookery, delivered in Mercantile Hall," is the title of a little pamphlet, printed, we know not where, and published, we know not by whom. It is merely a collection of receipts for which Prof. Blot may or may not be responsible, and one or two pages of hints and observations. There is nothing like a lecture in the book.

ILLUSTRATED GUIDE BOOK TO SPAIN.—TRAVELING IN SPAIN IN THE PRESENT DAY. By HENRY BLACKBURN. One elegantly printed octavo volume, with colored Route Map; twenty beautiful Embellishments; Illustrations of the Picturesque Architecture, Scenery, Manners, &c., of the Country, engraved on wood by the first artists, from drawings by Jean Phillips, Walter Severn, and the Author; and an appendix of "Useful Information for Travelers," on Routes, Railways, Hotels, Expenses, &c., "corrected to May, 1866." Cloth antique, beveled edges. Price, $4 50.

The romantic scenes and sites of the Spanish Peninsula have always possessed a peculiar attraction for travelers from the United States—the country which has given to the world the great classic works (devoted to the illustration of the past glories of its history and literature) of WASHINGTON IRVING, PRESCOTT, TICKNOR, and others. The dangers and difficulties attending travel in this favored region have hitherto limited the access of Tourists, and it was not until the present day that its beauties were thrown open to the world by the facilities supplied by railways. The Author of this book was one of the first to seize the opportunity so afforded. Its pages offer a plain and faithful record of a tour undertaken by a party of four ladies and gentlemen, alive to all objects of interest in art or nature that the country so lavishly present. It will therefore be found to furnish information most essential for the comfort and well being of the traveler, often looked for in vain in works of greater pretensions. Mr Blackburn himself is an elegant amateur artist and his pencil, combined with the sketches of friends, have made of the volume one of the most charmingly illustrated works lately issued. Its appearance is most opportune, at a time when the great part of the continent is closed to travelers (by the war in Central and Southern Europe) who must, consequently seek in other regions for fresh scenes of recreation and pastime.

AGENTS WANTED for HORACE GREELEY'S "AMERICAN CONFLICT."
Vol. I of this History has met with unparalleled success—130,000 having already been sold—and is emphatically indorsed by the press of all parties, by leading Generals of the army, by the President, members of the Cabinet, Senators and Representatives in Congress, State Governors, Literary men, and by thousands politically opposed to the author.
Vol. II (and last) will be published in August, and will more than sustain the high character of the first. In its preparation, the vast amount of time, labor, and pains-taking research, devoted to a careful sifting of the mass of crude surface material adopted by earlier writers without verification, and to the collection of important information hitherto inaccessible or overlooked—including much from the Rebel side—cannot fail, under the eminent qualifications of the author, to produce a record of surpassing excellence, which will supersede all other works on the subject. AS I RECEIVED IT ORALLY FROM THE LATE SENATOR STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS OF ILLINOIS.
By J. MADISON CUTTS, Brevet Lieut.-Col. U. S. A.,
1 vol. small 8vo. cloth. Price $1.75.
"In the Summer of 1859 Mr. Douglas remained in Washington; and as I was very desirous of receiving from him a statement of his own political faith, with the general views of a statesman upon Constitutional, Political, and Party Questions, I prepared, with his consent, a brief analysis of such subjects as I wished him to explain to me. We were in the habit of spending an hour together each evening, until all the questions I had prepared were answered."—Extract from Preface.
