LITERARY ITEMS.

—Messrs. Rivingtons, the London publishers, are preparing a series of Greek and Latin classics, edited by members of the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, under the direction of the Rev. Arthur Holmes, M. A., Fellow and Lecturer of Clare College, Cambridge. The design is to issue texts of all the classical authors that are commonly read, and to illustrate them with an English commentary. The publication of the series will commence early in the Autumn. Among the authors now in hand are mentioned Homer, Sophocles, Aristophanes, Thucydides, Herodotus, Demosthenes, Terence, Virgil, Horace and Juvenal.

—A translation, by Mr. J. E. Lee, of Dr. Ferdinand Keller's recent work on "The Lake Dwellings of Switzerland and other parts of Europe," illustrated with several wood-cuts, and nearly 100 plates, has just been published in London by Longmans, Green & Co.

—Vambéry, the Eastern traveler, is to be confuted by an old MS. Itinerary, which has recently been secured by the St. Petersburgh Imperial Library. It may be remembered that, after Vambéry's assertion that he was the first European who had reached Samarcand since the visit of Marco Polo, several learned persons in St. Petersburgh denied the statement, and offered to prove from the old records in German of a George Louis Von ——, who traveled in Turkestan and passed on to Samarcand, that he had performed the journey generations before Vambéry was born or thought of. The surname of the traveler was not legible on the original MS., but M. de Khanikoff, a learned scholar, is now busily engaged preparing the Itinerary for publication in Paris. The original consists of forty folio pages, and the Itinerary marked thereon goes from Cashmere to Sarasan across the Kirgis steppes by Kasebgar Boier to the famous ice-plateau of Pamir, and thence to the desert land north of Syr Daria.

—The decease of the Rev. Dr. Neale, a prominent member of the High Church party, and warden of Sackville College, East Grinstead, England, is announced. He was born in 1817; and among the works of which he was the author we may mention, "Ayton Priory," "Shepperton Manor," and "Agnes de Tracey," all High Church novels; for children he wrote, "Church History," "Histories of Greece" and "Portugal," "Stories of the Crusades," and of the "Heathen Mythology," and "Tales of Christian Heroism." His most scholarly work, and the one that has made his name best known in foreign countries, is the "History of the Eastern Church, of the Patriarchate of Alexandria, and of the Jansenist Church of Holland." It may be remembered that, some years ago, Dr. Neale edited an expurgated edition of "Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," which was received with considerable disapprobation by the literary world, although it had been prepared expressly for circulation among the children of members of the High Church. Lord Macaulay is said to have written the condemnatory criticism in The Edinburgh Review. Dr. Neale's adaptations of old English Church music, are well known to all sections of the English Protestant Church, and for his admirable translations of the old Latin hymns, "Jerusalem the Golden," "Brief Life is Here our Portion," and many others, he will long be remembered by all interested in Church music.

—To the "peasant poetry" of Great Britain, which has been so remarkably illustrated during the last few years by David Gray, the unfortunate friend of Robert Buchanan, and David Wingate, the Scottish miner, three or four new volumes have lately been added, which seem to possess considerable merit. The first of these in order of time are by Edward Capern, rural postman, or as we should say, letter-carrier of the little market town of Bideford in Devonshire, who published a few months ago under the title of "Wayside Warbles," the fourth volume of his poems, his previous ventures in the literary world having been called respectively "Poems," "Ballads and Songs," and "The Devonshire Melodist." Unlike the "Jolly Young Waterman," who employed his time as he rowed along in "thinking of nothing at all," Mr. Capern is in the habit, as he makes his rounds, of meditating on the beauties of nature and the woes and comforts of domestic life; and seated on the side of some friendly ledge or the top of a stile, with his postbag for a desk, he commits his thoughts to the custody of verse. His song breathes no burning passion and swells with no grand inspiration, but it is tender, pathetic, and musical. A sweet little poem of his called "Under the Snow"—a lament over the death of a child—was copied by nearly all the literary journals of this country last Winter. Here is another piece which contains a great deal of the same sort of beauty:

We called her Milly, and we thought
We never heard so fond a word;
'Twas like the sweet note of a bird,
With Nature's simplest music fraught.
And as our little darling grew,
We began in worship o'er our prize,
And wooed the smile from her deep eyes—
Two little orbs or [illegible]—
Then Wonder came and eyed her cheek,
As Beauty placed a blush rose there,
And kiss'd her lips and forehead fair,
And smooth'd her silken locks so sleek.
At length her lips' milk white bands
Around our necks would fondly twine;
And O, the slavery divine,
When fetter'd by those tender bands!

The following is in a different strain:

SONG IN SUNSHINE.

Sing away, ye joyous birds,
While the sun is o'er us!
If I only knew your words,
I would swell the chorus.
Sing, ye warblers of the sky!
Sing, ye happy thrushes!
And ye little ones that lie
Down among the rushes.
Softly as an angel's wing
Comes an inspiration:
O that my poor soul could sing
Worthy of creation!
Like the solemn shounting tree—
Nature in devotion:
Like the merry harping bee—
Harmony in motion.
I would sound a note of joy,
Through the vales o' Devon,
Sweet as Love's, when to a boy
Newly came from heaven,
Till the busy world beguiled
With its echoes' ringing,
Shouted, "Hark! for Nature's child
Her own song is singing."

A more thoughtful but less melodious poet is John Askham, a working shoemaker of Northampton, and the author of a collection of "Descriptive Poems, Miscellaneous Pieces, Scriptural, Descriptive, Biographical and Miscellaneous Sonnets." The following stanzas are from a poem called "My Home:"

A cottage, humblest of its kind,
In a straightened thoroughfare,
With walls before and walls behind,
And narrow slips of sunshine find
Infrequent access there.
The tardy morning slowly crawls
Into the narrow lane;
With a belated look it falls
Upon the somber, sullen [illegible]
And dies in gloom again.
Yet there the angel Poesy
Doth sometimes deign to come,
And make a short abode with me—
A lowly son of industry;
And then my humble home
Seems to my vision wondrous fair;
And while the heavenly guest,
With too brief visit, lingers there,
My life is lightened of its care,
And peace pervades my breast.

His best pieces are his sonnets, of which we make room for a single specimen:

THE CHILDREN.

The little children were in mercy sent:
The winning beauty of their happy smiles
Is Sorrow's antidote; their artless wiles
Lure gladness from the wrinkled brow of Care;
The ills of life were more than we could bear,
Had not kind Heaven the little children lent,
Fair as the angels, and as innocent:
They are a fount of love that faileth never—
Oil on the waters of Life's discontent—
Links in Love's chain that bind fond hearts forever—
The blessed crown of holy wedlock's joys—
An unpolluted spring that never cloys.
Happy that hearth and home kind Fortune blesses
With the rich treasure of their sweet caresses.

Mr. S. H. Bradbury, a Nottingham poet, was a glove-maker's apprentice, but is now, we believe, a journalist. His first volume was published in 1854, and his fifth, entitled "Lyrical Fancies," has but lately appeared. Mr. Bradbury has been patronized by Lord Palmerston, John Bright, the Duke of Newcastle, Walter Savage Landor, Lord Houghton, and The Times, and receives a pension from the Government. There is promise in his verses, but not very brilliant promise, and he offends us more frequently with crude images and rough expressions than either of the other humble bards whom we have mentioned.

New Publications.

PULPIT PUNGENCIES.—A Rich Book.

Of all the comic books ever published in this country, this new specimen of RELIGIOUS-COMIC affair must take the palm.

There is no attempt to be funny in the book, but the author, in spite of himself, has made the richest and most laughable thing ever attempted.

One article calls it "Homolitical mince-meat, with the bones picked out," and says everybody to reading and laughing over it.
Price $1 75.

TWO MORE NEW NOVELS.

I.

THE MUTE SINGER.—A most charming little novel by Mrs. Anna Cora Ritchie. (Mowatt). Her previous novel last year, and this second one of the most popular novels published. Price $1 75.

THE HOUSE BY THE CHURCHYARD.—A capital new novel by Sheridan Le Fanu, the popular English writer and author of that great novel, Wilder[illegible], which sold enormously last year. Price $1 75.

These books are all beautifully bound in cloth, are sold everywhere, and will be sent by mail, postage free, on receipt of price, by CARLTON, Publisher, New-York.

CASSELL, PETTER & GALPIN'S Illustrated CATALOGUE will be sent by mail, to any address, on receipt of Fifteen Cents. The ordinary catalogue on receipt of Three Cents. WALTER LOW, No. 506 Broadway, New-York.

NEW BOOK AGENCY, No. 17 Nassau-st., up stairs. Six Months at the White House with Abm. Lincoln, $2. History of the Atlantic Telegraph, by H. M. Field, $1 75. The Resources, [illegible] of Agriculture, by Sir Morton Peto, $2.

CASSELL, PETTER & GALPIN of London, have established a Agency in New-York for the sale of their BOOKS [illegible]. WALTER LOW, No. 506 Broadway, New-York.

GET THE BEST!
THE INTERNAL REVENUE LAW
For 1866.
D. APPLETON & COMPANY,
Nos. 443 and 445 Broadway, New-York,
Publish
THE INTERNAL REVENUE LAWS,
Act approved June 30, 1864. As amended by Act of March 3, 1865, and July 13, 1866; together with the Acts amendatory.
With copious Marginal References, a complete Analytical Index,
AND TABLES OF TAXATION AND EXEMPTION.
Compiled by HORACE DRESSER.
1 vol., 8vo, 200 pp. Price, paper covers, 50c.; cloth, $1.
From The N. Y. Daily Times.
The excellence of this work consists in its convenience for reference—the two Acts being thus united; its alphabetical tables, showing at a glance the taxes on each article; the fact that it contains the laws entire, word for word like the official copies; and in that it is not rendered expensive by insertion of rulings which possess but little value when a new law has explained or altered existing regulations.
Sent free by mail to any address on receipt of price.
For Sale by all Booksellers and News Agents.

HAVE YOU READ Mrs. WARREN'S fascinating HOUSEKEEPING STORIES,
"HOW I MANAGED MY HOUSE ON £200 A YEAR,"
"HOW I MANAGED MY SERVANTS, OR COMFORT FOR SMALL INCOMES." (?)
They are the most attractive books of the day, are full of practical common sense advice, told in the most taking way, and every housekeeper with a large or small income will get some good hints from her experience which will be valuable to them.
Sold everywhere for 50 cents a piece.

AGENTS WANTED for HORACE GREELEY'S "AMERICAN CONFLICT."
Vol. I of this History has met with unparalleled success—130,000 having already been sold—and is emphatically indorsed by the press of all parties, by leading Generals of the army, by the President, members of the Cabinet, Senators and Representatives in Congress, State Governors, Literary men, and by thousands politically opposed to the author.
Vol. II (and last) will be published in August, and will more than sustain the high character of the first. In its preparation, the vast amount of time, labor, and pains-taking research, devoted to a careful sifting of the mass of crude surface material adopted by earlier writers without verification, and to the collection of important information hitherto inaccessible or overlooked—including much from the Rebel side—cannot fail, under the eminent qualifications of the author, to produce a record of surpassing excellence, which will supersede all other works on the subject. CHEVÉ'S NEW MUSICAL INSTITUTE, under the instruction of SIGNOR JOSEPH BORRA.
CARD FROM PROF. BASSINI.
"MY DEAR SIR: Desiring to cooperate with all the influence I can well command within the circle of my scholars and friends, in establishing in this country Mr. Chevé's innoparably superior method of teaching the theory of music and sight-reading, I take the liberty to address you this. It is my opinion that all that is needed to make it popular is to let the people know it. Having been myself a student of the Rithmography and Chevé system, I have had opportunity of appreciating their merit. I am, Sir, "Yours truly, C. BASSINI."
New-York, April 6, 1866.
SIGNOR BORRA will return to this city by the 5th of September. All who desire a THOROUGH musical education, with less outlay of time and money than by any other method, are advised to confer with him before engaging elsewhere.
