Responsibility

The sound principles upon which we maintain our reputation of responsibility is your assurance that the merchandise we sell you represents the highest value money can buy.

Well, fellows, this hot weather calls for something more comfortable than a stiff collar. Take a tip, and get into one of our cool pongee shirts with attached collars. The cuffs are cut straight and fasten with two buttons. The collars are buttoned down so they won't curl up. They are all right. Priced at $2.25.

Again we say white twill pants for your legs. These ducks are just the thing to keep your good nature from melting while Old Sol is running away with all past heat records. You will forget the small price of $2.50 a pair when you know the comfort of your investment.

We'll say these are vestless days. Your cravats come in for their share of making your appearance pass muster, while old Mr. Vest is on the rack. The fellows are all wearing low collars, naturally they need narrow ties. We have them. The new knits in narrow widths have the call. Come inspect ours. Priced $1 to $1.50.

If you don't want your bones to get rusty get out on the tennis courts. No, that old excuse about not having a racquet won't do. All you have to do is to drop into our men's department and we will fit a Wright & Ditson special to your grip. Yes, we have tennis balls also.

Bunny Says

Few girls lock their lips after the kiss is stolen.

A vampire is a book of riddles without any answers at the back.

The English people are suffering from insomnia. Those Irish wakes are to blame.

Woman kind is constantly scoring on Dame Nature. Her latest scoop is the permanent wave.

The ancient alchemist had nothing on our politicians when it comes to turning brass into gold.

A little carelessness is all one needs to invite great disasters.

Say, you fellows that make home brew, do you get your "hops" from Mr. Frog.

Headline asks "What Do Men Want?" What's the use in asking? It's unconstitutional now.

We like to measure the greatness of our town not by the number of men to the square mile—but by the number of square men to the mile.

Ten Inch Limits

So says Paris in speaking of the skirt lengths for fall. Well, Paris has her say—but the real test comes when the women of America speak. Frankly, we think the short skirt is splendidly adapted to the women of our country. The present style—when not carried to an extreme—is sane and healthful, and permits of freedom of movement, which is essential to women who enjoy walking.

Vacation time middies—we have them. You know that good Tech-Style middie. It's tailored—the material in navy twill. Cut roomy and doesn't shrink. It's a friendly middie—let us introduce it to you. The price is based on the new level—only $1.95 and worth more.

FARM DEMONSTRATION NOTES.

The time is near when such crops as crimson clover, hairy vetch, alfalfa, rye, etc., should be planted. See your county agent before buying your seed, as he may be able to save you some money. Let's plant plenty of winter legume for soil building and grazing. Winter legume seed is cheaper now than they have been for a long time.

When it comes to growing hay and forage crops Fairfield county has quite a number of hay crops that can be grown successfully. Mr. James McClintock has just harvested 5,800 pounds of German millet and early cow peas from three-fourths of an acre. Mr. S. U. Robinson has two acres of land that he has gotten two cuttings of Abruzzi rye from and has on this land now a crop of sorghum that will yield around four tons per acre.

There is no question but that the boll weevil is going to be bad enough in Fairfield county to make the growing of cotton a rather uncertain crop and for that reason we are going to have to make a great change in our farming system. It is not too early to commence to plan for the growing of some other crop in addition to cotton as a cash crop. This is a question that every farmer is going to have to help solve for himself. For a crop that can be grown successfully on one farm can not be grown successfully on another farm. This is a question that you should be giving serious consideration. Your county agent will be glad to talk with you along this line.

If you have any pigs for sale write to the following: Mr. H. G. Boyleston, Barnwell, S. C.; Mr. J. P. Quinmerly, Bishopville, S. C., and Mr. P. H. Sanders, Chamber of Commerce Building, Atlanta, Ga., wants to buy some pigs. But I believe, if you have the feed, it will pay you better to grow your pigs to 100 to 150 pounds and then put them on the market.

LEAVING CITIES.

Real estate sales during recent months have shown a marked difference from those of the past few years. Previously the main drift has been of people who were moving from the country towns into the cities. Now the drift is the other way.

A big real estate firm which handles property all over the country reports that usually two-thirds of its sales come from farmers who are moving elsewhere. This year two-thirds of their purchases have come from city men who were going into the country. These purchases were not thought to be city men who know nothing of country life. Most of them seem to be fellows who originally came from rural districts, but after trying city life and its ups and downs, have concluded that the country chance is better.

EFFICIENT PERFORMANCE.

Every office, every store, every factory and farm is a place where different workers are being tried out. The employee may not always realize that he is taking part in a competitive race or that his performance is being closely observed. But he is under a more careful inspection than he realizes.

Some people succeed in doing things more speedily and effectively than others. Two men in a factory will be given a chance to operate a certain tool or machine. Their performance will be carefully watched and the one that seems to take hold easier will be the one who gets the job.

The one who loses the chance may think the other has luck or favoritism. This is not the usual thing. The other's success commonly happens because by long effort and practice acquired skill in working with his hands. So that he takes up any new proposition with readiness. So all through the business world, the prizes are going to those who by patient effort have developed their powers and can take advantage of new opportunities.

PHYSICAL CULTURE DEVELOPMENT.

A good rural organization should include some plan for giving young people a better physical development.

The old theory was that country young people needed no physical culture. They are out doors a great deal, so it was felt that their physical development will take care of itself, on a go as you please basis.

One result has been that a great many country young people grow up with a slouchy posture. This is a fault found both in city and country life. There is a tendency for young people to slump down in a position which cramps the vital organs and prevents a complete physical development. This tendency is very marked in many country boys. The rural youngster is usually more bashful than the city boy, and his feeling of awkwardness often leads him to slouch along with his head down in a way that fails to do justice to his splendid qualities. Also it is injurious to health.

Every country town needs some organization like the Boy Scouts, that shall provide military drill for boys, teaching them to walk with head up and shoulders straight, and to look the world in the eye.

The great difficulty in country towns is to find competent leaders for this form of work. In some communities clergymen do it, and the minister of the future will be taught less theology and more physical culture. Every rural teacher should be able to direct young people in the elementary principles of physical training.

Instruction by a competent dancing teacher gives young people a better self command, and tends to correct a slouchy gait or posture.

Every country town can't afford elaborate equipment for physical development. But every such community should have its gymnastic classes. Those who are to take positions of rural leadership need such training that they can conduct the simpler form of this work.

Rub-My-Tism is a powerful anti-septic. Cures infected cuts, old sores, tetter, etc.

HEALTH SUPERSTITIONS.

Queer old superstitions, as to preservation of health and treatment of disease are held by many old fashioned people. Many of these notions can be found even in intelligent communities. There are always ignorant folks who derive their physiological ideas from the ancient traditions of their native locality.

Here are some notions existing in some parts of the country, as described by a public health nurse:

Carrying a leaden ring, a potato, or a horse chestnut cures rheumatism.

Putting a pan of water under the bed cures chills and fever.

Chop a chicken in half while alive and binding it on the soles of the feet cures typhoid fever.

An onion poultice cures pneumonia. Bag of assafoetida suspended from the neck drives away disease.

Weak eyes are cured by using them, etc., etc.

Many parents hold that children should choose their own food. Pigs and chickens choose their own diet, they say, and are healthful. So if children selected their own food, they too would be rugged.

A mother whose baby was suffering from inflammation of the colon, begged a district nurse for medicine, while the child was eating a green apple. When this nurse tried to sponge off a child that had a temperature of 105, the father interposed, saying, "No, sir, you don't give my child a bath," and he quoted the old saying that "A bath means a burial robe."

Every shipload of immigrants brings in people trained in such conceptions. When their children get contagious diseases and are not properly treated, the infection spreads into the most careful family. Boards of health have a great work of popular education to perform.

The Americanization campaigns should include health talks showing the falsity of these old notions.

Cause of Appendicitis.

When the bowels are constipated the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse matter, that is made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and set up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.
