THE ASSASSINATION OF DARCY MGEE.

BLASPHEMOUS CONVERSATION BETWEEN WHELAN AND DOYLE IN THEIR CELLS—WHELAN'S CONFESSION.

The Montreal Daily News reports a conversation which two concealed detective officers overheard between Whelan and Doyle in their cells in the Ottawa jail. The facts came out in the investigation by District-Attorney O'Reilly. Detective officers Cullen and Hess testified substantially as follows:

We went, when the Court adjourned at half-past five, to the jail, and after the Governor and officials left the corridor on which Whelan and Doyle are confined, took up our positions immediately outside the door at the entrance to the corridor. Whelan said: Are you there, John? Doyle said yes. Whelan then said, I was nailed bloody tight to-day. Doyle: You don't say. Whelan: Yes, by J—s; you don't know who's the informer? Doyle: No: Whelan: Alick Turner. Doyle, in a loud tone: No. Whelan: Yes; by J—s, I wouldn't give six pence for his carcass. At this time, from the other ward, a voice called out to Whelan and asked him how did he get on. Whelan answered, bloody bad; I was nailed very tight. Whelan then spoke to Doyle—It will go b—r hard with me; I'll either swing or get Penitentiary for life; I don't care; I'm prepared for the worst; that b—r Turner swore hard against me; swore we were all bloody Fenians; there were fourteen witnesses examined; he swore that he was an Englishman. Doyle—You're in a bad fix. Whelan—I don't care a d—n; all I depend upon is on a good jury. Doyle—What will become of me? they can do nothing to me? Whelan answered that nothing could happen to him as they could prove nothing against him. Doyle—I wish you'd never done if, and I wish you had never came near me that night. Whelan—I would not have come near you only I was drunk. Doyle—I am sorry, James, you ever did it. Whelan—I don't care a d—n, I am prepared for the worst; I'll either swing or go to the Penitentiary for life; I wouldn't care swing than go the Penitentiary for life; I wouldn't care a d—n only for one thing. Doyle—What's that? Whelan—the old woman. I shot him like a dog. You're here, I'm here; I'm a great fellow; my name will go down to posterity. Doyle—Jim! Jim! I am sorry for you! Whelan—I didn't care a d—n, only for my poor mother. Doyle said: is she alive? Whelan—Yes, and added: My brother is in prison, too. Doyle—What for? Whelan—Fenianism; for firing the police barracks in Tullough, Ireland; what a fine family my mother had, what a fine lot of boys; one thing they were fond of Ireland; one was shot at the firing of the police barrack; one is in prison for the same, and I'm here. Whelan then sang two songs, and there was a long silence; he danced and whistled, and told Doyle about Murphy and Enright being taken from Montreal to Ottawa by Cullen. Doyle asked him what for? Whelan—Fenianism; that b—r Turner swore that Murphy was with me at McGee's, and that was a lie; John, I was in prison before for 18 months. Doyle—What for? Whelan—Fenianism. Doyle—Where? Whelan—West of England; they have traced me step by step ever since I came into the country; every bloody thing I have done, they have traced it; it all came out in the court to-day; that O'Reilly is a b—r; I thought I'd faint when Turner came up, but I bore it up like a man; there was not the slightest sign on me.

The following is a memorandum of a conversation by Robert Hess with the prisoner Doyle on Monday, 13th April: On the night of the murder Whelan called to see him (Doyle) at the Russell House, and exhibited to him a revolver, and at the same time asked him to accompany him to the Parliament Buildings to hear Mr. McGee make his last speech. He (Doyle) went out of the door of the Russell House with Whelan and Buckley, who was standing on the platform. Buckley asked Whelan what had kept him so long inside. In reply Whelan said: Nothing in particular, or something to that effect; Buckley and Whelan then went out, walked on, and turned toward the Parliament Buildings; that was the last he saw of Whelan until about 2½ o'clock in the morning, when a gentleman entered the Russell House and called out that Mr. McGee had been shot; when he, with the other members, ran out he saw Whelan standing at the corner of the Russell House; Whelan asked them what had happened; Doyle replied, D'Arcy McGee is shot; Whelan answered, saying, "That's nothing; I knew that;" Doyle remained at the corner a few minutes with Whelan; he then went away, walking toward Lower Town; Doyle went into Russell House.

After these disclosures had been obtained, the inquiry was adjourned, and is to be resumed on Tuesday.

It is believed that Quinn and Lawrence may be liberated should sufficient bail be offered. They are to appear and testify when called upon. Mitchell, who was arrested about ten days ago, being then just from Toronto, has been discharged on bail, to appear whenever called upon.

The Canadian House of Commons on Friday night passed a bill providing for the support of the widow and family of the late D'Arcy McGee.

HEAVY ROBBERY.

Early on Sunday evening Mr. B. Stern, of No. 238 West Forty-eighth-st., near Broadway, left his residence for a walk. On his return about 10½ p. m., he found that during his absence a small safe in a rear room on the second floor had been opened by means of keys, and the following described valuables abstracted: Seven 5-20 $1,000 United States bonds of the issue of 1864; seven of the same denomination, of the issue of 1865; one of the same denomination of 1867; one $500 bond; one 10-40 $500 bond; one bond and one mortgage for $1,000; one bond and mortgage for $2,500; three shares of the Western Union Telegraph stock; a quantity of oil [illegible]ping stocks; 10 shares of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express stocks; one certificate of deposit for $8,500; diamond jewely to the value of $1,000; 110 gold watches and other articles of jewelry. The entire amount stolen was valued by the owner at about $27,000. A reward of $2,500 is offered for the recovery of the property. The owner, who was recently a jeweler, doing business in Syracuse, and has just removed to this city, cannot account for the manner in which the robbery was committed; that the safe was opened with keys there is no question. Mr. Stern's keys were kept by him in his pocket during the day, and at night placed beneath the mattress of his bed. On the evening of the robbery, before leaving the house, he placed the bag containing the keys in the bed, and on his return found the keys apparently undisturbed. The door of the safe was open, however, and the contents gone.

THE COURTS.

CIVIL.

The Superior Court yesterday postponed a motion till to-day, made in behalf of Zeno Burnham, to restrain the Police from patroling in front of his door, to warn off the unwary.

In the suit brought by Bixby agt. Jansen and others, consuls, in the State Courts, in which they answered without pleading their privilege as consuls to have suits against them brought only in the United States Courts, but subsequently raised it, on a motion being made by the plaintiff to discontinue without costs, Judge Cardozo granted the order, rendering the following opinion:

"It is monstrously dishonest for a foreign consul to answer generally in a case without pleading his privilege, so as to take the chance of prevailing in the suit, and, if unsuccessful, to avoid the judgment his adversary obtains, on the ground of want of jurisdiction. Common fairness dictates that the privilege should be interposed as soon as the suit is commenced, and wheresoever it is not done I shall, on application, release the plaintiff, by permitting him at any stage of the action to discontinue without costs. There is no hardship in this, because the defendant should have prevented it by simply availing himself of his privilege at the first step, which the costs were trivial."

Motion granted. Mr. Richardson for plaintiffs; Mr. Lapaugh for defendants.

The Continental National Bank sues the National Bank of the Commonwealth on one of John Ross' forgeries. In May, 1866, he procured a large amount of money by forgery and escaped. The Continental National Bank kept his account. On the 1st of May, 1866, he drew a check for more than $63,000, in favor of Cronise & Co., to whom he sold it for $59,000 gold, having forged the certification of the paying teller of the Continental on it. Cronise & Co. deposited the check with their bank, the Bank of the Commonwealth, and on the next day it went to the Clearing House and was exchanged. When the check came to the Continental Bank the forgery was detected, and they at once sent it back to the Bank of the Commonwealth. The latter Bank, after consultation with their customer, declined to refund the face of the check, and this suit was brought. Almost the only question of fact raised was on the part of the defense. The defense set up that Mr. Cronise, being somewhat dissatisfied with his customer, sent round a clerk at once to the Continental Bank to inquire whether the check was good, and was informed by the paying teller that it was. The paying teller says positively that he never told any one that that check was good. The case is still on.

On opening the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, Judge Benedict said that he would sit ten days to try criminal cases. The case of Patrick H. Reason for making counterfeit 50-cent currency plates was set down for Friday. The case of Roger Lang, charged with removing whisky after its seizure, was put off till June. The case of Christian Fischy and another, for illicit distillation, was set down for to-day. In the case of Solomon Frank and others, for illicit removal of whisky, a motion to quash will be made to-day, and if denied, the trial will go on to-morrow. The case of Edward Cosgrove and others, for illicit distillation, was set down for to-morrow. The cases of Burnton and Marsh, for embezzling letters from the Post-Office, were set down for June. The case of Wm. Gordon and another, for illicitly removing whisky, was put off, and Gordon's bail increased from $5,000 to $10,000. The case of Ira Barber, for making fraudulent returns of his business as a cigar-dealer, was set down for June. The cases of James Arnold and Garniss E. Baker (the Tradesmen's Bank Tellers), of Daniel E. Messmore and others (the Kentucky Bourbon case), Alfred St. Clair and Geo. M. Dusenbury, for embezzling letters from the Post-Office, and of Alexander Ross and others, for making fraudulent returns of their tobacco business, were put off till the June term. A motion before Judge Blatchford, to release Marquis D. L. Sharkey (who is in Ludlow-st. Jail in a civil suit of the Superior Court), was set down for argument to-day.

CRIMINAL.

At the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, two cases of violation of the Excise law were reported, those of James Riley of No. 417 East Twenty-fourth-st., and John Armstrong of No. 129 Bleecker-st.

In Commissioner Lowe's Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, Abel Wares, a policeman, was held in $2,000 to await trial for having a large quantity of counterfeit United States currency in his possession, with intention to pass it.

In Justice Cornwell's Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, Henry Sinclair was arraigned for having two demijohns of liquor in his possession, of which he could give no satisfactory account. He was sent to jail on a short commitment.

In the Recorder's Court, Hudson City, John Gillue, in the employ of Mr. Edward James, residing on the Harrison estate, was accused by that gentleman of assaulting him with a sheath-knife on Sunday last. Committed to jail for trial, in default of $500 bail.

At the Yorkville Police Court yesterday, before Judge Connolly, Henry Forster, a car conductor of the Belt Railroad, was accused of embezzlement. The testimony was to the effect that the accused, during one of the trips of his car, had 72 passengers, and only returned to the Company the fares of 11. He was held to answer at the Court of Special Sessions.

In Justice Sutphen's Court, Jamaica, Ferdinand Feel, a youth 15 years of age, was examined yesterday, for stealing $50 from his employer, Mr. Thos. Smith of Jamaica Station. The prisoner was remanded to the Lunatic House to avoid the action of the Grand Jury.

Edward McGrath and John Tracy, for indulging in a fistic encounter on the main street, were sent to the County Jail for 10 days.

In the Essex Market Police Court, before Justice Shandley, yesterday, Hester Seamon of No. 15 South Second-st., Brooklyn, was accused by Timothy J. Roberts of having a gold chain of his in her possession, for which she could give no satisfactory account. Roberts alleges that the chain was stolen from him a year ago, by persons unknown; that he never saw it from that time until Sunday, when he recognized it on the person of the accused, near the ferry at the foot of East Houston-st.; on interrogating her he could obtain no definite answer, and so had her arrested. She was held to answer, in default of $300 bail.

"The England & Evans Distillery case" was up again yesterday before the Commissioner. The defendants, England, Hanlon and Evans, who are charged with running the seized distillery of England & Evans in Avenue A, and with resisting a revenue officer who was endeavoring to inspect it, have put in testimony for their defense, to the effect that Col. Burr Porter, the revenue officer, was admitted, on showing his authority; and yesterday they called Leonard B. Tice, manufacturer of whisky meters, who testified that his meters, (two of which were attached to defendants' distillery, and which stand now, and uninjured, at the figures indicated when the distillery was first seized) could not be altered without being burst open. The further hearing was adjourned to Wednesday next.

In Judge Gilbert's Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, a suit was brought by Mrs. Mary Morgan to recover $780 from the Brooklyn Savings Bank, the said amount having been deposited in that institution by plaintiff. The money, it appears, was drawn from the bank by some relative to whom she had intrusted her pass-book for safe keeping. The Court directed the jury to find a verdict for defendants on the ground that the by-laws to which plaintiff subscribed provided that the payments made to persons producing the deposit book shall be deemed good and valid payments to the depositors. It formed a contract binding upon the depositor, and that in the absence of fraud or gross carelessness on the part of the banks such payment is good, and that the depositer must sustain the loss. A verdict in accordance with the directions of the Court was rendered by the jury.

At the Tombs Police Court yesterday, Justice Dowling committed to the Tombs an abandoned female, Isabella Shorey by name, for having on Sunday night stolen from the pantaloons pocket of James Reynolds, a Brooklynite, a wallet containing $85, while the pair were in conversation in Chatham-st.... Charles B. Graves, who was on Saturday night last arrested for having, on Thursday last, while riding down town on a Bleecker-st. car, picked the pocket of Mr. Charles J. Bliven, of No. 245 Pearl-st., of a wallet containing a small sum of money and some checks, was yesterday committed. Two reserved seats at Wallack's Theater, which were in the wallet, were traced to the possession of the prisoner.... John Hayes of No. 123 Forsyth-st. quarreled, yesterday, with B. Ettinghausen, a German shoemaker, in the shop of the latter, at No. 21 Center-st., and Ettinghausen stabbed his opponent in the leg with a knife, causing a dangerous wound. The assailant was arrested and committed to the Tombs.
