Her husband got out to help the ladies in, and the driver got off his box, when the horses ran off at a fearful rate for about six blocks, when the carriage was overturned. Mrs. Hakes was found to be considerably injured, when removed by her husband and some citizens from the overturned carriage.

It appears two cars were coupled together. Brush was standing on the rear platform of the front car and, accidentally falling, was run over by the rear car and so severely injured that he died shortly thereafter. Brush resided in Navy st., near Myrtle-ave. The inquest was adjourned until Monday next.

John Hollike and Donald McDonald, arrested some days ago on the complaint of Fire-Marshal Keady, were brought before Justice Delmar yesterday for examination on the charge of arson. The former is proprietor of a grocery store at No. 643 Court-st., which was set on fire at a late hour in the night, but being discovered by the police the flames were suppressed before much damage resulted. The structure is built of rough gray stone, with brown stone trimmings, and is much larger than the previous edition, which was destroyed by fire about a year ago. The style of architecture is English Gothic. It is lighted on the ends and sides by dormer windows of richly stained glass. The chancel window, contributed by the Sabbath-school children connected with the church, representing Christ blessing little children, is especially attractive. Gas-pipes have been introduced, with a view of lighting the building with gas. It is heated by a hot-water apparatus, with pipes running under the footboards in each pew. A beautiful organ, and of fine tone, has been erected in an alcove on the right hand of the chancel, at a cost of $2,500. The entire cost of the church, including the organ, is about $50,000, of which sum almost $45,000 is paid, and it is expected that the balance will be obtained prior to its consecration upon Christmas.

THE PRESS AND THE COURTS.

On Thursday last Justice Dowling issued a warrant for the rearrest of Ned O'Baldwin, the Irish Giant, who was lately matched to fight Joe Wormald in the prize ring. O'Baldwin was arrested several days ago, and Felix Larkin became surety in the sum of $1,000 for the good behavior of O'Baldwin for the space of one year. Larkin having been murdered on Wednesday morning in the saloon at the corner of Canal and Hudson-sts., his surety, of course, became worthless, and accordingly the warrant for his arrest was issued, and placed in the hands of Officer Dunn of the Sixth Precinct for service. O'Baldwin could not be found on Thursday night. In the meantime, the fact of such warrant having been issued came to the knowledge of an attaché of The Herald, and it was printed in that journal. Justice Dowling expressed himself very freely about the matter yesterday in the court-room. He stated that the reporter had committed a misdemeanor, and had made himself liable to arrest and imprisonment. He was pleased to know that no confidence had been violated by the regular Court reporters. Justice Dowling said that in future he would hold such offender personally responsible for a premature publication. He was always willing and anxious that the proceedings of his Court should be published; but by such premature publication the ends of justice were defeated, and he was determined to prevent it, if possible. Soon afterward two men came into the Court room, said that they were friends of O'Baldwin, and wished to know if he would be exempt from arrest while attending the funeral of his late friend, Larkin. The magistrate informed them that he had directed officer Dunn not to make the arrest while the funeral services were being held, but to keep O'Baldwin in view, and take him into custody immediately afterward. In response to a question why he wished O'Baldwin arrested, Justice Dowling stated that he considered that individual no pugilist; there were those who considered him a "duffer" and a "mucer" (dead beat). He had already caused a considerable amount of disturbance, and Larkin's death was owing in good part to him. O'Baldwin having led him into scenes of violence, and made him nearly crazy with intoxicating drink. He was determined, as far as possible, to put down such a character, and to keep a check upon him. The friends of the pugilist retired rather crestfallen. It is extremely doubtful whether O'Baldwin will remain in the city after the information he has received of a warrant for his arrest having been issued.

THE NEWSBOYS' DINNER.

It was mentioned in yesterday's TRIBUNE that by some unexplained oversight the newsboys had been forgotten in the general charity of Thanksgiving Day. It is a genuine pleasure to announce that the seeming neglect of the poor little fellows was amply atoned for last evening, by a dinner which was enjoyed as heartily as though it had been eaten at the proper time. The Rev. Mr. Arnold, to whom, with Dr. Perry, the boys were mainly indebted for their dinner, essayed to address them, but they exhibited little inclination to listen, and interrupted the reverend speakers by cheers for a multitude of people, among whom were Capt. Jinks, John Brown, and other historic individuals. They didn't seem to care for whom they cheered, so long as they cheered, for when one ambitious urchin proposed "Three cheers for me," they joined in with as much uproar as though the "me" alluded to had been either the President or the Governor. However, Mr. Arnold managed to sandwich a very appropriate address between the bursts of cheering. Dr. Perry succeeded him, but as he labored under the disadvantage of being very hoarse, his address was necessarily short. It may not be mal apropos to mention that both of these gentlemen were formerly newsboys, therefore their addresses on this occasion were peculiarly appropriate. It is in contemplation to regale the newsboys with a very munificent feast on Christmas Day.

FIRE AT ELIZABETHPORT, N. J.—LOSS $50,000.

A large fire occurred at Elizabethport, N. J., about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire broke out in a carpenter's shop. The night watchman, John Fox, in attempting to extinguish the flames was burned internally, and is not expected to recover. The buildings destroyed, comprising the carpenter's and blacksmith's shops, were of brick, and covered about 200 by 100 feet. Part were two stories and part one story high. A large amount of machinery and one passenger car were destroyed. The entire loss is estimated at $50,000, on which there was no insurance.

AN ALLEGED HORSETHIEF.

William Winter, alias William A. White, who was arrested a few days ago by Detectives Vaughan and Mullen, on a charge of stealing horses from Bergen County, N. J., was taken to New-Jersey yesterday, on a requisition from Gov. Ward. The prisoner is charged with having stolen a black mare, valued at $500, from Mr. George Farlee of Englewood, and a horse, saddle, bridle, and blanket, valued at $440, belonging to Henry Banks of the same place. He is also charged with having stolen two cows, valued at over $100, belonging to Mr. Coulson of Paterson, N. J. All the property was recovered and restored to the owners. The prisoner has already served four years in the Trenton (N. J.) State Prison for a similar offense.

IMPORTANT RAILROAD SALE.

The Newmarket Evening Courier reports the sale, or perpetual lease, of the Morris and Essex Railroad to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Co. The particulars of the sale have not yet been given to the public.
