WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

A QUIET HOLIDAY—DINNER OF THE VETERANS OF 1812—THE BOULEVARD CLUB'S PROGRAMME—A PARADE IN BROOKLYN.

The celebration of the birthday of Washington yesterday was rather languid. The first note of holiday observance was a morning salute provided by the Boulevard Club. This firing was repeated at noon and sunset. The appointed intermission in business was common in all the great down-town centers of activity—the banks and exchanges being closed—and in the whole sale trade generally; but most of the retail stores throughout the city were open. The courts with a single exception and the city offices were silent. The Post-Office was closed after 10 a. m., and only one hour's work was done in the Custom-house, for the entrance and clearance of vessels. There was a liberal display of bunting on hotels and prominent buildings, upon street-cars, on the heads of horses, and in the hands of little boys. A great number of people wandered listlessly about the streets with an uncomfortable feeling that they were not getting so much pleasure out of their statutory idleness as they were entitled to. City Hall Park was occupied for hours by an expectant throng, most of whom fancied that the Order of United Mechanics were to be reviewed there by the Mayor and Common Council—a notion which blue-coated uniforms were unable to dispel. Others thought that three or four regiments of the National Guard were to parade. This was a popular impression about Union-square also. Many persons came in from the country, and after anxiously looking for a procession all day, went home with a grievous sense of wrong and a stern conviction that patriotic virtue had died out in New-York. The celebrations of the day by clubs and societies were neither numerous nor notable. The majority of the people who were noticed in the streets seemed distressed to know what to do with their leisure in the absence of the distracting noises of Independence Day and of the genial congratulations and social festivities of Christmas and New Year's Day. It is apparently one of the most sorrowful tasks in the world for an American to make a holiday unless he goes about it with a set programme of pleasure. Many sought solace in indulgences which neither the temperance agitation in the West nor the straitness of the times has cut down. The bells of Grace Church were rung at 4 p. m. From high noon to 1 o'clock the following melodies were given with the chimes of Trinity Church by James E. Aylife:

1. Ringing the changes on eight bells. 2. "Hail Columbia." 3. Scotch melodies from "Guy Mannering." 4. "Merrily Ring the Trinity Bells." 5. "Last Rose of Summer." 6. "Red, White and Blue." 7. Airs from "Child of the Regiment." 8. "See, the Conquering Hero Comes." 9. "The Singing Birds." 10. "The Soldier's Return." 11. "Let the Merry Church Bells Ring." 12. "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." 13. "Ring Out the Bells." 14. "The Land of Promise." 15. "Yankee Doodle."

The 6th Regiment gave a reception and banquet to the veterans of the war of 1812 in the armory of the regiment in East Fifteenth-st. early in the afternoon. Of the veterans there were present:

Gen. Henry Raymond, aged 84; Col. Abraham Dally, aged 77; Major Charles K. Crowley, aged 85; Capt. John G. Sexton, aged 80; Capt. Leonard Baum, aged 82; Capt. Leonard Hoffman, 72; Chaplain Joseph T. Hall, D. D., 76 years; Henry Morris, 74; W. E. Degrove, 78; Samuel Ryckman, 81; Jared Olmsted, 80; Charles Combs, 78; W. J. Surre, 72; L. J. Darling, 73; Wm. H. Brown, 72; P. Dexey, 84; Joseph Boulser, 76; Amos Cometock, 78; Henry Ver Planck, 73; Wm. Tway, 78; M. Van Name, 76; T. S. Wheeler, 84; Zenos Skidmore, 82; Edward Bush, 76; C. B. Halsart, 76; Isaac Steele, 81; Thomas Bloomer, 78; Edward Hooper, 77; Thomas Blanck, 79; Leonard Sargent and Adjutant J. Gould Warner.

Adjutant Warner had been detailed to hoist the flag at sunrise upon the old fort in Central Park. From the 6th Regiment were present Col. Frank W. Sterry, Brevet-Col. W. E. Van Wyck, Major W. H. King, Capts. J. M. Hermes and M. Metzler, Lieuts. E. A. Peterson, M. Sewell, and W. F. Quinn; Surgeon Raymon Amabile, Adjt. A. Shenfield, Commissary C. H. Raynor, and others. The dinner was prepared by Armorer A. M. Gans. After the appetites of the guests had been satiated, Gen. Raymond on behalf of the Veterans returned thanks to the 6th Regiment for their liberal courtesy. J. W. Greaton of Brooklyn, representing the Order of the Cincinnati, made an address commemorating the services of the soldiers of 1812, who laid anew the foundations of government placed by the Revolutionary struggle. He spoke of the changes which had taken place since that war, and in conclusion praised the National Guard and the representative regiment, the hosts of the day. After the speaking there was singing and social pleasure, in which the Veterans, who in numbers and spirits found encouragement in the gracious calm of the air and the soft brightness of the April sun, took an active part.

Washington's Birthday was appropriately celebrated by the Boulevard Club, at their club-house, 1094-st. and Hudson River. The American flag was raised at daybreak, and a National salute fired, at sunrise, noon, and sunset. At 4 o'clock Prof. Johnson with the Union Home Cornet Band, played in front of the club-house, and afterward the company present withdrew to the dining-room of the club-house. The Boulevard Quartet Club gave several pieces, after twinch Prof. William H. Pope read Washington's Farewell Address. Hosea B. Perkins next delivered an oration, "The Day we Celebrate," after which Jerome Buck made an address on "Patriotism." Henry Clay Dean recited "Siberian's Ride," and lastly addresses were made by J. R. Fellows, Charles H. Kibbeln and Capt. Wiley. The room was neatly decorated with flags, and over the speakers' heads was a portrait of Washington, with "Washington, 1732—1874" in letters and figures of box-leaf. The entertainment closed with a salute of 13 guns and an illumination of the club-house. The members and guests then partook of a collation in the billiard-room, prepared by the caterer of the club, and the evening was spent in social enjoyment. Among the company present were the President of the club, Andrew Bleakley, S. J. Geoghegan, B. W. Ellison, Eugene J. McEnroe, James T. King, Dr. Jackson J. Schull, Capt. Gorham, Capt. McDonald, Capt. Davis, F. Jackson, J. W. Davis, H. H. Ferguson, Dr. Weber, D. L. Baker, Louis Frank, G. Miller, J. W. Garside, and others.

IN BROOKLYN

The procession arranged by the Order of United American Mechanics, drew together an immense crowd at the Brooklyn City Hall. At noon a salute was fired from Fort Greene, for which purpose an appropriation had been made by the Common Council. Representatives of the Order of United American Mechanics from New Jersey, New-York, and from the Brooklyn Councils participated in the line, and nearly 5,000 persons passed the City Hall and were received by Mayor Hunter, Aldermen Ropes and Shipman, ex-Mayor Powell, and a number of other officials. This large body included the first and second divisions of the Order. The first division consisted of the following Councils:

Brooklyn—Mount Vernon Council, No. 31; Perseverance Council, No. 35; Hope Council Junior, No. 7; Empire Council, No. 19; Fort Greene Council, No. 26; Mohegan Council, No. 38; Perseverance Council, No. 54; Metamora Council, No. 25; Osceola Council, No. 28; Bunker Hill Council, No. 72; Morning Star Council, No. 35; Morning Star Junior Council, No. 10; Marion Council, No. 53; Fulton Council, No. 73; Phenix Council, No. 75; Mount Vernon Junior, No. 18; Friendship Council, No. 9; Ridgewood Council, No. 15; Atlantic Council, No. 33; Hope Council, No. 7; Roslyn Council, No. 81; Chosen Friends Council, No. 86; Anchor Council, No. 77; Brooklyn Council, No. 56.

New-Jersey—Industry Council, No. 50; Eureka Council, No. 32; Marion Council, No. 90; Star Council, No. 49; John Hancock Council, No. 76; Pavonia Council, No. 57; Jefferson Council, No. 87; Sobriety Council, No. 69.

The second division was composed of Fame Council, No. 5; America, No. 13; Lafayette, No. 23; Ethan Allen, No. 37; Anthony Wayne, No. 51; Federal, No. 62; Lucile, No. 65. There were also delegations from Victory, Liberty, Fredonia, Acme, Ben Franklin, and Greenpoint Councils, numbering about 5,000 men.

On Bedford-ave. the two divisions which had formed in different portions of the city united and marched down Fulton-st. After it had been received by the Mayor the procession turned into Court-st. and marched thence through Schermerhorn-st. to Fort Greene, where bitter speeches and singing the Councils were dismissed.

THE DAY ELSEWHERE.

FORTRESS MONROE, Feb. 23.—Washington's Birthday was celebrated here by the suspension of work in the various departments and a salute from the water battery at noon.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—The anniversary of Washington's birthday is observed here to-day as a legal holiday. The banks, courts, and Custom-house are closed, and business is largely suspended.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 23.—Washington's Birthday was observed here as a universal holiday. The military paraded, salutes were fired, and business generally was suspended. This evening an oration and banquet occurred.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23—The celebration of Washington's Birthday began here with a salute at sunrise. The banks and public offices are closed. There is much display of flags, and several military parades are in progress.

RICHMOND, Feb. 23.—The Post-Office and other Government offices were closed to-day in honor of Washington's Birthday. The colored troops, consisting of two Richmond companies, one from Petersburg, and one from Manchester, paraded, and were reviewed by the Governor and other State officials.

ALBANY, Feb. 23.—The anniversary of Washington's Birthday was observed to-day by a parade of the Ninth Brigade, the display of the National flag from public and private buildings, and in some instances the suspension of business. Company B, Continentals, made an independent parade.

BUFFALO, Feb. 23.—Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather to-day is generally observed as a holiday. The banks and public offices are closed, and business is generally suspended. The 65th and 74th Regiments parade this afternoon, and public and private balls and entertainments will be given this evening.

THE COURTS.

COMMISSIONER CHARLICK'S METHODS.

HOW AND WHY INSPECTORS OF ELECTION WERE APPOINTED AND REMOVED.

The examination of Police Commissioner Oliver Charlick, on the application of John Kelly and others, in reference to his acts concerning the late election, which was begun on Tuesday, a week ago, was resumed yesterday before Judge Donohue in the Supreme Court. The application, it will be remembered, was granted under the statute of the charter requiring each charter officer, on the demand of five citizens, to appear and be examined as to any special acts. Mr. Charlick and ex-Mayor Hall, his counsel, were present, and Mr. Kelly, his counsel, Mr. Jackson and Mr. Wingate, came a little later. The examination of Mr. Charlick was begun at 11:40 a. m., by Mr. Wingate.

Mr. Charlick stated that the resolution of the Board of Police Commissioners appointing the Committee on Elections was under date of Aug. 13, 1873. The next two meetings at which business was done relating to elections were Sept. 5 and Sept. 9, at the latter of which the Committee had no report to make. A communication was read, however, from Alex. Frayne, asking for the appointment of certain persons as inspectors and poll clerks, and this was referred to the Committee. On the 26th of that month there were presented an offer to lease certain places for election purposes, and an application to appoint inspectors. The places of election were designated Oct. 3, and on the 6th no report was made, but Thos. Raleigh was removed from the Seventh Ward, as inspector. Among the resolutions of that day Mr. Charlick noticed, when asked to state them, one removing James E. Conner on a report of the Committee. John E. Clement was removed from the XVIIIth District Oct. 10. On that day also changes were made in certain polling places. Daniel Maguire and another inspector were removed for neglect in the XVIIIth District. Capt. Gardiner reported the fitting up of polling places, and more removals for neglect were made. The next meeting was Oct. 20, and the Committee reported various persons selected for the office of inspector for the various election districts.

Mr. Charlick was asked if the book before him, which, by the way, he stated he did not think it was fair to call a complete list of the inspectors of the city, would show that any inspectors were appointed by the Board prior to October 21. He intimated, after being closely questioned, that whenever there was a record of a removal an appointment was implied. Mr. Wingate here reminded Mr. Charlick that he had said, at the previous examination, that he gave Tammany Hall nine-tenths of the inspectors in the VIIIth District, and asked him to give the names, and also the names of those appointed in the XVIIIth and XXIst, of Tammany men. Mr. Charlick replied that he had the lists there. There was a list for all the city presented by Tammany Hall. It was revised by Mr. Brinkman. Mr. Gale represented Tammany Hall. The witness did not know that Mr. Brinkman represented Apollo Hall. In reply to further questions he said he advised Mr. Gale to consult with Mr. Brinkman and present a good list that he could sign and stand by; he did not know that Tammany Hall had to concede to Mr. Brinkman half the inspectors.

Henry Camberger and Mr. Keyser for the IIId District were both Tammany men. He presumed from the book that Mr. Keyser was removed afterward. He gave a good deal of advice about having a harmonious election, and very likely said something to Mr. Gale about having harmony in the VIIIth District. Mr. Gardner made all the Republican nominations, and Mr. Charlick did not know that John J. O'Brien had anything to do with it.

Mr. Charlick then ran rapidly through the list of substitutions and removals, expressing his ignorance that Ferguson, who was substituted for Killian, was a ballot-box stuffer and an Apollo Hall man, although he said if he had been an Apollo Hall man it would have been no objection. Mr. Charlick stated few things positively in answer to questions, but in reference to the appointments and removals, took the record of his action from the huge books before him. For instance, here is his reply in reference to the XXIst District: "I advised Mr. Moore and Judge McQuade to consult together, thinking I would get a better list; it seems they didn't agree; there are 37 election districts in that district; I appointed 28 inspectors from the original Tammany Hall list, and, I think, some others recommended by strong Tammany men; in some districts Tammany Hall had both inspectors, in some one, in some none; on the whole, the Democratic Association's list was superior in character to that of Tammany Hall."

Mr. Charlick stated positively that he did not appoint any inspectors for Mr. Genet, but for the Democratic party, and he read a list of those appointed for the Democratic Association. He was not sure that it was a frequent thing for James O'Brien, Cornelius Flynn, and Mr. Genet to be in his office just before the election, but admitted that almost every prominent politician was there at some time or other, and some frequently. He had no private office. Mr. Charlick was asked some question about Mr. Genet getting shaved in his office, but denied any knowledge of it, and added, sarcastically: "I am shaved there sometimes myself, but I don't keep a barber's shop, and I don't think this inquiry pertinent to the matter. I appointed no inspectors for any one man: I appointed Democrats according to the law; I have no doubt many men I appointed were favorable to Mr. Genet; I believe Mr. McQuade was friendly to him; if you ask me to guess I will say I guess he voted for Mr. Genet."

The XIVth District was next considered, from which James J. Walsh was removed and Mr. Murphy appointed. The Commissioner explained: "When I appointed Murphy I inquired about his character; I thought there was enough in the papers to remove Mr. Walsh, and that it was more important to have a fair election than that he should have an office for a day; I tried to get a good set of inspectors; how far I succeeded I don't know."

The first time a meeting of the Board was held on election day was at 8 o'clock in the morning, and then Messrs. Smith, Gardner, and Charlick were present. He was positive this meeting was held. He thought no one was appointed whose name was not submitted to at least three of the Commissioners. He was asked if he did not recollect appointing a man by the name of Quinn on the morning of election while Mr. Kelly was present, and making out his papers and sending him out to his work without consulting with the other Commissioners. Mr. Charlick thought not. The question was persistently repeated, and Mr. Charlick said he might have done so if Mr. Kelly was present, although he could not recollect it. He could not remember asking Mr. Kelly if "that man [Quinn] did not look like an honest man?" In regard to a resolution of the Board approving of the removal of inspectors, Mr. Charlick read from the minutes of the Board (Nov. 10, 1873), showing that Mr. Duryee moved the tabling of the resolution and it was lost, Commissioners Russell and Duryee voting for it, and Charlick and Gardner against it.

Q. Did you consult with Gen. Duryee in regard to what appointments you were going to make on election day? A. I can't say that I did. I know I did not ask him any questions.

Q. Didn't Mr. Ackert give you a paper which was a request from the men removed that the affidavits on which their removals were said to be based should be shown them. A. Mr. Ackert gave me a paper stating himself to be counsel for the men removed, and making a demand for the affidavits on which the removals were made. I consider the demand as impertinent, and refused to shew him any papers.

The Commissioner was then asked if he did not send some one to James J. Killian to ask him to resign. Mr. Charlick replied that he did not. He was quite flushed and quietly indignant when asked if he was a party to any message sent to Killian, telling him if he did not resign he would be arrested. The Commissioner, when Mr. Wingate attached to his question something about a "nefarious transaction," replied with severe dignity, "You can assume that, Sir, I don't know of any necessity for denying such a thing."

Mr. Charlick was questioned concerning the great distance of the railings in the election places, and replied that he did not know that the railing kept the watchers too far away from the polls, or put them on no better footing than the general spectators. He did not put in, in the dispatch to the police captains about keeping watchers outside the railings, the reference to the rule in the Manual; in fact, he did not know of any such rule until the present moment.

Judge Donohue having an engagement at half-past 2, an adjournment until Thursday afternoon at 3 was taken.
