ANNUAL STATISTICAL REVIEW OF THE LIVE STOCK TRADE OF NEW-YORK FOR THE YEAR 1874

The totals of the year are 454,033 beeves, 3,676 milch cows, 104,719 calves, 1,165,653 sheep and lambs, and 1,774,221 hogs. These totals show an increase over the figures for 1873 of 11,289 beeves, and a decrease of 1,025 milch cows, 11,296 calves, 41,062 sheep and lambs, and 154,168 hogs.

For the last half of the year the quality of the beeves and hogs received was much below the average of previous years. Throughout the months of August, September, October, and November the greater part of the beeves rated below medium, and the receipts were largely from Texas, Kansas, and Colorado. Hogs were especially light and thin during the same months. The average quality of the sheep and lambs was fair, but not really good. Cows and calves would compare favorably with last year, but the trade in milch cows can never be important here so long as the choicest cows are picked up before they reach this market.

Fat beeves, sheep, veals, and hogs have ruled higher this year than last, but the almost unprecedented inferior quality of the bulk of the receipts of beeves for several months caused the average price to a low figure.

The show of Christmas cattle this year was good, and some of the animals exhibited were concedibly better than anything ever before shown in this market. Extra heavy sheep for the holidays were plenty enough, and a number of decks that averaged upward of 150 ℔ ⅌ head could not well be excelled.

It has been a bad year for slaughterers generally, and the failures have been numerous and for large amounts. Butchers were not in shape to stop business, unless compelled to, and they have been forced by circumstances to pay too much for their beef cattle and sheep. The losses to commission salesmen for the year by the failures of butchers are estimated at $300,000.

Since the last annual statement was printed the new yards and shafts of the New-Jersey Stock Yard and Transit Company, located at Harsimus Cove, have been formally opened, and the amount of business for the eleven months from Jan. 26 last, exceeds by a large measure that of either of the other market places. At Weehawken five abattoirs have been built; and new stock yards on the North River between Sixteenth and Sixty-fifth-sts., for the accommodation of sale of the stock transported over the Hudson River and Harlem Railroads are nearly ready for use.

* For the first three weeks in January, the stock credited to Jersey City arrived at Communipaw.

The actual sales at the several places were in some cases more, and in others less, than the figures above credited to each place, for the reason that frequently, and in fact, nearly every week, some portion of the stock received at one market place and entered on the books, was afterward taken to another market-place for sale. In making up the figures for this statement credit is only given to the place first receiving the stock.

NOTE.—In this market beef cattle are sold on what is called the dressed weight, selling hide, tat, and offal; veals, sheep, lambs, and hogs on the live weight. Beginning with the first week in June, the quotations for prime sheep are for sheared or clipped stock, which explains the sudden and large shrinkage in value.
