THE COURTS.

CLANDESTINE IMPORTING PUNISHED.

MLLE. JUVIN SENTENCED TO THREE MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT AND $2,000 FINE—DISPOSAL OF THE SMUGGLED GOODS.

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, in moving sentence on Mlle. Leonie Juvin, who pleaded guilty on Wednesday of having smuggled into this port costly silk dresses from Paris, United States District-Attorney Bliss spoke substantially as follows:

This woman is a French milliner, and there is reason to believe that she has been here once before, and passed goods free of duty by means of a pretended contract to appear as an actress at one of our prominent theaters, and by claiming that the dresses which she brought were part of her stage wardrobe. This is a clear case of commercial smuggling, as she had brought the goods to be sold for gain. They were brought on orders. But it is not proper to divulge the names of her customers, because there is no evidence to show they knew that the dresses were smuggled. The goods have been seized and condemned. They are worth at least $7,000, and therefore the loss of the guilty person has been great. She has also been in Ludlow Street Jail for a month, and under all the circumstances, this is not a case calling for the severest punishment. I do not think, however, that the punishment should be limited to a fine, but that she should suffer additional imprisonment and be made to pay a substantial fine. If that be done, I think that justice will be satisfied.

Mr. Joseph Bell, of counsel for Mlle. Juvin, then said that Mr. Bliss had made a fair statement of the case, and that he agreed with everything he had said. "Mlle. Juvin," continued Mr. Bell, "was induced by a person well-known in the community to smuggle the dresses in the manner in which they were smuggled. The name of that person I do not now feel called upon to mention. Mlle. Juvin is the sole support of her parents; her business has been greatly injured if not ruined, and she will have to borrow money to pay her passage back to Paris, and I commend her to the mercy of the Court."

Judge Benedict, addressing the prisoner, said among other things:

This is a case of deliberate smuggling for commercial purposes, and there is reason to suppose that it is not the first time you have been engaged in defrauding the revenue. The law requires me to punish you in such a manner that both you and others will be deterred from smuggling. You have pleaded guilty, and thereby saved the Government the expense of a trial. That is one mitigating circumstance. The customers you found for your goods led you into great temptation, and the temptation a person is subjected to should always be considered in dealing with a criminal. In view, then, of these things, and also in view of what has been said in your behalf, I shall not inflict upon you the extreme penalty of the law. The sentence of the Court is that you be imprisoned for three months, and that you pay a fine of $2,000. The month you have been in jail may be deducted from the term of imprisonment just inflicted.

The "person" referred to by Mr. Bell is a well-known actress, and it is said that she has smuggled dresses as a part of her wardrobe, and then sold them to ladies of wealth and fashion in this city. The "pretended contract" referred to by Mr. Bliss was to appear as an actress in the Almee opera troupe. The dresses smuggled by Mlle. Juvin have been condemned, and will soon be sold to the women for whom they were smuggled. The following, it is said, is to be the manner of the sale: Each lady who commissioned Mlle. Jouvin to procure goods for her will have some one at the Custom-house auction to bid them in for her. No person is expected to bid against those who are commissioned to buy in the goods, and the result will be that the ladies will get their dresses much cheaper than Mlle. Juvin could have sold them, even if she had succeeded in getting them in free of duty.

THE DEMURRER IN THE KELLY-TAINTOR LIBEL SUIT.

Mr. Henry F. Taintor, who is employed in the Controller's office, gave Mayor Havemeyer, at the time his letters against John Kelly were published, a statement that two checks amounting to $15,509, which had been paid by the city, had been deposited to Mr. Kelly's account. Mr. Taintor requested the Mayor to give Mr. Kelly an opportunity to explain this. In his answer to Mayor Havemeyer, John Kelly denounced Taintor as a sycophant, and thereupon Mr. Taintor published a letter, which charged Mr. Kelly with fraudulent transactions and dishonesty. Upon the publication of this last letter Mr. Kelly brought suit for libel. As a defense, Mr. Taintor set up the above facts, and claimed that they made the article a "privileged communication," and, as another defense, that the matter complained of was true, "according to the true intent and meaning thereof."

The plaintiff demurred to these defenses, and Judge Monell, before whom, in the Superior Court, Special Term, the demurrer was argued, decided yesterday that the facts do not bring the alleged libelous matter within any of the classes of privileged communications. It does not relate to any legislative or judicial proceeding. It is not one of those private communications which may sometimes be published under some peculiar duty or privilege of confidence. The facts might be provable in mitigation of damages, but then they should be alleged to be used for that purpose. He therefore sustains the demurrer to this part, but allows the defendant to amend his answer so as to set up the facts in mitigation.

As to the other portion, he holds that the words "according to the true intent and meaning thereof," mean "according to the legal meaning of the words averred to be libelous," and therefore, though superfluous, they are not a qualification of the allegation of their truth. He therefore overrules this demurrer as to that part. G. W. Wingate and Henry L. Clinton for plaintiff, S. DeKay and W. H. Peckham for defendant.

A CRIMINAL HUSBAND'S APPEAL.

The appeal of Duncan D. Templeton, who was convicted, before Recorder Hackett, in April last, of shooting his wife with intent to kill her, and sentenced to State Prison for 7½ years, came up in the Supreme Court General Term, before Justices Davis, Brady, and Daniels yesterday, for argument. The defense on the trial was the prisoner's insanity, and the chief exceptions taken were to the exclusion of questions to jurors as to their prejudices against that defense, the exclusion of the opinions of unprofessional witnesses as to the state of Templeton's mind, and the low estimate placed by the Recorder, in his charge, on expert testimony. Mr. Townsend argued that a juror who had a prejudice against the defense of insanity should have been excluded, and that his own questions were framed to ascertain whether such a prejudice existed; that there was no better evidence of a man's mental condition than the impression his acts produced on one who often saw him, and that in saying to the jury that they had as much capacity as Dr. Clymer, the "expert" witness, to pass upon the question of the prisoner's state of mind, the Recorder took from Dr. Clymer's evidence its due weight.

Assistant District-Attorney Rollins argued in answer that the jurors' feelings as to a line of defense could not be inquired into; that the ruling out of unprofessional testimony as to the condition of the prisoner's mind was clearly within the rules, and that in his charge Recorder Hackett had left, as was proper, Dr. Clymer's testimony to go as one of the elements on which the jury were to decide. The Court reserved its decision.

A CLAIM AGAINST THE CITY DEFEATED.

In the suit of Charles A. Hankins against the Mayor, tried yesterday before Judge Loew in the Court of Common Pleas, the Court dismissed the complaint on the pleadings. The suit was for $3,800, and interest, for publishing in "the official" Railway News the canvass of the election in the Spring of 1870. The publication was authorized by the Board of Canvassers. Counsel for the city stated that this was only one item of claims preferred by the same man and his wife and sister-in-law to the amount of over $350,000, for advertising in the paper named in this suit, in The Hankins Journal, The Home Gazette, and The New-York Argus. It was stated also that there was evidence to show that the usual edition of The Railway News was twelve, and that it was unknown to the advertising agents. The motion for the dismissal of the suit, however, was based on the fact that this paper was not named by the Mayor and Controller as a corporation paper, as required by the act of 1863.

The revised statutes, it was true, gave the power of designating the papers in which such publications were to be made to the Board of Canvassers, but the act of 1870 repealed that, so far as the County of New-York was concerned. Judge Loew concurred in this view and gave judgment for the city. J. Lawrence and Elliott Sandford appeared for the plaintiff; D. D. Lord and C. P. Miller for the city.

CIVIL NOTES.

The suit of John Brennan against Herman Goodstein which has been on trial for three days in the Supreme Court, Circuit, before Judge Van Vorst was ended yesterday. The plaintiff sought to recover $24,300, the value of jewelry stolen from him in Philadelphia, because, as was alleged, a few of the stolen rings had been traced to the defendant. Goodstein denied absolutely that he had ever sold the rings or had them in his possession. Judge Van Vorst held that as the defendant had made this simple issue, if the jury found that he had any of the stolen property he might be charged with having it. The jury, after several hours' discussion, disagreed and were discharged. George H. Fletcher and John O. Mott for plaintiff, C. S. Spencer for defendant.

In 1863, Leon Haas, jr., gave to the Collector of this Port a bond for $21,081. It was given under the "non-intercourse" statutes, which were intended to prevent the landing, in States in insurrection, of goods calculated to give "aid and comfort to the rebels." Haas, it was claimed, violated the conditions of the bond, and action was brought in the United States Circuit Court to recover the amount expressed in it. The case came on for trial yesterday, before Judge Wallace, who held that the bond was an illegal one, because it exceeded the requirements of the statutes. Assistant United States District-Attorneys Smith and Sherman appeared for the Government, and Coudert Brothers for the defendant.

CRIMINAL NOTES.

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, Louis Borrus was fined $100 for manufacturing cigars without giving the bond required by law. George Breen was sent to prison for two months and fined $1,000 for smuggling cigars. John B. Martinez was fined $5,000 for smuggling tobacco.

At the Tombs Police Court yesterday Joseph Osborn was discharged. P. D. Burns refusing to make a complaint against him.... Joseph Gildes was held for attempting to break into the stables of Simon Harberger at No. 28 City Hall-place.... Edward Haggarety was held for stealing an overcoat from the office of F. E. Smith, at No. 428 Canal-st.

Sarah Meyers, convicted on Wednesday in the Court of General Sessions of keeping a disorderly house, was sentenced yesterday to $250 fine and four months in the City Prison. Judge Sutherland, in passing sentence, censured sharply certain insults to the convicted person, which, it was stated, had been offered by two of the witnesses after her conviction.

In the Court of General Sessions yesterday, Judge Sutherland imposed the following sentences, pleas of guilty being entered: James Williams, (colored) on five indictments for grand larceny, pleading guilty on two, 10 years in State Prison; Francis White, burglary in the second degree, 5 years in State Prison; Robert Dale, grand larceny, 4 years in State Prison; James McCloskey, larceny from the person, 3 years in State Prison; Thomas Rinaldo and Antonio Martin, attempts at grand larceny, each 2½ years in State Prison; William Campbell, attempt at grand larceny, 1 year in the Penitentiary.

A Threefold Cord.—All Christians agree in ascribing infinite goodness, infinite wisdom and infinite power to Him who made us; but not all Christians are willing to accept the plain and logical conclusion which these three attributes imply. If God is infinitely good He must desire, of course, that all men should be saved; if He is infinitely wise, He must, of course, know how to save them; and if He is infinitely powerful, He must, of course, be able to save them.—(Rack., 39, 11; Ps., 147, 5; Isa., 46, 10.) If, then, God desires to save all men, and knows how to save them, and is able to save them, the logic is perfect which says that He will save them. It is "a threefold cord, not quickly broken."—(Eccl., 4, 12.) He who denies that all men will be saved, must virtually deny one, at least, of these three attributes of God, in which all Christians profess to believe, and without which God would not be God. The Calvinist virtually denies the goodness of God, for he says that God does not wish for all men to be saved but has foreordained a certain part of the human race to endless sin and endless torment. In similar manner the Arminian denies both the wisdom and the power of God, for he says that in spite of God's wish to save all men, some men, instigated, aided, and abetted by the devil, will defeat Him eternally. Universalists are the only Christians whose creed agrees with all of God's attributes and gives them their full significance. They alone can say with the Apostle Paul, "Therefore we both labor and suffer reproach, because we believe in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, specially of those that believe."—(1 Tim., 4, 10.)

At the THIRD UNIVERSALIST CHURCH, corner of Bleecker and Downing-sts., the pastor, Rev. R. C. SWEETSER, will preach TO-MORROW, Morning and Evening, at 10½ and 7½ o'clock. SUNDAY MORNING, at 11, "Thoughts for Troublous Times." SUNDAY EVENING, at 7:45, "The Moral and Regenerative Power of Universalism."

The commonest objection against Universalism is that made by those who have not informed themselves on the subject, viz.: "It will take away the fear of future punishment, and so will have no power to deter and arouse the conscience."

I propose to show that a man converted to UNIVERSALISM is converted to the faith that the Universe is built on moral foundations; that there is an absolute and eternal Rule of Rectitude to which all souls must eventually conform, and in conformity to which it is alone found the highest good possible to souls; that man has now a real ability to commence the work of conformity, an ability that will be lightened in the Divine disciplines until he is fitted either to perfectly obey the perfect law, finding in absolute obedience absolute freedom and happiness; that it is therefore no benefit, but an injury to have the cause of Divine discipline interfered with, or its penalties borne by another; that Christ does not fulfill the Law for us, but keeps us to fulfill; God work in us by all agencies to will and to do His pleasure, while we work out our own salvation with fear and trembling.
