mand for shirtings appears to be on the decrease, owing, probably, to the increasing favor extended to cheviots. Jobbing rates are irregular and in buyers' favor.

COTTON FLANNELS have been the most active of cotton goods with both agents and jobbers, whose combined sales reached an important aggregate amount. Prices ruled firm, and the supply of leading brands is quite moderate.

CASSIMERES AND SATTEENS were in steady but limited request from first hands at ruling rates. A few makes are well sold up. Jobbers' sales of seasonable clothing have been fairly active.

TICKINGS AND DENIMS have moved slowly from first hands, while the jobbing distribution was light.

GRAIN BAGS are reduced in price. Stark A to 27 yet, and other makes in proportion, and in consequence were fairly active in jobbers' hands.

PRINT CLOTHS ruled very quiet, sales of Extra Standard 64s ranging from 5¼@5¼c., while some Fall River jobbers demanded 5¾c. Contracts up to January were offered at 5¼c., but the sellers bid only 5⅛c. The stock of unsold goods in Fall River was reduced to 95,000 pieces, less than a week's production when the mills are running on full time.

PRINTS ruled less active and were latterly somewhat unsettled by the action of jobbers in "cutting" prices. Fleds continued in steady demand, as did dark madder fancies. The best makes of navy blues also found a ready sale. Chocolates ruled very quiet, and there appears to be an over-supply of these goods on the market. The importance of American fancies to 6½c. was the only price change openly made. Jobbing prices were irregular, some fair styles of plaids being sold for 5c., while others of a purse character were offered as low as 7½c. without creating much sensation.

GINGHAMS have continued active, so that the demand is in excess of the supply, the Kentrew Mills green imitations cool seersucks and many leading fancy styles of the Lancaster, Amoskeag, Bates, Plunkett, Mohawk, and Glasgow Mills being sold to arrive.

DRESS GOODS have been in steady demand from agents' hands in plain and fancy woven textures. The leading production of the Pacific, Manchester, Washington, Hamilton, and Cocheco Mills, also Schipper's Philadelphia fabrics, are closely sold up. Colored cashmeres have been in improved request, and reps have been active in jobbers' hands.

SHAWLS—Though less active in first hands, have been in steady demand. Opening prices have been well sustained, and the supply is unusually small. The jobbing trade has shown an improvement.

SKIRTS—Low and medium felt skirts in printed, embossed, trimmed, and ruffled makes, have been in good demand, and quilted skirts have been well sold by some agents. Balmoral skirts have been in only moderate request.

HOSIERY—Shirts and drawers have been dull, and prices low and unprofitable. There has been a steady demand for fancy hosiery, which, as shown by numerous re-orders, have been well distributed by jobbers in the interior. Wool hose and ball hose were in limited request, but heavy cotton half hose were fairly active, as were low and medium Cardigan jackets, which are now in reduced supply. Scarfs, nubias, and other fancy knit woolens ruled slow in first hands.

WOOLEN GOODS—The market for men's woolen goods lacked animation, and the only demand experienced was for small assortments of specialties of different descriptions, such as would be necessary for the requirements of current trade. Large aggregate sales of particular makes of fancy cassimeres were made in line of former asking rates. Lead-pencils and general jobbing firms have effected a liberal aggregate distribution, and prospects are considered favorable.

CLOTHS of favorite makes have been in moderate request from first hands. New buyers have purchased black and colors to an unimportant amount at about recent prices.

OVERCOATINGS—Favorite makes of fancy and plain faced beavers have been in steady demand for limited quantities to meet the necessities of current trade, and a fair aggregate distribution was thus made, as well as in execution of previous orders.

REPELLANTS were somewhat uneven. Particular grades of black and desirable styles of fancy, for ladies' outside wear, were in steady demand, prices ruling low, but the distribution was light, both from agents' and jobbers' hands.

CASSIMERES ruled inactive. A fair aggregate of new and choice styles of fancy was sold by agents to buyers, and upon orders at steady prices, but old styles were difficult of sale, but on a decided concession from earlier rates they had in some cases large though unsatisfactory sales.

DOESKINS ruled slow. The aggregate distribution was small, though moderate sales were reported of a few favorite makes.

WORSTED COATINGS of good quality in heavy weight continue in favor with the trade. Inferior grades moved slowly. Prices have been well maintained. Samples of heavy weight worsteds are on the market, and these goods have been in fair demand from large clothing firms, orders having been taken for particular makes, to some extent, for future delivery.

SATINETS, plain and printed, were in fair demand from first hands, and sales for the week were satisfactory in the aggregate.

KENTUCKY JEANS ruled comparatively inactive. Low and medium grades were disposed of by agents to a moderate amount. Prices of a few particular makes have been well sustained, but others have been offered at a concession.

FLANNELS ruled less active, though there was a steady demand experienced for such descriptions as were necessary for the renewal of assortments at unchanged prices. Shaker Flannels were in steady request. Dometts, and different colors of Twilled Flannels, together with fancy and shirting styles, met with fair sales.

BLANKETS—The mild weather retarded the demand for these goods. Hence there was no large movement, but the sales of such qualities and sizes as are necessary for the replenishing of assortments was effected without difficulty.

CARPETS moved from first hands to a fair aggregate amount. Best makes of Brussels and ingrain ruled firm in price. Old styles were in some cases sold a little below agents' rates for new styles of corresponding quality. Auction sales showed an increase in quantity and the variety of styles offered, and the prices obtained were on an average better than those realized at previous sales.

There was a steady though moderate demand for both staple and fancy imported goods from first hands. The dress goods jobbing houses did a fairly satisfactory business, and both British and Continental fabrics had a considerable distribution.
