NOTES ON EDUCATION.

The Iowa State Agricultural College has just sent out 20 graduates.

At Dartmouth the term bills amount to $70, at Brown $85, at Williams $90 to $95, Yale $140, and Harvard $150.

A young lady, Miss Evelyn Chapman, took the first prize at the recent State collegiate oratorical contest at Des Moines.

Prof. Backus of Vassar says that other denominations are more zealous than the Baptist in the matter of female education.

The Texas Legislature has fixed the compensation of public school teachers in that State at 10 cents per day for each pupil in actual attendance.

The trustees of Wesleyan University, Middletown, have resolved to celebrate the Centennial by the addition of $500,000 to the endowment of the institution.

The new Ladies' College at Cambridge England, to be known as Newnham Hall, has just been opened to students. Miss Clough, sister of the poet, has charge of it.

Egypt has long been noted as a country remarkably abundant in ophthalmic subjects, but not until recently has it had any school for the blind. One has just been established at Cairo.

It is the opinion of The London Examiner that the first necessity of the educational situation in England is that the friends of free education should unite in a vigorous assault on the clericalism of the Universities.

The Boston Teachers' School of Science ought to serve as a precedent for similar schools in other cities. The lectures are free to the teachers in the public schools, and are well attended. The expenses of this school are all paid by its founder, Mr. Cummings.

The London Academy thinks it is worth consideration whether the elements of modern politics might not be systematically taught in the upper classes of schools, instead of being left entirely to debating societies and to incidental allusions in historical lessons.

The Messrs. Stuart of New-York have given to Princeton Theological Seminary within the last 13 years nearly $200,000. Over 170 students have been admitted to Princeton this year. The new dormitory building will be ready for occupancy in September next.

The Public School Board of Indianapolis have refused to establish kindergarten schools in that city. The Indianapolis Sentinel thinks this a wise action, on the grounds that such early training is not necessary in a prosperous country like ours, and that school life here is already too long.

Prof. Fawcett maintains that different students should be allowed to choose their own intellectual discipline so as to be in keeping with their own aspirations and interests, and cites cases in which the study of political economy takes hold of young men and develops their mental powers after classics and mathematics have completely failed to awaken them.

The trustees of Wellesley College, the college recently opened for girls in Massachusetts, now appeal to the public for aid. The price of board and tuition —$250—will not enable the institution to meet its current expenses, even with the 300 students now in attendance. It needs books for its library, endowments for professorships and for poor students, contributions for the art gallery and the natural history department, and an astronomical observatory. Its founders having built the college and set it in operation, apparently consider their part of the work well done.

At a recent Massachusetts teachers' meeting it was argued that too much must not be attempted in teaching history; that details of history should not be taught, but left for the pupil to learn in after years by reading. History in the school-room should embrace a few leading facts, which will act as magnets around which minor facts will cluster. A half dozen political facts, out of which our system of government has grown; a score of inventions, from which our mercantile prosperity has arisen; a few leading literary facts to which our literature is indebted:—these were the teachings advocated.

The maximum per cent in examination of teachers established by the California State Board of Education is as follows: Eighty-five per cent for first grade, 80 for second grade, and 75 for third grade certificates. The Board has also adopted 60 per cent as the minimum standard in arithmetic, grammar, and spelling, for granting first and second grade certificates, and 50 per cent for third grade certificates. County Boards are required to examine the candidates in these studies first, and at once excuse from further examination all who fail below 50 per cent. Neither the State nor the County Boards are allowed to renew third grade certificates.

The expenses of Amherst College for the past year, exclusive of the scholarships and prizes, were $59,445, including $38,593 for salaries of instructors, and the receipts were $57,206, including $27,000 for term bills of the students—leaving an unfavorable balance of $2,238. The estimates for next year are of about $57,500, receipts and expenditures. Though the number of students is steadily increasing, now 334 in all, the business depression naturally affects the income of the funds of the college, and the strictest economy is necessary. The college is already in debt to itself about $25,000 for excess of expenditures over income in former years. The yearly tuition has been raised from $90 to $100, and its payment required, after this year, semi-annually in October and April, while the ministerial scholarships have been raised to a similar sum. The scholarships and prizes in this college pay about half of all the tuition fees, besides their universal reduction to one-half the whole cost by the general endowments of the institution.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 3—P. M.

The railway and miscellaneous shares started off briskly and at about the closing prices of Monday, and after a lull run down in Lake Shore and Erie the entire market responded to a recovery in these shares to and above the opening prices. The North-Western and St. Paul shares were the early features, and recorded a smart advance on the defeat of the Granger ticket in Wisconsin. The market by noon however had lost its firmness, and took the back track down again, the afternoon dealings being of small magnitude and on a lower basis of prices. There were no noteworthy incidents in to-day's market. The business of the day was comparatively small, the purchases and sales aggregating only about 119,000 shares, Lake Shore covering 52,000 shares, or nearly one-half the entire day's business. The most active shares, after Lake Shore, were Western Union, Erie, Pacific Mail, North-Western, St. Paul, and C., C. and I. C. Compared with Monday's closing prices, those of to-day show an advance in Rock Island and St. Paul Prefer
