BEEVES—The total for the week is 8,480 head, against 10,113 last week, and 8,731 for the corresponding week last year. The fresh offerings to-day were 265 car loads, or 4,584 head—17 cars at Jersey City and 248 cars at Sixth-ave. The average quality was not up to the mark of last Monday, and extra and fancy steers were scarce. Sellers were trying to get Friday's prices, which were about ½c. ⅌ lb. higher than the selling rates of the previous Monday, but buyers held back, and the market dragged and closed heavy at scarcely any improvement from last Monday's figures. A few of the choicest selections were retailed at 13¼@13½c. ⅌ lb. to dress 58 lb to the gross cwt., and wholesale slaughterers, who furnish first-class up-town butchers with gilt-edged roasts, sirloin and porter-house steaks, took a few bunches at 12¾@13c. ⅌ lb. to dress 58 lb to the gross cwt., but the quota I range for native lots including light, common steers to strictly prime bullocks, was 8½@12½c. ⅌ lb. to dress 53@58 lb, and for common to very choice Texas and Cherokee cattle, 7½@10½c. ⅌ lb. to dress 55 ⅌ lb. the latter figure for a four-car lot of very choice No. 1 Texas, estimated to average 7 cwt. net.

Of the cattle in market at Chicago, for the week ending Nov. 12, The Live Stock Reporter thus comments: "The daily supplies of cattle up to the close of Wednesday were materially smaller than in the corresponding days of the previous week, and to this improved condition of things the market was indebted for a brighter and more favorable appearance. Not only were sellers enabled to clear out the bulk of unsold stock remaining over from the previous week, but fairly to prevent any further accumulations. Satisfactory, however, as these appearances and influences may have been, there was really no improvement in prices, which seem to have reached the highest limit for the season some days previously, when heavier supplies and harder markets were encountered. It seems to us better that Western shippers and dealers should realize this position of the market as early as they can, as we think it highly probable that the demand for the best certain grades, such as come at this time of year, will not more, of our present supply, the market has reached its highest point for November and December. In regard to fat matured cattle, no certain conclusion can be reached until the extent of the supply has been more fully known. For some weeks past the demand has been quite limited, and at times almost nominal, but during last week there seemed a little inquiry for good to choice beeves, and upon the basis of past years we may look for further improvement until the demand for the holidays has been fully met."
