a similar affidavit of Harold Bateman and of a Mr. Gibson, who states that he took to the Fifth Avenue Theater the copy of "Leah, the Forsaken," and compared it with the play acted there as "The New Leah," and found them identical, except in the names of the characters and in a few substitutions of synonymous words. On these papers an application was made to Judge Donohue for a temporary injunction. Judge Donohue refused that order, but gave an order to show cause why a permanent injunction should not issue, returnable yesterday in Supreme Court, Chambers. Yesterday counsel for Mr. Daly appeared, and asked an adjournment to prepare their answer, stating that the piece had been withdrawn owing to the illness of Miss Clara Morris, and they were willing to stipulate not to play it until the decision of this motion. Judge Donohue adjourned the motion for a week under this stipulation. Gibson & Bateman appeared for plaintiff; Olin Montgomery & Reeves for the defendant.

CUSTODY OF D. D. TEMPLETON'S CHILD.

In the proceeding by Ida Maud Templeton, before Judge Donohue, to recover her child from its grandfather, from which Mrs. Templeton finally withdrew, and Judge Donohue thereupon made an order awarding the child to its grandfather, an application was recently made to Judge Donohue to amend his order so as simply to dismiss the proceeding without making any disposition of the child, and by striking out the provision for costs. Judge Donohue holds that when a party has asked a decision in such a case he or she is not at liberty when it suits them to drop the proceeding. In a case where father and mother have disagreed, it is the duty of the court at all times to consult the best interest of the infant. Judge Donohue abstains from discussion of its mother's or father's conduct, but, it appearing to him that there has been neglect of duty on their part, the Court had the power to make a decree assigning the child to those who would take care of it. The order in that respect is, therefore, correct. As to the question of costs, it is a statutory matter, with which the Court will not interfere.

A PASSENGER'S LOSS BY SHIPWRECK.

The trial of the suit of Freeman D. Marckwald agt. The Ocean Steam Navigation Company was begun yesterday, before Judge Westbrook, in Supreme Court, Circuit. The suit grows out of the wreck of the Atlantic on the coast of Nova Scotia, April 1, 1873. Marckwald lost his baggage, which was, he says, worth $1,400; his time, which was worth $3,000 a year, and was made sick and put to considerable expense in reaching New-York. He charges that the wreck was the result of the Company's negligence. The defense of the Company is a denial of any fault on their part, and that a statute of the United States limits their liability to all losers by the wreck to the value of the vessel. They have brought a suit in the United States District Court to apportion this liability among all persons interested, and claim that the plaintiff's only remedy is there. The case is still on. Raymond & Coursen appear for the plaintiff; Joseph H. Choate for the defendants.

CIVIL NOTES.

In the United States District Court yesterday the Government began suit against Henry Russell, late assistant paymaster in the navy, to recover $4,138 13, which, it is alleged, is due on his accounts. It is said that there is no deficit in Russell's accounts, but that a clerical error in rendering them was made. The sureties on Russell's official bond, which is for $5,000, are A. H. Wallis and George Russell.

In the suit of Ellen O'Donnell against Thomas B. Kerr and others, Judge Van Vorst, in Supreme Court, Special Term, decides that where, in order to convey land to his wife, a man first conveys to a third party, the judgment creditors of the intermediate party obtain no lien on the property. Judge Van Vorst places his decision on the ground that the intermediate party in this case never had possession of the property, was only vested with it in trust to convey it away at once, and therefore never had any substantial interest on which his creditors' judgments could attach.

In the suit of Roebling agt. Duncan, Sherman & Co., Mr. Grain, one of the partners, refused to answer any questions as to the condition of the firm, on the ground that, having conveyed all their property to an assignee for the benefit of creditors, any inquiry in proceedings to ascertain what property they had applicable to a judgment was useless. Judge Donohue holds that Mr. Grain was right. The amendment to the original provisions of the Code only prevents a judgment debtor from excusing himself from answering on the ground that his answers may criminate him; otherwise the proceeding remains the same as passed on by elder decisions. "The question now, as then, is, do the questions go to anything that may disclose property reachable under this proceeding? There is nothing in them to show they do, and under the cases the objection must be sustained."

CRIMINAL NOTES.

At the Washington Place Police Court yesterday 15 saloon keepers, for selling liquor on Sunday, were held in $100 bail each to answer.

At the Essex Market Police Court yesterday Reinhardt Ochmann was held for wounding James Wishodir in the shoulder during a quarrel between them at a wedding at No. 171 Attorney-st.

At the Yorkville Police Court yesterday Theodore Kelly of No. 242 West Thirty-second-st. was charged with having on Monday last broken into the basement of the residence of Sidney Dillon, at No. 5 West Thirty-seventh-st., and having stolen silverware valued at $234. The prisoner was held for examination.

In the Court of General Sessions, some time ago, James Cunningford was indicted for attempting to pass on Munger & Co. in payment for United States Five-twenty bonds, a forged check for $43,961 87 on the Ninth National Bank of this city. Cunningford was arrested yesterday on a bench warrant, and committed to the Tombs in default of $10,000 bail.
