THE COURTS.

HEMPSTEAD RESERVOIR.

THE CONTRACTORS' SUIT AGAINST THE CITY OF BROOKLYN TO RECOVER $178,000.

The suit of Messrs. Kingsley and Keeney, contractors for the Hempstead Reservoir, against the City of Brooklyn to recover $178,000, claimed to be still due on their contract, came to a hearing yesterday afternoon in Brooklyn before the referees, John A. Lott, Thomas H. Rodman, and George H. Fisher. Corporation Counsel De Witt, Jesse Johnson, and John E. Parsons appeared for the City of Brooklyn, and the plaintiffs were represented by B. F. Tracy and Joshua M. Van Cott. Mr. Tracy opened the case for the contractors with a brief review of the circumstances under which the reservoir was contracted for, and stated that there was due the plaintiffs $57,000, retained by the city as security for the final completion of the work, and in addition thereto the sum of $112,000 or $115,000 for work not included in the monthly estimates of the engineers but which should have been included. It was for these sums that the action was brought by the plaintiffs.

Gen. Slocum, President of the Department of Public Works of Brooklyn, having been subpenaed, produced the contract between the city and Messrs. Kingsley and Keeney, which Gen. Tracy thereupon offered in evidence. Mr. Parsons moved two objections. The first was that the contract spoke of plans and specifications as part of the contract, and these were not offered with the contract. The other objection was that the contract had been altered. After an argument the contract was admitted in evidence.

Gen. Slocum then produced what purported to be the monthly estimates and a final estimate of the work. After argument and a cross examination of Gen. Slocum, the monthly estimates were at length admitted as evidence. Gen. Tracy next offered the final certificate as evidence. Judge Lott regarded the point here involved as of great importance, and the counsel proceeded to argue it. Mr. Van Cott, for the plaintiffs, held that the engineer must from the nature of his position have the best means of knowing just what work had been done. Indeed, he was the only person who could know. It was impossible for a person who only saw the excavations as they at present were, to form an idea of the work done. That could be only decided by the profiles made by the engineer and calculations based upon them. Mr. Parsons, for the city, argued against the admission of the certificate in evidence. The particulars of the work done were claimed by the defendants to be false. What then was proposed? Not to put Mr. Adams, the chief engineer, on the stand, or Mr. Probasco, the resident engineer; not to take the testimony of witnesses, but to introduce this final certificate, signed indeed, but without proof of value in the premises. It was not shown that Mr. Adams had even been to the reservoir. He had taken the testimony of others. The contract was binding by reason of the signature of the President of the Board of City Works, William A. Fowler. The monthly estimates were signed by the president of this board, and it did not appear that the engineer had any such powers as were claimed for him by the counsel for the plaintiffs. The rest of the day was consumed in further arguments upon the admissibility of the paper. The referees desired time for deliberation, and the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday, at 10 o'clock, when the case will be continued in the Common Council Chamber in the City Hall.

SALES BY REVENUE COLLECTORS.

DECISION CONCERNING PROPERTY IN ONONDAGA COUNTY.

In the suit of Antoinette Brown against Charles T. Goodwin and another, Judge Van Vorst, in Supreme Court, Special Term, has given a decision for the plaintiff. The suit relates to property in Onondaga County formerly owned by Gertrude W. Sharkey, the wife of Marquis D. L. Sharkey. William H. Goodwin recovered a judgment against Sharkey for $171,875, and then begun a suit to show that Mrs. Sharkey's property was really in part her husband's. He filed the ordinary notice of lis pendens, which was technically notice of the claim to all citizens of New-York. Pending this suit, which dragged along for four years, he died, and the present defendants are his executors. The final decision of the suit was that M. D. L. Sharkey had an equitable interest in his wife's property to the extent of $12,000, to which the defendants, as judgment creditors, were entitled.

In 1868 Mrs. Sharkey was a silent partner in three firms, and for non-payment of the taxes of these firms, the Collector of Internal Revenue shortly after the commencement of the above-named suit sold out Mrs. Sharkey's property, and the plaintiff claims title under the Collector's sale. There was some question raised, whether the plaintiff's interest was not a secret trust for Sharkey, but Judge Van Vorst puts his decision on other grounds. He holds that the Collector's deed contains all that the law requires him to recite in his deed, and so far is prima facie evidence of the facts therein recited, but that it does not recite, what it was not required to recite, the fact of notice to the owner, Mrs. Sharkey, the mere words "due notice and publication of the time and place of sale having been first duly given and made according to law," not being a statement of facts but of a conclusion. This question of due notice being raised, the notice should have been proved, and it was not proved. Again, the lien of the United States on the property of Mrs. Sharkey was all that was sold; that depended on a due demand on Mrs. Sharkey of the tax, and no such demand was shown. Again, the whole of the property sold was Mrs. Sharkey's interest; that was subject to a then undefined equitable lien of her husband, of which there was not only technical notice but actual notice at the sale, though its extent was not defined and settled until too late for defendants to redeem. On these grounds, Judge Van Vorst dismisses plaintiff's complaint brought to get rid of defendants' claim on the property.

THE TILDEN INCOME SUITS.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN IN REGARD TO THE YEARS AFTER 1862—TWO SUITS TO BE BEGUN SOON.

United States District-Attorney Bliss has received from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue a circular letter requesting him to bring suit against persons who have not paid the tax on incomes due the Government. The request is intended to cover the entire period from the time the tax went into effect until the law was repealed. Mr. Bliss has received from District-Attorney Gardner of Providence the full text of the opinion in the suit against Rowland G. Hazard, in which the Government obtained judgment, although the defendant pleaded in bar his payment of an income assessment made by the assessor with the added penalty of 50 per cent. This decision is based on the opinion in the United States Supreme Court case of the Dollar Savings Bank against the United States, and was delivered by United States Judge Knowles with the concurrence of Associate Justice Miller of the United States Supreme Court. The decision is regarded by Mr. Bliss as having an important bearing in case the proposed suits against Gov. Tilden are brought to trial. In view of this decision, it is probable that besides the suit against Mr. Tilden to recover taxes for the year 1862, another suit will be brought for taxes on income amounting to several hundred thousand dollars for the subsequent years in which he was assessed on an income of $15,000 a year. It is understood that the Government is still waiting in order to give Gov. Tilden an opportunity to make a settlement, and that in a few days, if nothing is heard from him, two suits will be begun at once.

COURT OF APPEALS DECISIONS.

A VICTORY FOR THE CONTROLLER—POWERS OF THE MARINE COURT.

In two suits, one, The People ex rel. Root against Tappan, Chamberlain, &c., the other, The Board of Education against Green, Controller, the Court of Appeals has disposed of a question of long standing between the Board of Education and the Controller. The board has maintained that the Controller was bound to place with the Chamberlain the moneys appropriated for the schools in bulk, leaving to the board the right to draw as it pleased for specific purposes. The Controller has insisted that each specific item of expenditure must be vouched for properly at his office and paid by his warrant. The Court of Appeals sustains the Controller's view, holding that the Board of Education like any other person or corporation must submit its vouchers for each expenditure to the Controller and be paid by his warrant countersigned by the Mayor.

In the suit of Elien Callahan, executrix, against the City, the Court of Appeals has decided that the Marine Court has no jurisdiction to try cases in which the city is a party. In 1860 the Legislature confined the jurisdiction over such suits to the three higher courts. The act of 1872, giving the Marine Court jurisdiction in actions against corporations created under the laws of this State and transacting business within this city, could only mean private corporations, and not a municipal corporation not created by the Legislature, but amendatory legislatures, and which could hardly be described as "within" itself. Nor could the officers of the corporation give jurisdiction by waving the question up to a certain point. There are over a hundred cases now pending, of which this case is decisive, at least so far as costs are concerned.

In the suit of John H. Whitmore, clerk of the Third Judicial District Court, against the City for the difference of his salary as originally fixed, and as reduced by the Board of Apportionment, the Court of Appeals decides that the clerks as well as the judges of the courts, are part of the judicial system of the State, and not city officers, and therefore the Board of Apportionment had no power over their salaries.

LEGAL SERVICES FOR THE CITY.

SUIT OF WILLIAM BARNES FOR OVER $70,000.

The suit of William Barnes against the city came before Chief-Justice Daly in Common Pleas, Special Term, yesterday, on a motion to rehear an order of reference. Corporation Counsel Whitney stated that Mr. Barnes was employed during E. Delafield Smith's administration as Corporation Counsel, and for some time afterward, to conduct various proceedings on behalf of the city. During this time, running over parts of 1873, 1874, and 1875, he was paid about $10,000 a year. He put in a bill for $3,967 for expenses, which Mr. Smith allowed, and on which $2,000 was paid. He subsequently put in a claim for $119,000, which was disallowed by Mr. Whitney, and then brought a suit for the $1,967 balance of expenses allowed by Mr. Smith but not paid, and for $69,455 for services as counsel in a great number of proceedings—in all $71,422, with interest from last February. The answer of the city was in the first instance a general denial, and on it Mr. Barnes moved for and obtained an order of reference, the ground being the multiplicity of items. The case came yesterday before Chief-Justice Daly formally as a motion to rehear that order, really as a motion to set it aside on a stipulation on the part of the city not to contest the items of the alleged service, but only their value and the legality of the employment. Mr. Barnes insisted that the city should have offered this stipulation when the motion was first made to refer the case. Mr. Whitney urged that the real question was how the real issues could be most properly heard, and not whether any technical faults had been made. The multiplicity of items was now withdrawn, and the court and a jury were the best judges of their value. Judge Daly reserved his decision. William Barnes argued the motion on his own behalf; Corporation Counsel Whitney and C. P. Miller appeared for the city.

CIVIL NOTES.

In the proceeding by Henry A. Crane to set aside assessments on his property in the upper part of the city, on the ground that the assessments exceeded in every case half the tax valuation of the property within the limits assessed, and some cases exceeded the whole valuation of the tax assessors, Judge Westbrook yesterday granted orders setting aside the assessments.

In the suit of Northrop against Flynn, a motion was made before Chief-Justice Daly yesterday, to render permanent an injunction against J. B. MacNamara, formerly a Roman Catholic clergyman, to prevent him from disposing of the property of a newspaper, which, it is alleged, he obtained to prevent the judgment creditors from levying on the property of the judgment debtor Flynn. The order was granted.

Judge Westbrook, in Supreme Court, Chambers, has ordered Artemas S. Cady, the Clerk of Arrears, to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for not striking from his books an assessment against the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, for paving Seventy-fourth-st., from Third to Fifth-ave. The order relieving the church from the assessment was made last February. The counsel for the church is Elliot Sandford.

In the suit of Tighe against O'Connor, reported in THE TRIBUNE on Sept. 21, Judge Westbrook included in his censure of the plaintiff for offering worthless securities the plaintiff's counsel, W. H. Johnson, and directed that the papers in relation to him be sent to the General Term. Mr. Johnson afterward explained his connection with the case to the satisfaction of Judge Westbrook and the defendant's counsel, and Judge Westbrook directed the entry of an order exonerating him.

In the suit of Birdsall against Fernando Wood, already reported, in which the plaintiffs claim four lots held by Fernando Wood under a deed from their father to their uncle, a motion on behalf of Mr. Wood, that the plaintiffs point out what they claim to be defective in his title, ended in Judge Westbrook's directing—by consent of both parties—that Mr. Wood show the deed on which he relies, and that the plaintiffs then have three months to reply to his answer if they think proper.

Judge Van Vorst in Superior Court, Special Term, yesterday granted an order of injunction in a suit brought by the Ladies' Union Aid Society against the city and Artemas S. Cady, the Clerk of Arrears. The Society occupies No. 255 West Forty-second-st., and its claim to exemption from tax as a purely benevolent society is now recognized, but in 1869 and 1870 a tax was imposed on its building, its prop-rty was sold for non-payment of tax March 25, 1875, and now the purchaser is entitled to his lease if the tax sale was lawful. The injunction is to restrain the giving a lease of the property for 100 years until the lawfulness of the tax be affirmed.

In the suit of O'Donnell against the Mayor, the plaintiff recovered a judgment against the city and issued execution, but before the execution was levied the city established a claim against O'Donnell, and the Sheriff's sale was delayed. Meanwhile Mr. O'Donnell had assigned his judgment to John D. Cummins, but the city claimed that Mr. Cummins's real right was only a fraction of Mr. O'Donnell's judgment. Yesterday a motion was made before Judge Westbrook for a reference to decide the conflicting claims of the city and John D. Cummins. Judge Westbrook denied the motion, holding that it had been substantially decided against the city on previous proceedings, and that the only remedy of the city on the facts was by suit.

In the suit of Francis Morgan against William M. Tweed, jr., E. R. Meade collected some money, asserted to be about $3,000, as counsel for plaintiff. Mr. Meade claimed a lien on this money for his services as attorney for plaintiff. The amount of this lien was contested, and a year ago the matter was referred to D. C. Calvin for determination. The evidence was closed some time ago, and 60 days having elapsed before a decision, Morgan's counsel gave notice under the code that he considered the reference terminated. The matter came before Judge Westbrook yesterday to continue the reference or reappoint Mr. Calvin referee. Judge Westbrook decided, against the earnest protest of plaintiff's counsel, to refer the case again to Mr. Calvin, with instructions to consider the testimony already taken as taken on the new reference, and to report thereon on Oct. 6.

CRIMINAL NOTES.

At the Tombs Police Court yesterday, Charles R. Weaver of No. 478 Fourth-ave. preferred a charge against John Burke of having, in concert with two other men whose names are unknown, robbed him of a gold watch and chain of the value of $164. Bail was required in $1,500 to answer.

Thomas McGaun yesterday pleaded guilty in the Court of General Sessions to committing a burglary and stealing $8,000 worth of goods from Ferdinand Wagner, an opician, and William Alricks, an importer of furs at No. 45 Maiden-lane, on the night of Aug. 28, and was sentenced by Recorder Hackett to 4 years' imprisonment in the State Prison.

At the Harlem Police Court yesterday, Mrs. Caroline Stone, age 26, was held to answer a charge of grand larceny. Several weeks ago Mrs. Stone, who is known to the police as an adroit confidence operator, engaged board with a Mrs. Farrell on Fifth-ave., near Ninetieth-st. After staying about a week, Mrs. Stone left the house without paying her board, and took with her a gold watch and chain valued at $70.

At the Washington Place Police Court yesterday, Eliza J. May, charged with keeping a disorderly house at No. 146 West Twenty-fourth-st., was held in default of $1,000 bail to answer. Three of the inmates were committed to the House of Detention as witnesses and the other two were discharged. ....John Simmons and Giovanis Semluzer were held in default of $300 bail each to answer a charge of cruelty to animals. They tied a string to the tail of a rat, poured kerosene oil over the animal, and set fire to it....John Wales of No. 17 Sullivan-st. charged Eugene Crossley of No. 17 West Houston-st. with firing a shot at him from a revolver with the intention of taking his life. Crossley was committed in default of $3,000 bail to answer.

"Can I have a duck, then?" "No, Sir." "Have you any mutton chops?" "Not one, Sir." "Then, as you have no eatables, bring me something to drink. Have you any spirits?" "Sir," replied the man, with a profound sigh, "we are out of spirits." "Then, in wonder's name, what have you got in the house?" "An execution, Sir!" answered the waiter.
