LITERARY NOTES.

The current Publishers' Weekly contains the supplement to the "American Educational Catalogue" for 1876.

Macmillan & Co. have in press a new book by Lady Barker, which, under the title "A Year's Housekeeping in Natal," will give a series of lively sketches of men and manners in that colony.

The Authors' Publishing Company will issue shortly a work on "The Resurrection of the Body—Does the Bible Teach It?" by E. Nisbet, D. D., with an introduction by G. W. Samson, D. D., late President of Columbian University, Washington.

John Wiley & Sons will issue immediately the long-promised "Text-book of Mineralogy," prepared by Prof. Edw. S. Dana on the system of Prof. J. D. Dana. It will include a comprehensive treatise on crystallography and physical mineralogy.

The Rev. O. B. Frothingham has undertaken the work of preparing a biography of Gerrit Smith. The materials left by the philanthropist are voluminous, but the biographer is anxious to obtain from surviving friends and associates any letters, memoranda, or incidents that may serve to render the record more interesting and complete. Mr. Frothingham's address is No. 50 West Thirty-sixth-st., New-York.

Mr. John Habberton's literary fecundity has attracted so much attention that every new success of Mr. Anonymous is attributed to him. Of course much of his work was ready for the market when the popularity of "Helen's Babies" opened to him, but his second success, "The Barton Experiment," of which 25,000 copies have already been sold, was written in three weeks. He is now finishing "The Scripture Club of Valley Rest," begun and announced a year or more ago. The early part of the MS. is said to have "more in it" than either of the published books.

The first number of a periodical intended to cover the same field as Poole's Index has been issued by William Erving, No. 37 Park-row, under the title of The Index, but scarcely promises success. The practical difficulty in the way of any venture of the kind is the absolute lack of support. It is only on the cooperative plan of the Librarians' Committee that such enterprises can hope to live. It is proposed to publish The Index, which, though incomplete, is of value, on the first of each month, at one dollar per year. Mr. Erving announces also that he has a MS. index to periodical literature in the United States since 1865, which he will print if subscriptions will warrant.

Henry Holt & Co. will issue at once Mr. D. Mackenzie Wallace's book on Russia, which is awaited with interest. This is the book which was announced by Mr. Ralston of the British Museum, himself the leading English authority on Russia, as "the best book ever written about Russia," and this opinion was confirmed by the verdict of the English press. The writer, who is an Englishman of culture and leisure, has been living for six years in various parts of Russia, from remote villages to the capital, with the sole purpose of studying the people, resources, and institutions. The first edition in England was sold immediately on publication. The second was entirely subscribed for before it could be printed, and the third was announced while the second was in press. The American edition will be a handsome octavo, with two fine maps, probably at four dollars.
