THURSDAY, July 12—P. M.

It is stated that the subscriptions to the new 4 per cent Consols continue to be liberal. The South Brooklyn Savings Bank to-day subscribed for $800,000. On the London Stock Exchange, where to-day these bonds were admitted to the dealings, the quotation is 102¾. Only three days remain in which subscription can be made at par.

The latest information relating to the progress of the new railroad war will be found in our news columns. According to some accounts it seems that the Chesapeake and Ohio Company is "not cutting" rates to the West, but simply taking such freight as it can obtain "in a legitimate way" at less than the schedule rates of the compact lines. It is certain that the company has been so far successful in carrying out its "legitimate" enterprise as to diminish materially the size of that "water-melon" which was to have been cut into four parts, to wit: 33 per cent each to the Central and Hudson and Erie; 25 per cent to the Pennsylvania, and 9 per cent to the Baltimore and Ohio. But, financially speaking, what difference does it make to the companies? With "not a sufficent business for two railroads," the matter of rates may be of interest to bondholders, but to stockholders it makes little difference whether the business is divided up between four, five or six roads.

The Stock market to-day has been only a continuation of that of yesterday. Beginning where it ended last night, the trading has been on the descending scale, excepting for Western Union, which to-day, as yesterday, was moved against the market until its price touched 62. This forced manipulation only temporarily checked the downward course of the general market, and finally it also succumbed to the inevitable, and sold down to 60½. It is not at all probable that the cliques have succeeded in selling any large portion of their holdings, and the decline of the last two days seems to have been in spite of their efforts to sustain prices. Hence the persistency with which the prices of certain stocks that are held by a few persons are maintained. With no market for their sale, and with an ownership of the floating stock, it seems that there is little else to do but to keep prices stiff. This probably will continue until investors, becoming tired of waiting for better prices, bring their stock to market. The result then is easy to foresee, if past experience may be trusted as a teacher. Prominent among the stocks held in the manner referred to is St. Paul preferred, which today was not sold under 51⅞, and closed at 55. The coal shares were particularly weak, and declined even more than the trunk lines' stocks. The total transactions of the day aggregated 194,000 shares, and the market closed weak at the lowest prices.

There was a large and active trading in U. S. securities, and while prices were firm, the biddings were easier to correspond with the lower quotation of gold. The subscriptions to the new four per cent bonds up to the beginning of business to-day aggregated something over $20,000,000. We annex latest stored quotations:
