LOCAL MISCELLANY.

INSPECTING ELEVATED RAILWAYS.

THE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE EXAMINING CROSSINGS AND SWITCHES ON THE ELEVATED ROADS.

The Assembly Committee on Railroads met at the Metropolitan Hotel on Saturday to examine further into the bill which forbids any elevated railroad to cross the tracks of any other elevated road, and giving permission to lay third rails wherever the width of the streets will permit. The bill is advocated by the New-York and is opposed by the Metropolitan Elevated Railroad Companies. On Saturday Cyrus W. Field urged the committee to hear what counsel had to say on the measure at once, promising to devote all the time necessary until Monday at midnight, thus avoiding another visit to Albany. General J. J. McCook, junior counsel for the Metropolitan Company, objected on account of the absence of Judge Porter. Mr. Field then suggested that the committee hear the attorneys on Tuesday, and report the bill to the House on the following day. W. A. Halsey, chairman of the committee, decided to hear the legal arguments on Tuesday next, at 3 p. m.

The committee then accepted an invitation to make a trip over both lines of elevated road and inspect the inter-lock system of switching and the proposed points of crossing. The companies furnished a train which was comfortably filled. Among those who took part in the excursion were W. A. Halsey, chairman, and J. W. Peck, W. W. Braman, A. V. McKeel, D. P. McQueen, Jacob Seebacher, C. T. Andrews, James B. Butler, of the committee; President Garrison, Vice-President De Navarro, Chief-Engineer Baird, and Directors G. J. Forrest, General Horace Porter, Superintendent Van Brocklin, Dr. Gilbert and J. J. McCook, of the Metropolitan Road, and Cyrus W. Field, President; N. Guilford, Vice-President; R. Stewart, General Superintendent; Walter Katte, Chief Engineer; T. T. Onderdonk, Superintendent; David Dudley Field, Attorney, and Josiah M. Fiske, Benjamin Brewster, Charles J. Cauder and J. M. Hall, Directors of the New-York Elevated Road. The interlock system of switching at Fifty-third-st. and Sixth-ave. was closely inspected. Superintendent Van Brocklin explained its operation, and he stated to the committee that while fourteen levers were in use at the Fifty-third-st. tower, only ten would be used at the proposed Chatham-square crossing. It was claimed that with a careful and experienced man in the tower, an accident was almost an impossibility.

At the Chatham-square and Chambers-st. crossings the committee made minute examinations, and the generally expressed opinion was that if crossings were permitted by the Legislature, a provision would be inserted in the bill compelling all trains to stop at every crossing. Some of the committee expressed themselves opposed to any crossing of trains at all in the air, advocating a change of the Metropolitan route so as to permit its tracks to run beneath the New-York Road at the highest points on the latter road. The Metropolitan managers urged their right to cross the New-York tracks. General Porter said that after making concessions to permit the New-York to enter the Metropolitan's route, the former now wanted to deprive them of their charter route. He also stated that repeated demands had been made for a settlement of accounts for the Pearl-st. and City Hall branch, but without avail.

Director Forrest said that 4,000 men were now at work on the Metropolitan East Side route, and that the iron for the superstructure has arrived in such large quantities that the company was compelled to rent land to hold it. Twenty cars were also being constructed at the Pullman Palace Car works, he said, which would be fully as handsome and convenient as those now in use on Sixth-ave.

A banquet given by Cyrus W. Field at the Downtown Merchants' Club House, and a ride to Harlem, concluded the committee's labors on Saturday.

WASHINGTON NATHAN'S ASSAILANT.

Officers of the Essex Market Police Court were searching on Friday evening and on Saturday for Mrs. Barrett, alias "Birdie Bell," the woman who wounded Washington Nathan at the Coleman House on Thursday last, after having registered herself as "Miss Zuland," of Philadelphia. A warrant for her arrest on a charge of "felonious assault with intent to kill" had been issued by Justice Murray, who visited the wounded man at his residence in Fifth-ave. It was known that Mrs. Barrett had gone from the Coleman House, after the shooting, to her residence in West Thirty-fourth-st., and thither the officers first went in search of her. They were admitted to the house, and looked through it without finding Mrs. Barrett. The other inmates of the house said that Mrs. Barrett had left the city, and then gave the officers a note which stated that inquiries for her were to be made at the office of her counsel, John D. Townsend. Mr. Townsend said afterward that he had visited Mrs. Barrett on Friday morning. She had gone away, but she would return as soon as she could arrange her bail. It is expected that Mrs. Barrett will return to the city to-day. She is described as a tall and slender blonde of twenty-five, with a scar on one cheek.

Washington Nathan still secludes himself from all visitors except personal friends. His physician, Dr. Polk, has given his opinion that the wound made by Mrs. Barrett's pistol is not dangerous.

MISS OLIVER'S CHURCH.

A large congregation attended the reopening of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, at Tompkins and Willoughby-aves., Brooklyn, yesterday. The services were conducted by the Rev. Anna Oliver. This church was sold last week to satisfy a mortgage held by the Williamsburg Bank, and Miss Oliver bought it. The price was $14,000. The society has called Miss Oliver to occupy the pulpit. Although she has been recognized as an evangelist and welcomed to some pulpits, the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which she belongs, has hitherto refused to license her as a regular minister, on the ground that women were never so recognized by Wesley. The new pastor was dressed in a plain black cashmere, with an illusion tie about her neck. She is of medium height, a brunette, with short black hair and piercing black eyes. She has an earnest manner, and a pleasant, clear accent. As she read passages from the Scriptures she commented upon them.

Just before beginning her sermon Miss Oliver said that at present there was no church organization in connection with the edifice or the meetings now being held there. As soon as it should seem best she would organize a Methodist Church whose doctrines should be those of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In the meanwhile there would be services and a Sunday-school every Sabbath, prayer and class-meetings during the week, and all the sacraments of a Methodist Church would be administered. She had individually assumed the responsibility of the finances. For a number of years she had managed her own money matters on a certain plan which had proved a success. She believed the same plan applicable to a church. Miss Oliver then delivered a short exhortation on the efficacy of prayer. After the services Miss Oliver descended from the pulpit and received the congratulations of the congregation.

MURDERED IN THE STREET.

Thomas P. Hewitt, jr., age twenty-two, of Bloomfield, N. J., was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, on Saturday morning, suffering from a bullet wound in the stomach, the result of an affray with Francis Glennon, a saloon-keeper in Bloomfield. The injured man lingered in great pain until yesterday morning, when death ended his sufferings. It appears that about two weeks ago Hewitt was present at a cock-fight in Glennon's saloon, when the latter gave him the defeated bird. Hewitt said that Glennon claimed the bird again, and that when they next met, in Glennon's saloon, they had a fight, which resulted in Hewitt's being severely beaten and thrown out of the saloon. On Friday night about 12 o'clock the two men met at Montgomery and Franklin-sts., Bloomfield. Glennon says that Hewitt approached him in a menacing manner and pushed him backward against a fence, when he drew his revolver and fired a ballet into Hewitt's body. On the other hand the deceased man stated to a reporter that when he met Glennon the latter drew his revolver, and would have shot him but the weapon hang fire. Hewitt then rushed at Glennon, and threw his arms about him, with his breast to Glennon's back. In the struggle Glennon freed one of his arms, and placing it behind him discharged the weapon and wounded Hewitt. The murdered man was a son of Thomas P. Hewitt, of Bloomfield, who was a candidate last Fall before the Greenback Convention for the Congressional nomination. On Saturday he called at St. Michael's Hospital. He said that about a fortnight ago his son built a cock-pit for Glennon, and that at that time the two had a fight, in which his son was badly beaten. Up to a late hour last evening Glennon had not been arrested, although the Newark police were in search of him.

DEATH BY FALLING FROM A WINDOW.

A singular accident, with fatal result, occurred yesterday morning in West Sixteenth-st. A woman's scream attracted Officer Kelly's attention at 4 o'clock, when he was patrolling his post between Seventh and Eighth-aves. Running in the direction whence the scream had come, he found an old woman in night-clothes hanging head downward from the iron fence in front of No. 225. Her head did not reach the ground, and the full weight of her body was upon the sharp iron spikes, that had penetrated her abdomen. She was bleeding to death, and when by the aid of two officers from the adjoining Twenty-ninth Precinct, who hastily answered Officer Kelly's summons, she had been lifted from her position, life was extinct.

It was found that the woman was Mrs. Rose McCusper, a widow, who kept house in the second floor for her son, Robert, an employé in a down-town restaurant. She was eighty years old, and, suffering at times from cramps in the lower limbs, was wont to walk about the room to find relief by exercise. Probably she did so yesterday morning, and attracted by some noise in the street, went into the front parlor, and leaning out of the window, fell out.
